SUMMARY.

Later accounts from the Italian front regard the situation somewhat less gloomily.

They show that a combination of many adverse and unexpected conditions prevented the Italians stemming the first onslaught.

The Germans employed their spearhead formation, and battering ram tactics, which they had successfully utilised against Russia.

According to an official message the Italian troops are fulfilling their duty regularly, and checking the advance on the plains.

Official advices received in Washington state that General Cadorna will make a stand at the Tagliamento River.

It is pointed out that General Cadorna frequently expressed his confidence in the troops to withstand the shock.

Germany's new gas shells from secret batteries, and favourable weather, enabled the Germans to secure a swift initial success.

The feeling in Italy is calmer after the first shock, consequent on reports that the Italians are rallying.

Nevertheless the critical nature of the position is not disguised in England.

The Central News Agency states that the French Cabinet has decided to send troops to the Italian front.

A German official message states:—The second and third Italian armies are retreating westward.

"We are pursuing them rapidly between the mountains and the sea. Our captures now total 100,000 prisoners, and 700 guns."

The Germans claim that the whole of the Italian isonzo front has collapsed.

The Austro-Hungarians are now before Udine. They have captured Cormons, seven miles west of Gorizia.

"Reports from Vienna state that the German Emperor will join the Emperor Charles of Austria on the Italian front.

English journals debate whether the Allies are in a position to stem the tide of invasion by transporting troops and guns.

It is stated that England and France are prepared to render the utmost support as soon as possible.

The ground east and north of Ypres continues bad. There is said to be little prospect of much improvement.

Sir Douglas Haig says the successes gained on Friday under such conditions are deserving of the highest praise.

The work of the Canadians, he points out, was remarkably fine, the ground gained being of the highest importance.

The French and the Belgians have carried out successful operations northward of Merckem. The French captured a village.

The French success between Houthulst Wood and the Yser directly threatens the enemy's rear at Dixmude.

There is fairly heavy artillery activity in the region of Pinon, Chavignon, and near Epine-de-Chevrigny.

The Germans attacked the French positions north of Froidmont Farm, but were driven back with heavy losses.

A German official message states:—We repulsed the English north of the Boesinghe-Staden railway.

A search of the offices of a Royalist journal in Paris revealed that stores of firearms had been accumulated since the war.

Documents were also found disclosing schemes tending to provoke civil war, and plans for arming citizens.

British and French destroyers patrolling the Belgian coast attacked three German destroyers and 15 seaplanes.

The office obtained direct hits on the enemy destroyers, which retured to the protection of the land batteries.

Hostile aeroplanes attempted a raid on the south-east counties of England on Monday night.

Eighty aeroplanes ascended, and anti-aircraft guns came into action. The enemy did not cross the outer defences.

Mr. Lloyd George has emphasised the splendid spirit and energetic helpfulness of the citizens of the Dominions.

Mr. Holman returned to Sydney yesterday after several months' absence, during which he visited England, France, and America.

He said the high commands of the Allies agreed that the Australian troops were in the first grade of soldiers.

In the course of his flight from Melbourne to Sydney Lieutenant Galloway crashed to earth near Wagga. He escaped injury.

Engine trouble caused him to descend in a wheat crop at Culcairn. He rose again, but came down within four miles of Wagga.

Another high rise has taken place in the Murray at Echuca, the river being 32ft 9in above summer level.

Other stations show a fall, but at Mildura and Merbein the position is expected to be critical in about 10 days.

Speaking at a conference of the National party at Tamworth, Mr. Cook urged the people to subscribe generously to the war loan.

"It means this," he said "if you don't do it willingly, we shall take it in taxation."

Senator Pearce says it will not be practicable at present to bring back on leave the original A.I.F., still on active service.

The majority of the wharf-labourers of Melbourne are still idle, pending a compulsory conference.

Meanwhile the coal-lumpers have offered for work, and numerous gangs have already been engaged.

A conference of the National party at Tamworth recommended a uniform date for sending in State and Federal income tax returns.

Bishop Long was yesterday advised to hold himself in readiness to embark as a chaplain for the front.

The appeal of T. D. Mutch, M.L.A., against his conviction on a charge of using insulting words was dismissed.

A man named Vance Marshall was sentenced to four months' imprisonment for using words calculated to cause disaffection.

A union secretary was fined £5 for taking part in a strike at the Cobar smelting mines in July.

Mr. Justice Heydon has cancelled the registration of the Wool and Basil Workers' Association as an industrial union.

A basis of amalgamation between the Masters and Engineers' Association and the Merchant Service Guild has been adopted.

Mr. Ball and Mr. Fitzpatrick will represent New South Wales at the formal opening of the trans-Australian railway.

Archbishop Cattanco, the new apostolic delegate to Australasia, was welcomed in Sydney yesterday.

A Tamworth deputation placed before the Acting Prime Minister certain grievances respecting the working of the wheat pool.

Mr. Cook urged that if wheat could not be shipped some provision should be made for its safe storage.

The Sydney Methodist Synod has recommended that a new circuit be constituted by the Kogarah, Carlton, and Ramsgate churches.

It has been decided that hospitals undertaking collections on their own initiative shall be penalised in the annual distribution.

Sir William Irvine challenges the statement that the reopening of the conscription question would diminish voluntary recruiting.

It was stated at the half-yearly meeting of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company that the industry in this State was holding its own.

A shooting affray occurred at Dawes Point last evening, in which a coal-lumper out of work was injured.

Business in the Mining market was quiet. Westonia gold stocks, as well as silver and tin ventures, were easier.

Plums for Christmas delivery were freely booked yesterday. The demand for bacon was fully maintained.

The market was over supplied with onions, and there was a heavy fall in prices.

Forecast.—Except for a passing shower or two on the seaboard, fine generally with pleasant temperatures, southerly winds on the coast.

TO-DAY
THE LAST OF WINDOW DISPLAYS in connection with

ECONOMY DRESS WEEK.

To-morrow the Eight Example Outfits, demonstrating the Economy of dressing, with Farmer's as guide, will be removed from our Pitt-street Windows and will be shown in our Costume Salon, Second Floor, for the remainder of the week. These Examples are all clearly priced, and though the total costs are worked out, we wish it thoroughly understood that articles may be bought separately if so desired. We have launched our Economy Dress Week with a purpose—to demonstrate that the smartness of an outfit does not always depend upon the amount of money spent upon it, but upon the method used in the planning.

These Displays have proved a revelation to many concerning the resources of Farmer's.

WE ARE AS WELL ABLE TO PROVIDE DISTINCTIVE FASHIONS FOR THOSE WITH LIMITED INCOMES AS FOR THOSE OF MORE ELABORATE TASTES. Our Economy Dress Week is a delight for the former—the following examples of High-grade Mantles and Gowns suitable for Race Wear are proof for the latter.

SILK DUST COATS.

THE SEASON'S LATEST.
THE HEIGHT OF DISTINCTIVENESS.
FOR THE SOUTHERN RACE SEASON.

VERY USEFUL DUST COAT, in good quality Assam Silk, the full swing which especially well cut. Also suitable for motoring or driving. The collar, cuffs, and patch pockets are outlined with stitching. Buttons of self material. PRICE ..... 69/6.

SMART ASSAM SILK COAT, of extra quality, the back forming box pleats into all-round belt, and new side pockets. The smart collar and revers are outlined with stitching. The pockets and cuffs trimmed self buttons. This form of trimming is this season's very newest. PRICE ..... 75/6.

DELIGHTFUL STYLE DUST COAT, in extra quality Assam Silk, the smart collar outlined with the new and greatly demanded silk stitching, the pocket, suspended from belt, also adorned in a smart way with stitching round belt and finished with large acorn buttons of self material; all-round belt at waist, and new cuffs on sleeves with square flap outlined silk stitching.
PRICE ..... 84/6.

MOST STYLISH COAT, IN EXTRA QUALITY ASSAM SILK, the collar, pocket, buttons, all of contrasting material; in shades of Saxe, Reseda, and Black; novel pocket suspended from sash at waist. Rows of stitching in same shades, give smart finishing touch to the foot of coat. Belt in sash effect, the pockets attached with tabs.
PRICE ..... 5 Gns.

MOST STYLISH COAT, IN EXTRA QUALITY BLACK TAFFETA SILK, suitable for general wear, and also as a protection to dainty frocks; made with step collar, gracefully gauged in waist at back, with inset sash extending from sides, where novel loose pockets, well stitched with silk give further smart finish.
PRICE ..... £5/15/6.

Mantle Salon, Second Floor, Pitt-street.

RACE GOWNS.

EXCLUSIVE STYLES AT PRICES THAT MEET THE MODERATE PURSE.

Though the idea of Race Wear is generally associated with expensiveness, you will at once see by the following prices that it is possible to obtain a suitable Race Gown well under the sum of £10 at Farmer's. Exquisite styles, in Satin, Georgette, Crepe de Chine, of superb qualities, of beautiful workmanship, and smart cut, are obtainable as follows:—

PRICE ..... £9/9/.

RACE GOWN IN A COMBINATION OF PAISLEY GEORGETTE AND CREPE DE CHINE, the predominating tone being Mole colour. Skirt is made in self-Mole, with Russian basque coatee bodice of Paisley Georgette, in pleated design, with wide turnover collar opening at neck. The wide cuffs and sleeves are trimmed with self-Mole silk; and gown is finished at waist with silk belt. PRICE .... £8/18/6.

ARTISTIC SILK GEORGETTE GOWN, in Old Rose. A London model, lined through with Ivory Ninon; edged lace armholes and circular yoke with ornamental stitching. The front of bodice has two horizontal tucks across bust, and around skirt basque. Skirt decorated with two circular tucks, headed with contrasting stitching. Finished frilled cuffs and narrow-plaited belt at waist in contrasting effect.
PRICE ..... £8/18/6.

RICH SATIN RACE GOWN, in MULTI-COLOURED COMBINATION STRIPE, consisting of two shades of Tangerine and Copenhagen Blue stripes, with softening shades of Apple Green and Black. Bodice lined net, has circular collar of a harmonising Georgette, the new sleeve trimmed buttons and tassels. A striking model. Worth 12gns. PRICE ..... £8/18/6.

For the hot days, when you need light, wholesome foods that are satisfying and nourishing, are ideal. They are crisp and flaky, with a flavour that appeals to the palate.

ARNOTT'S "SAO" BISCUITS

Every housewife should keep a tin of "Saos" in the larder. They are so handy for summer meals and they are good, too. Delicious with butter, jam, cheese, etc. Get a tin to-day.

TO-DAY'S SPECIAL FEATURE

IN OUR SHOWROOMS.

CHILDREN'S OUTFITTING.

"How to make your money go as far to-day as it did twelve months ago" is a stern problem. Speaking generally, you will not succeed, try as you will. But in one direction of expenditure at least we can help you solve the problem, and that because of a combination of circumstances. We refer to Children's Clothing. The fact that we hold large stocks of Summer Materials, bought well ahead of recent heavy advances, and that we are large manufacturers of Children's Outfitting, enables us to offer these goods to our patrons at prices which enable parents to keep down the cost of Children's Clothing to a minimum.

EVERYTHING for Men's and Boys' Wear at Gowing Bros.

EVERY BOY WANTS AN EXTRA PAIR OF PANTS.

The first garment of any boy's suit to wear out are the pants. Because of this the average boy needs an extra pair of knickers with almost every suit. And experience shows the wise mother that, equipped in this way, a boy not only makes the best of his appearance, but also gets the most of wear out of his clothes.

BOYS' WASHING KNICKERS.

All sizes, to fit boys 3 to 14 years of age.
WHITE DRILL, unlined, 3/6 per pair.

WHY HAVE DANDRUFF?

"One small bottle of Koko cleared away the dandruff on my head, although it had been very thick; every day I found my head getting cleaner, and now my hair is in good condition again."
"Less than one bottle of Koko was successful in cleaning my head of dandruff, and the improvement in my hair since is wonderful." (Names given.)

The marked improvement in the hair when Koko is used brings a long wished for relief to those who were finding dandruff disagreeably persistent and troublesome to remove. A 4/6 trial bottle of Koko for 2/, posted 3/, is supplied from the Koko Depot, 2nd floor, Denison House, 380 George-street, and King-street, if this Offer No. HDP 1017, is used. Enough to prove Koko the cleanest and most efficacious hair preparation you ever tried.

OUR NEW CREATION.

Our latest creation is the greatest of all Photographs.

It carries all before it, and is better than all the best of the past.

It cannot be approached for ART, STYLE, or EFFECT.

It is classic in design, harmonious in the blending of complementary tints, and is of distinctive merit.

It has a two-flap case, enclosing a cut-out mount, delicately Indian tinted with mat tints on a parte mark. The photo. shows through the mount with good effect. It is flexible, and will not crack or break in carriage.

The same price for sittings or copied from another photo.

Bromide Portraits (Engraving Black), 10/6 per doz.; or True Sepia Portraits, 21/ per doz.

This beautiful creation is worthy of the first place in any collection.

If you do not see our window before going elsewhere you are sure to be sorry.

THE TESLA GEM PORTRAIT.

Those who have made the acquaintance of our TESLA Portraits are unanimous in their praise of its elegance and chaste delicacy. These portraits are put up in the shape of a small Booklet made of special art paper, and the FINISH GENERALLY IS EXCEEDINGLY ATTRACTIVE. There is already a great demand for this novel and beautiful shape, which is eminently suitable for sending abroad.

We offer a number of proofs for selection, and supply us from any two positions without extra charge.

PROCEEDS DEVOTED TO THE REPATRIATION FUND.

You Help Your Boy by Witnessing his Gallantry in these Pictures.

THIS WAR!
Red, grim war—war ten thousand feet in the air, over the German lines, with shells bursting below and machine-gun fire all around.

INDESCRIBABLE PICTURES OF THE ARMY'S AND NAVY'S WINGS IN ACTION.

If you have pride in the heroism of your boy, you will come to see his comrades—and, perhaps, himself—FIGHTING IN THE TORRID INFERNO OF BAUPAUME, with Tanks and Guns advancing irresistibly against the Hun, establishing a record of heroism that can never die.

These are realities of war you did not know existed. These pictures constitute the finest series of actual battle scenes yet presented to Australia.

"SONS OF THE EMPIRE."

MISS FRANCES GREDLEY,
MISS FRANCES GREDLEY, MUSIC THISTLE HALL,
PROFESSOR RANDAL WOODHOUSE,
LIEUT. HAROLD C. PRICE,
MR. W. REYNOLDS, and Ensemble (under direction Madam Ada Baker).

PROCEEDS IN AID OF PURCHASING CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR THE PATIENTS OF THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL.

The object of this Recital is one which will surely appeal to all. To bring a little joy to a sick child, to make it forget its pain if only for a few happy moments while it cuddles a teddy bear or nurses a doll, or plays with other toys so happily invented to make glad the fleeting hours of childhood—that surely will find a reflecting gladness in our own hearts, and will take us back again to the time when we were children, and knew the ecstasy of a new toy. Please remember that every seat you book means a toy to a sick little girl or boy as well as what we hope will be a pleasant evening's entertainment to yourself.

The plan is now open at Paling's.

SATURDAY WEEK,

BARGO.

TOWN LOTS AND FARMS.

Next Saturday Week (November 10) our second auction will take place at Bargo, 66 miles from Sydney, 1120ft above sea level, which is the new Central Station, on the Great Railway Deviation from Picton to Mittagong.

Bargo possesses the best agricultural soil, and a climate unsurpassed for the production of fruit, especially cherries and apples, while already the district is famous for the poultry industry.

Opposite the station gates, and on the main road, are 85 town lots and 53 farmlets, of 1 to 30 acres.

TO BE AUCTIONED SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10.

Plans, etc., at 84B Pitt-street.

NOW ON SALE.

BORONIA PARK ESTATE.

This glorious property, now thrown open to the public, gives investors and home-seekers golden money-making opportunities, and the chance of securing one of these splendid Farmlets, with rich fertile soil, from 1 to 4 acres, is positively something too good to miss. So get a plan and inspect early.

Boronia Park Estate is 3 miles south from the Bankstown Railway Station, with a regular motor service, and close to the village of East Hills, with its shopping centre and other conveniences.

Quarter-acre lots in Thompson-street, from £22/10/ to £25.

Half-acre lots in Victor-avenue, from £27/10/ to £35/10/.

Acre to 5-acre blocks, from £20 per acre.

HAPPY HOLIDAY HOMES.

Now that the long hot summer days are with us it is high time to cast around for a suitable week-end and holiday resort, and what could be more to the purpose than:
WOY WOY,

"Sydney's Playground." This famous seaside tourist resort is situated 45 miles from Sydney, on the Main Northern Line, about three hours' train ride.

Ettalong Beach Estate, the pick of Woy Woy, is 15 minutes' motor ride from the station, with a gravelled main road and corduroy footpaths leading to all parts of the estate, on which are also installed stand pumps, with illimitable supplies of pure water for public use. In most weathers there is a good surf, and fishing may also be freely indulged in.

Camp Blocks are now offered, from £12/10/ each, and absolute beach frontage residential blocks from 35/ per foot.

Pretty Beach Extension Estate.—Lovely big blocks, 50 x 257, from 6/6 to 40/ per foot, and from £17 17s each.

CRONULLA:

Less than an hour's train ride to Sutherland Station, on the Illawarra Line, and half an hour's tram journey to the beach. Positively one of the most beautiful, most select, and most popular of all Sydney's lovely pleasure resorts, with a perfectly safe surfing beach, and boating and fishing on the Gunnamatta Bay on the other side.

Beach Park Estate, right beside the billowy foam, offers blocks, 50 x 138, from 35/6 to 50/ per foot.

Kingswood Estate, blocks 50 x 200, from £45 each, midway between Sutherland and Cronulla.

St. Mervyn Estate, lovely holiday homes, 50 x 2[illegible], from only £35 each.

BONDI:

"The Beautiful."—Glorious Residential Sites, at the very edge of the rolling Pacific, with majestic headlands on either side, and many superb homes scattered around, on Beach Park Estate, from £5/15/ per foot. Only half an hour's tram ride through the lovely Centennial Park from the G.P.O.

MONA VALE:

Just the sweet little holiday resort imaginable—charming and unique, and never overcrowded. Frock's Surf Estate—one of the finest beaches in the State—offers spacious blocks, 50 x 200, from £35 10/ each.

COMO:

"The Campers' Favourite"—12 miles from Sydney, on the Illawarra Line, with all the chief holiday pleasures at command—boating, bathing, and fishing, with delightful rural scenery, and the bracing country climate.
By-the-Water Estate: With frontages to Oyster Bay, blocks 100 x 587, from £25/10/ each.

NARRABEEN:

A firm favourite in the hearts of Sydney pleasure-seekers, reached by tram from Manly wharf. Comfy holiday homes, on Superb View Estate, 50 x 270, from £15 each.

PITTWATER:

A pretty and charming district, just past Narrabeen, with every facility for bright, happy week-ends and holidays. Big allotments on By-the-Lake Estate, 150 x 440, from £40/10/ each.

NOTICES.

The "Herald's" Page for Women is published on Wednesdays.

Contributions, from Women preferred, will be considered. They should not exceed half a column in length.

Communications should be addressed to "The Editor, 'A Page for Women,' 'Herald' Office."

A TIME OF CRISIS.

To-day there is but one thought in the minds of all. Women though we be, we have a stake in the country, and it would be worse than thoughtless or heedless—it would be a wicked neglect of duty—were we to brush aside the question of to-day and say it is no concern of ours. There is no need to say what is the nature of the crisis now upon us. Recruits are short by 25,000. Imagine Randwick Racecourse on an average day. Just think what a large crowd there is: an army, in fact. Well, 25,000 is just an average race day attendance. We are that many short. Imagine Sydney Town Hall packed to its utmost capacity, then multiply that by six; that would be a fair-sized crowd, would it not? Yet that number would be under the shortage at which the whole of Australia should be trembling with apprehension and bitter shame. Did any reader of this page happen to be in Bayswater-road on Saturday night when the trams were carrying the crowds from the Stadium? No chance of a seat for anybody at the William-street stops. Weary waiting revealed carload after carload of strong men in the prime of life, all happy and laughing, not a care in the world, all pleasantly excited at the manly amusement they had just witnessed. Yet surely some of the 25,000 men were there.

True to their title of sportswomen, the amateur sportswomen have taken definite action and formed themselves into a body resolved to try and get soldiers to fight for us. Critics may sniff and say, "What can a set of girls do?" But the sneer falls harmlessly, for, as Hamlet says, "the readiness is all." No matter what form that readiness may take, it is "all," all that is needed to give the push that will send our men by the tens of thousands flocking into camp ready to fight for us and themselves. The readiness is all. To take an example of how the readiness of women helps, the volunteers who offered their names and services recently to the Loyal Women's Bureau were, as the Acting Premier acknowledged, a great source of comfort and uplift to the men who were struggling for right and good government. By thinking right, women can create an atmosphere that subtly permeates public opinion, until quite imperceptibly the whole air is charged with patriotism. The magnetism of a crowd—how wonderful it is. Sometimes all powerful, it sweeps aside all impediment. How is this magnetism produced? Simply by the thought of every member of it working in the same direction. Thought is irresistible. Think right, and you help to raise an army.

A woman's point of view is often asked for. Readers of newspapers read eagerly how a subject presents itself to the feminine mind, as they like to know "how it feels to be a woman." If some of the men now walking about Sydney streets could know just for 10 seconds that feeling, they would be absolutely appalled. Men are credited with believing that women like and admire them. Well, as regards some men that belief would be rudely shattered. We women feel helpless in such matters. We give our husbands, our sons; we let our brothers go; we suffer loneliness and heartache, and the world has become for us a place of desolation, and then the horrible query thrusts itself in front of us, "Is it all for nothing?" The sacrifice cannot be in vain, although we have our dark moments of doubt; but, oh, the weary waiting is becoming almost unendurable. If our men (who have not already gone) fail us, then we are indeed in a miserable state.

The men who will not fight must be gentle, non-pushing, unambitious, with no desire to fill any posts in the future world higher than those of hewers of wood and drawers of water. They do not want success or limelight; modest violets are they who would prefer the cool shades of obscurity. Think forward, say, 10 years, and the world be full of soldiers. Nobody else will be of any note. The present generation, the fathers and mothers of the soldiers, will in the course of time drop out. A new era will be in progress. We talk now, rightly enough, of repatriation, and what we shall do for the returned soldiers, but the real problem of the future will be what will the returned soldiers do for us? "Returned soldiers" will not mean a few hundred dearly welcomed men from a transport, but it will mean that in practically every nation of the world, the whole of the effective manhood will be men who have fought. The world will belong to the soldiers. Then, what of the non-fighters? They will just have to peep about, and find themselves dishonourable graves.

A FEATHERED FRIEND.

He is the dearest little fellow, with a bright yellow waistcoat, and a darker smoke-coloured back and black head, and he has the roundest, blackest eyes and the cheekiest looking, sharp beak. Now that spring is here, he is the first to wake me in the morning, with his double call, which sounds like "chook, chook," and although he is not heard again about the garden during the morning, he always appears from nowhere the moment I take my tools and start my usual few hours' pottering in the garden.

He perches himself on the nearest tree trunk, sometimes only a yard or two off, with head on one side, and watches and waits while I turn the soil with my pitchfork. Then he pounces, and away he goes with a long worm in his beak, to come back again in a few minutes for another one. Sometimes he dives down just as the pitchfork is going into the ground, and it misses him by the narrowest margin. But nothing seems to frighten him. He is so tame, that once I placed a worm on my hand and held it out near the ground to see if he would take it, and sure enough down he hopped and flew off with it.

Sometimes his mate is with him, and last season he even had his fledgling on the ground behind a big fern, although I could find no trace of his nest in the garden. I noticed him disappearing repeatedly in the same direction, and on peeping behind the fern, there was the wee, ugly thing, with gaping beak, waiting to have a worm popped in. The same evening it had disappeared, although presumably it did not have a feather to fly with.

I looked him up in numerous bird books and found him under the name of "Shrike Robin," in "An Australian Bird Book," with a picture of him in colours. Whether he has a commoner name, I don't know. He is quite the tamest of all the different birds that frequent our garden, and evidently has the sense to know that the gardener is his friend, and the one to keep in with when he is on the lookout for his meal.

"CHOOK."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

War Medals.—Wayback: For a King's Medal for service in the Boer War you should apply to the British War Office. For a Mother's Medal apply Victoria Barracks. The inquiry clerk will give directions.

Military Awards.—D.C.M.: You ask if the D.C.M. takes precedence "of the M.M." "Precedence" is not the right word, as both D.C.M. and M.M. are decorations. Precedence refers to orders. After the V.C., the D.C.M. is the most distinguished honour a non-commissioned man can obtain. In a certain sense it may be said to answer to the D.S.O. for officers, but the D.S.O. is not a "decoration," it is an order.

To remove print from bags, E.M.B.—Saturate all the lettering with kerosene, let it soak all night, and next day boil in strong soda suds.

Beating eggs, Amber.—There seems really no reason why your whites should not whisk. Try a thin, old knife to beat them, using a soup plate, put in a pinch of salt, and add sugar when the whites are getting stiff. A hot kitchen is an unsuitable place, beat the eggs in a cool spot. It takes, sometimes, 15 minutes to get the whites stiff enough for meringue. You can make a nice whisk of eggs for the top of stewed fruit, etc., by preparing a packet of plain jelly crystals; when set, beat it up with a fork, and add the whites and sugar to it. This is sure to be firm.

FASHION AS SHE IS.

SUMMER GARB.

Summer is holding full sway in the fashion world; every day there are novelties showing fresh and beautiful ideas. Simplicity is still the characteristic of summer costumes, whether intended for formal or informal wear. They all share it in common. It is quite necessary to study carefully this simplicity in design and colouring scheme. In every instance comfort and chic are combined. The materials are soft, and lend themselves to the cut of the most up-to-date costume. All kinds of materials are in vogue, the ever-popular crepe-de-Chine, foulard, Georgette, cotton tricotine ranking among the more expensive fabrics. The simple linen frocks promise to give more than satisfaction. This material crops up regularly, and in every way proves a success. Colours are very charming. Among the linen garments, crepe is also playing an important part. The broad block stripes run into first place in favour, and many of the dresses made by these striped crepes have a fascinating appearance. The fully pleated skirt shows stitching over the hip. This stitching helps to keep the folds of the pleats in place. According to the taste of the wearer, the white stripes are formed into a sort of hip yoke, the coloured lines showing further down. In other instances, the darker lines are manipulated into the hip yoke. The white crepe jumper-blouse generally accompanies this "verandah" striped skirt. The collar, revers, and cuffs and pockets boast the striped material, the buttons being also effectively covered with the crepe.

A very cool-looking striped gown was in a pale lemon and white striped crepe. The skirt was gracefully pleated, showing the upper part of the skirt white, the lemon shade being hidden. The skirt was carefully stitched a little past the hip-line, the yellow stripes showing beneath; the white jumper blouse was effectively trimmed with lemon and white striped crepe. A simple white sailor shape hat, trimmed with a very narrow band of white, accompanied this little frock. A lemon sunshade helped to finish this successful and at the same time most economical toilette. One cannot overlook the charm of the large assortment of these delightfully designed crepes. The cotton voiles also show in many tones of spots and stripes. In this material black and white, or navy and white, certainly seem to lead. Perhaps their popularity is owing to the difficulty in getting many of the bright tones, on account of the scarcity of dyes.

There are other dark as well as light lined voiles. Delightful costumes of these voiles are fashioned by the introduction of a different spotted voile is also another idea. The effect is good and becoming. I was attracted by a striped voile; the lower part of the skirt was carried out in plain voile; the upper part was of the striped voile to match the blouse bodice. Two narrow patent belts encircled the waist. A large sailor-shaped collar of white Georgette, hemstitched with the colour of the stripe, and the lower part of the skirt, made a delightful neck finish. Dainty cuffs to match the collar trimmed the sleeves. The illustration provides a very good example of the striped effect. Checks are in all sizes. There are small checks and very large checks, navy and white, black and white, Saxe and white, pink and white—all these tones are displayed by the checked materials. Simple one-piece frocks, trimmed with white pique or muslin collars, cuffs, pockets, and belts look exceedingly well, carried out in the much-worn checked prints and ginghams. The linen summer frocks are shown in various tones and designs. Some of the skirts boast the box-pleated surface, or the design is broken by three graduated hemstitched bands in a contrasting shade. Similar bands may be employed to decorate the back of the large sailor collar, to give the appearance of tucks. The cuffs are trimmed in the same way. The waistband is generally fashioned of the contrasting material.

A very delightful example was in a blue linen; the box-pleated surface of the skirt was in this instance broken by three graduated hemstitched bands of buff-coloured linen. The bands showed across the back of the sailor collar and cuffs. Another scheme in maize-coloured linen was banded with myosotis blue, a becoming fichu of very softly folded cream lawn muslin, edged with lace, finished the neck. A linen of that very becoming pink shade, not unlike a strawberry ice, was piped with a deeper-toned linen.

One-piece frocks, in all their simple washing materials, prove useful. Then there are also more elaborate and less economical frocks for warm weather wear. The soft muslins and simple gowns are quite appropriate garments for the present moment, but washing materials and simplicity really never made a very smart gown to be worn on special occasions, unless great forethought and artistic designing were employed. An example of this was in the result of a more than charming French cream lawn very beautifully embroidered. An inset of embroidered insertion helped to emphasise the long lines; a contrasting fabric was used for a soft front panel, crepe georgette of a shade to tone with the scheme of the frock. A square neck finished with a large square-cut collar was also fashioned of the crepe georgette. The points came well over the shoulders; apricot-edged ribbon defined the waist. Another dressy garment showed the rather large-spotted effect, being of pretty powder-blue with white spots; it had a pleated panel in front; the side draperies gave the skirt a piquant appearance. An uncommon touch showed in the folded waistband, which was threaded with white-lined straps; it was carried rather high. Many of the pleated gowns have an appearance of narrowness; it is difficult for the most observant not to label skirts narrow. I am afraid we are seriously threatened with the sheath-like frocks once more, but I shall leave it to the pessimist to think about this prospect of our liberty being curtailed.

LINGERIE.

Jumpers, as I before mentioned, are still very strong in favour; they are smocked, hand-worked, and even hand-painted. Many of them are simply delightful in colouring and designing. An English paper refers to the jumper blouse carried out in metallic net, either in green, dull gold, or grey tones. They are described as exceedingly pretty and uncommon, the latter I do not doubt. Another point of interest with our clothes is the rainproof or mackintosh. Although our skirts seem to be going down in length, the rainproof seems to be going up, and is to be worn quite short. The trench waterproof must be short, so, no doubt, our raincoats must invariably follow suit. Skimming from the waterproof to dainty lingerie seems a long flight. But of great importance in our present day toilette, is the garment that does not meet the eye. Modern lingerie is indeed very beautiful; soft crepe de chine, fine lawn, chiffon has almost replaced the neatly tucked honest old longcloth or calico of many years ago. Boudoir lingerie has reached a fine art. There are many of the lingerie garments carried out in exquisite manner, with hand-embroidery, ribbon trimming, finely tucked, hemstitched, and lace. Many are very unsubstantial, and as light as air, but all the same they are by no means omitted from the wardrobe. Among the more normal and simple lingerie, stitching proves an advantageous method of trimming. This stitching is not only in evidence where our street clothes are in question, but our lingerie shows signs of it. A new idea is the buttonhole stitching introduced on these under garments. It has a neat effect. It may be used effectively on muslin or lawn lingerie. A chic idea is to buttonhole stitch a pale pink crepe de Chine, with French blue. Another novel scheme is the using of wool embroidery on soft crepe de chine. This is the latest phase. A white crepe de chine or soft silk envelope shape lingerie shows all the edges bordered with these rows of darning stitching in wool.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

FISH IN SEASON.

Our fish list this week is a liberal one, and although fish is usually accounted a luxury, owing to its high price, the housekeeper who knows how to buy and how to make the most of this commodity will assure you that she finds it, on occasion, an invaluable substitute for dear meat. But, where one's means are narrow, the art of buying must be carefully studied. Dear fish, even when it happens to be one's very favourite variety, must not be indulged in, and cheap fish that has much of waste material about it must be as studiously eschewed. It is a pity that one must list whiting and garfish, those delicate varieties, amongst the dear fish that must be avoided by the thrifty housekeeper, but alas, so it is. Where one is catering for an invalid or someone with a poor appetite, of course the case is altered, as then expense cannot be too closely studied, and moreover but a small portion of the dear foodstuff will be required. But where one is dealing with just ordinary healthy appetites (and probably many of them) one must sift out for one's self which are the best shops to buy from, what variety of fish will yield the most satisfactory material for a good dinner, and which are the truly cheap fish.

Comparisons are odious, so let us not attempt to hint which fishshops we think, or have found, the best. Many of them are excellent, and present to the passers-by windows "replete" with every attraction, from the silvery whiting to the red, red lobsters and crayfish. But, which shops sell the best fish for the possessor of the narrow incomes, for the housewife trying to make two widely distant ends meet? Undeniably the State fish shops. There one may buy good fish from only 4d a lb.

But having found the shops that take the palm for cheapness, the thrifty housewife has next to discover (and experience is usually her best teacher) which of the cheap fish offered to her it is the truest economy to buy.

Skate is amongst our very cheapest fish being only 4d a lb (last year it was only 3d), but it must be confessed it is neither a very popular nor a well-known fish, and it requires careful treatment to make it appetising. It may be either boiled or fried; but is better on the whole, particularly if very small, fried. To boil it, place it in enough salted water to cover it, and let it simmer for half an hour. To fry it, clean and dry it thoroughly, then egg and bread crumb it, or coat it with batter, and fry it in plenty of boiling fat. Either boiled or fried, it should unfailingly be served with a tasty sauce, such as anchovy, egg, or parsley.

Many people confess a fondness for eels, and in England they are somewhat freely used; indeed, eel pie is a favourite supper or luncheon dish. At the State shops in Sydney eels are only 4d a pound; in England a while back they used to run from 9d to 1s 2d per pound. To cook them, first clean and skin them, and then cut them into short pieces about 2½in long. Place these pieces in a saucepan, with enough salt and water to cover them barely. Simmer gently for half an hour, then serve with parsley sauce. If they are preferred fried, they need to be first prepared as was recommended for boiling; then coated with dry flour, egg, and bread crumbed and fried in about 20 minutes. If desired for a pie, it is unnecessary to cook them first, but it is a great assistance if all the waste pieces—head, tails, fins, etc.—be put into a saucepan with a little water, or milk and water, and stewed for stock. When strained thus, stock should be just slightly thickened with flour, and poured over the pieces of fish in the pie-dish. Of course, the stock should be carefully strained through muslin. The crust of the pie may be of either potato or pastry, the latter being generally better liked.

Perhaps one of the most successful ways of dealing with this fish is to stew it, and send it to table covered with a good gravy. After preparing it as advised before, it should be placed in either a casserole, a gourmet boiler, or a jar, with the following ingredients:—A tablespoon of butter, a sliced onion, two teaspoons of chopped parsley, salt and pepper, and enough of milk, or milk and water, or water alone, to just cover it. Cook for 1½ hour, or till the eels are tender, and serve with good gravy.

From 2½lb to 3lb of eels should make a dish sufficient for six people. At the present price ruling for this fish it will be seen a good first course dinner dish can thus be obtained for very little over 1s. Very little meat, certainly not enough for six people, could be bought nowadays for that sum.

Mullet at the State shops costs to-day 5d a lb. Every housekeeper knows how to cook mullet and bream, though perhaps not every one knows how to buy them. If the mullet be destined for the frying pan, the smaller or medium-sized fish should be bought; if for boiling purposes, the medium. The very large kinds are apt to be coarse and over-oily, and should be avoided.

Of other varieties another day; but let us just touch, in passing, upon the price of some of them. Snapper is 7d, flathead 6d, fehn Dory 7d, Sergeant Baker 9d, nannegai 7d, and morwong 8d a lb.

* * * * *

Eggs and potatoes are both good and cheap at present, Sussex-street reporting very plentiful supplies of both the very useful foodstuffs. Indeed, no housekeeper who can buy cheap potatoes, eggs, and fish need wear a very deep worry frown on her forehead.

Poultry is, as usual, dear; but it will be much dearer in the near future. The wise housewife is even now fattening her Christmas poultry on waste pieces from her kitchen. That is a very commendable way of saving. Eggs should also be laid away in preservative; lemons be stored, and all the laying-by for the rainy day (or dear Christmas tide approaching) that can be managed. Citrus fruits are all dearer. Large good oranges cost 1½d or 2d each, very large, very good ones 4d, 5d, and even 6d. Strawberries are exceedingly cheap, 1/3 to 2/ a punnet, and that very pretty fruit, the cherry, has put in its welcome appearance again. Of course it is dear yet—2/6 a lb for the special variety, 2/, 1/6, and 1/ a lb for the less choice sorts. Still, the 1/ a lb variety is very good indeed, and it will be much cheaper soon. Loquats are 5d a dozen, and pineapples 9d apiece; good asparagus, 1/3 a bundle.

A HINT.

Recently I availed myself of the excellent offer made by the War Chest authorities and secured a supply of wool to be knitted into socks for our boys at the front. The parcel contained a printed slip with directions, to the effect that the socks when completed were to be put into cold water and brought to the boil.

In the early days of the war it was my invariable custom to boil the socks to set the dye and remove impurities, until the boys complained that they were not getting the service from the socks that might be expected.

A wool expert advised me that wool should never be boiled, as the boiling removed certain constituents which seriously affected the lasting property of the wool. Thorough washing in almost cold water was just as effective in removing impurities and setting the dye. This advice has been confirmed by the experience of my soldier friends.

A CHEAP PIECE OF FURNITURE.

In these days, when everything is so dear, people are glad of hints for making inexpensive furniture. Recently I saw a delightful bookcase and writing table combined, which had been made from an ordinary kitchen dresser. The doors of the cupboard part had been removed, and a piece of wood—large enough to make room for the feet of a person sitting at the table part—sawn out of the bottom of it, leaving a low shelf on either side, and enough wood across the back to give strength to the whole thing. The cuphooks from the shelves had been taken out, the holes filled up, and the whole thing stained with a light stain. The shelves were filled with books; the space between the bottom shelf and the back part of the table was used for part of a collection of blue china plates, which were kept in place by a little strip of pine tacked along the table, and, of course, stained. The table part was furnished with a handsome hand-worked blotting book, a brass inkstand, letter scales, and so on, and decorated with a blue china bowl of flowers. On one side of the bottom shelf a pretty waste-paper basket was placed, and on the other a holder for magazines. On the top of the bookcase were three large vases, and the drawer was used for letters and stationery.

HOME AFFAIRS.

CAKES.

At the thought of Christmas looming very near, many correspondents ask questions about cake-making, and various kindred arts. Economy is aimed at by most of us now, and there are some very good cakes that can safely claim a place under that head, while at the same time they are dainty and appetising. Some cooks turn out almost perfect cakes, while in the hands of another, the same ingredients will resolve themselves into perfect failures! Where, then, is the fault? It may lie in one of many points, the oven, its temperature, the beating of the mixture, the order in which the ingredients are put in, and a general knack. Cooks who approach their cake-making as if it were a solemn ritual very often fail, through over anxiety and nervousness; while the experienced and apparently careless cook will toss together a cake that could not be surpassed. Some cooks require the best butter, and then the cake is nothing to boast about, while another will cheerfully use good beef dripping, and make of it something that the children will dream about for its niceness.

Strictly speaking a fuel stove lends itself better than a gas stove to the baking of these dainties. But there is no reason why cakes should not be well baked by the latter means. This is a well-tried hint for the oven. Have the bottom shelf (under the jets) filled nearly to the top with clean dry beach sand. That conserves and equalises the heat. This sand need only be changed at long intervals. The temperature of the oven should be tested by putting in a piece of white paper, but we all know that! Does everybody know how sensitive a baking cake is to shock? Every time the oven door is closed with a bang the cake feels it acutely in what answers to its nervous system. Then again, big cakes need a moderate oven, small cakes a quick oven. The tins should be put high up in the stove as far away from the jets as possible, and sometimes a dish with a thin layer of hot sand, placed on the shelf beneath, keeps off that exasperating state of being black underneath and doughy on top. The oven, of course, should be the right heat before the cake is put in.

To make a Christmas cake that the children will enjoy, you need only take three eggs and their weight to sugar, butter, and flour; always sift flour for cake-baking. Mix a little salt with the flour. Beat butter and sugar together to a cream, add any flavouring liked (and do not overdo the essence; too much flavouring often spoils a cake). Then beat in the eggs one at a time, beat well, add flour last, and any fruit liked. Do not quite fill the tin. The heat should not be allowed to lessen at all.

Little afternoon tea cakes are made in patty pans, well greased. Take 1lb flour, about ½lb sugar, 1 cup of milk, ¼lb butter, 3 eggs, small spoonful carbonate of soda, and twice as much cream of tartar, or two spoonfuls good baking powder. Mix dry things first, then put in milk, then eggs, already beaten; lastly, beat in the batter. Sprinkle on top currants, or chopped dried cherries or peel, or carraway seeds. Bake quickly.

EMBROIDERY HINTS.

Have you ever realised how easy it is to mark out scallops for button holing any size you happen to want them? Try this plan. Take a small reel of cotton and a soft pencil if the material you are using is a light one, or a piece of chalk if material is dark. If the scalloping is to be straight, draw a straight line just along where it should go. Then, taking the reel in your left hand, press it firmly down on the material, and with the pencil mark half way round the reel. Draw the reel back about an eighth of an inch, or slightly more if you want your scalloping to be rather deep, and again mark the material half way round the reel. You will then have a beautiful clear scallop, and can continue marking out your pattern in the same way all along the straight line you have drawn.

If I want a small scallop I use a sixpence, or small bottle. For a circular piece of work, I mark my round out first, as unless one has a definite mark to follow the scallop marking is sure to be uneven. Twisted embroidery silk is more satisfactory to use, and when working the scallops button-hole right up to the utmost point at the end of each, then slip the needle under and begin the next about an eighth of an inch below the point. Scallops done in this way never tear.

Hand-made embroidered blouses and lingerie should always be laundered at home. The ironing is the most important part. A special ironing cloth should be kept for this purpose. A piece of heavy cotton felt, such as is used for covering a dining-room table, is the best thing to use as an ironing cloth. Fold it in two, and fasten the edges together. The embroidery should be laid on this, right side down, then covered with a thin damp cloth and ironed with a moderately hot iron. The worked parts will stand out beautifully if treated in this way. After the cloth has served its purpose, it should be wrapped in paper and put away where it is not likely to get soiled or dusty. A clean cloth is half the battle. The daintiest of lingerie will show a marked improvement if treated in this simple way.

SUMMER MODES.

ANNUAL COMPETITIONS.

A large and enthusiastic gathering attended on Saturday, in the Great Hall of the University, for the annual competition of Girls and Mothers' Clubs, organised by the Sydney University Women's Settlement.

Among those on the dais were Lady Cullen, Miss Louisa Macdonald, Mrs. MacCallum, Miss Henderson, Miss Fidler, Miss Newill, Miss Machem, Mrs. Fell, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Garnsey, Miss Hynes, Miss Henry, Miss Evans, Mrs. Starkey, Miss Lily Anderson (hon. sec.), Mrs. Trindall, Miss Hogg, Mrs. Bowden, and others. Mothers and friends of the competitors thronged both sides of the Great Hall in groups, that have of late years become familiar within its precincts. The competing clubs made a pretty picture. The uniforms worn at physical drill were neat and effective, and more than one comment was made upon the graceful appearance of the competitors. Among the clubs competing in the drill competition were the Presbyterian Settlement, Girls' F. S. Enfield, St. James,' Burwood, Central Methodist Mission, Rozelle Helping Hand Mission, Forest Lodge Methodist Girls' Club, and the University Settlement. In the senior drill, the shield was won this year by the University Settlement, and the junior by the Central Methodist Mission.

The song, "There's a Land," was rendered sweetly and pleasingly by members of the Mother's Club. The Folk dance also was entered into with full zest by the mothers, and much appreciated.

In the elocutionary competition, Rupert Brooke's poem "Blow out, you bugles, over the rich dead", and Campbell's "Ye Mariners of England", were well rendered. Dr. Tearne judged the singing, Miss McNicol the elocution, and both commended the work of girls and mothers.

In the remaining competitions keen interest was shown. These included knitting, plain sewing, darning, window gardening, essay writing. The elderly prize winners received their prizes with as much joy and gladness as the younger members, and carried off their "blue" in triumph. Lady Cullen, in presenting the prizes, spoke of the value of the competitions, how they helped all to become good sports, and increased the growth of courtesy and sympathy. Lady Cullen also spoke of her pleasure in again meeting an old friend, Sir Roger de Coverley, and complimented the competing clubs on their simplicity and taste in dress.

The fourteenth annual competition seemed to show that the work of the S.U.W.S. is steadily increasing in radius of influence. To many of its members the settlement has become a real part of their lives, and to university women the work of the settlement makes a special appeal. For years this neighbourhood work had gone steadily on. The foundations of firm friendship were laid years ago, and time has strengthened the links. During the last three years the common national sorrow and national need has drawn women closer than before. The settlement has its own place in the life of the neighbourhood, and the results of its work will come with the future. For women who are learning their first lessons of life in the shelter of university walls there can be no finer opportunity than the university settlement for close touch and understanding with those for whom life is very real and only rarely rose-coloured. The ministry of friendship here offered may be described in Portia's words, as "twice blessed," for her who gives and for her who takes.

THE SCOTTISH WOMEN'S HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Abbott, who is arriving in Sydney shortly to speak on the work done by the Scottish Women's Hospital, and to enlist our sympathies on its behalf, was accorded a largely-attended farewell on Friday in Brisbane, where she has been lecturing, having extended her tour to other parts of Queensland. The Queenslanders raised £6000 in answer to Mrs. Abbott's appeal, no inconsiderable sum, when appeals are being made broadcast throughout the land. It has passed into history how the Servian unit of this hospital, under Dr. Elsie Inglis, shared the horrors of the dreadful Servian retreat, and also how the unit recovered and rendered great aid to the poor, suffering people. We are allowing Servia to slip out of our memory somewhat; but that it is still at death grips with starvation is revealed by paragraphs in some of the English papers to hand by this week's mail. Lady Paget, the heroic and self-sacrificing wife of Sir James Paget, British Minister to that sad country, has been decorated with the order D.B.E. (Dame of the British Empire), in slight recognition of her efforts for the suffering Servians.

On another occasion, the Scottish Women's Hospital came to be much talked about. A unit offered itself for work in Mesopotamia, and the offer was declined, on the ground that Mesopotamia was no fit place for women. History exactly repeated what was said about Florence Nightingale's going to Scutari. If the unit had had its request granted, how much suffering and how many lives might have been spared?

A concert in aid of the 35th Battalion Comforts Fund, will be held at St. James's Hall, Phillip-street, on November 19, at 8 p.m. Mr. Charles Smythe is the hon. musical director. Miss Elsie Iceton is the hon. secretary, at 18 Barrack-street.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

Lady Stanley, at the annual meeting of the Victorian Division of the Red Cross Society, stated that the success during the year had been most marked. A sum of £244,000 had been collected, more than £200,000, of which had been spent, leaving, roughly speaking, about £130,000, which would probably last about 12 months.

Miss Janet Henderson, at the request of Sir Alexander Peacock, the State Treasurer, has undertaken to deal with applications from families suffering from the effects of the strike. Miss Henderson has had great experience in philanthropic work in Melbourne.

There was a crowded audience at the Agricultural Department's Buildings to hear Miss A. Knight give an interesting talk on fruit and vegetable salads. The lecturer recommended salad eating to a much greater extent than is usual with us. She explained that salads, while seldom containing flesh-forming or heat-giving materials, are valuable because they introduce into the system large quantities of saline matter, which is often eliminated in cooking fruit or vegetables. Pickling fruits and vegetables was ably dealt with. These demonstrations are becoming more valued, judging by the increased attendance.

Good wishes follow Miss Gertrude Johnson, the young soprano (until recently a pupil of Madame Melba at the Albert street Conservatorium of Music), who has accepted an engagement with the Italian Opera Company for a Queensland tour. Miss Johnson has appeared with marked success in the operas Rigoletto and Pagliacci.

Sister M. McNiel who returned recently from abroad, was entertained at the Botanic Gardens by Miss McGillivray, who invited the Alfred Hospital nurses to meet their old colleague. Sister McNiel has been on military duty for two years. For service rendered in the Boer War she is entitled to wear the Queen Victoria and King Edward Ribbons. In that campaign she was attached to the Imperial Nursing Service Corps. Sister McNiel will shortly return to the front.

Every encouragement is being given to the appeal inaugurated by Mrs. Fred McCubbin, to assist blind soldiers by means of a Lucky Bag campaign. More than 30 leading firms in the city are guaranteeing thousands of these bags. At a general meeting of the mayoresses of all the suburban cities, active support was promised.

At the last meeting of the National Council of Women an interesting discussion took place on the training of nurses. It was agreed that the present 66-hour week should be reduced to 48 hours, in justice to both nurses and patients: that less cleaning work should be given nurses to do, and that there should be a reversion to the three years' term, instead of the present four years, with a possible fifth if midwifery, eye and ear work, or infectious diseases, training be added to the general course. Dr. Edith Barrett said that at present the medical profession recognised that it was useless giving lectures to nurses in the evening, as they were too tired to grasp the points of the subject. A radical change was imperative.

VERONICA.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

"Lee" writes:—A friend of mine who has been a great helped in Red Cross work in Kyabram (a country town in Victoria), has told me how a second-hand stall was introduced at a fair held there in aid of the funds, and it was a wonderful success. The town was scoured with requests for any article at all that was not required, or that had been put aside in lieu of newer goods, and a miscellaneous assortment came along. It was wonderful what "bargains" people got at this second-hand stall. Articles that could not be obtained "first hand" in some cases were to be had for a small sum. The promoters could afford to let them go cheaply. There were garden tools (that had been replaced with newer ones), and which yet had a long lease of life, half-used garden hose, flat irons, odd cups and saucers, a second-hand saddle, straps, and head-pieces of bridles, etc., and even a varied assortment of screws, nails, and bolts were eagerly "snapped" up, for it is marvellous how people come across "just the thing they want" in a collection like this. The array of articles looked somewhat formidable until they were sorted out and arranged, but the stall brought in a nice sum of money for the Red Cross, and was one of the features of the fair.

With all due respects to your contributor "L.N." on the subject of exercise, I beg to differ on the point that country girls walk more than city girls and look healthier (claims "L."). I lived all my life in the country until I was 20, and can safely say that all the walking exercise I and any of my friends ever took was an occasional stroll after sunset, for about a quarter of a mile and back. We never dreamt of walking at all. Always there is a horse to ride or drive, even the shortest distance, and often I have seen a man (and a woman, too), cheerfully chase a frisky horse around a paddock for half an hour in the blazing sun, with perspiration streaming from every pore, just to drive into the town, about a mile distant. In fact I have done it myself. Certainly one gets the exercise in that way!

In the belief that "this war will be won in the air," the Women's Reform League is making strenuous efforts to give a battleplane to the British Government. For this fund, at St. James's Hall on Saturday afternoon, Miss Grace Stafford will essay the title role in the comedy "All-of-a-Sudden-Peggy." Blattleplanes are called eyes of the army.

Rarely has a concert platform been more beautifully arranged than was the case at the entertainment given in St. James's Hall last Friday evening, in aid of the War Chest Fund. The staff of the Electric Light Department of the City Council improvised some novel and enchanting effects. Shafts of electric light in varied hues were directed from the back of the hall on to a fountain playing on the platform, which, throughout the evening, was suffused in a flood of coloured lights, while the scintillating and sparkling effects produced by the beams of light thrown upon the rising and falling jets of water were enchanting. The concert was under the direction of Mr. A. E. Y. Benham, and among those who contributed to the programme were Miss Lilian Gibson, Miss Alma Berge, Miss Ivy Allen (violin), Miss Winifred Carter (harp), Messrs. Benham, Leslie Herford, Ernest Archer, Harrison Allen, T. Rae, and a mandolin quartette, conducted by Signor Alberto Pansetta. The hall was crowded, and a substantial sum was realised for the War Chest.

The Kindergarten Union is working hard for the gadren fete, to be held on Saturday at the residence of Dr. Mander Jones, Wahroonga, in aid of the Devonshire-street Kindergarten. The members of this committee have Mrs. Mander Jones as president, and Mrs. Jackson as hon. secretary; their object is to raise money to build a kindergarten in Prince Alfred Park, on land granted by the City Council. Mr. W. G. Layton, Deputy Town Clerk, will open the fete.

SUMNER LOCKE; AN APPRECIATION.

Only a week or so ago I had a letter written in the firm, masculine-looking writing that signed "Sumner Locke" to so many stories and books. Readers both here and over the water have laughed at the humour of them, and yet her laughter-making was welded with a gift of pathos, strong and sincere. Some of her war stories brought the ache to the throat that is more painful than tears, since she realised so poignantly the "hardest part," the way of the woman who waits at home, the way which she knew and took so gallantly.

Somehow it is impossible to realise those brilliant, plucky letters, full of laughter-prompting phrases, will not come again, that she has written "finis" to the great big book of life, and yet one could never think of age and Sumner Locke.

Little and slim, with great, sad eyes, a mouth that laughed, and an immense quantity of curly, light, brown hair, she danced through life on her tiny feet, feminine in her appreciation of pretty clothes, and "fixings," masculine in her broad-mindedness and direct mentality, full of energy, plucky, and fearless and generous.

I think of our first meeting years ago at the house of another writer, Sumner Locke in a white dress and a big, black hat, welcoming a stranger with the warm-heartedness that was part of her, and talking with the originality that ran like a golden thread through everything she said and wrote.

She had not published any books then, but was facing the world with a pen in one hand and a portable typewriter in the other, full of a determination to succeed, which she brilliantly fulfilled.

If she had a pound she would insist upon giving 19s 11½d to a friend if she thought it was needed, and she would have given the other halfpenny, too, unless the friend were very firm. The opinion of the majority mattered nothing to her. She would have stuck to a friend through thick and thin, true-hearted to the last.

They come back with clearness, the laughs we had, for wherever she was there would be laughter; the plans for the future, the long, long discussions on books that were to be, the little funny things that lighten the way.

The title of one of her books not published yet is, "The Blue Sky Gentleman." She was a blue sky girl. In this last letter I have beside me she tells how gladly she came back from America, and the plaudits there to the blue Australian sky, and no matter how hard the moment was she always found a rift that showed a peep of blue sky somewhere. That is why I can't think of her as dead, only as a spirit that met death with a smile and has gone on alone, still laughing and undismayed.

THE TRUANCY ACT.

When the new Truancy Act came into force at the beginning of the year great expectations were aroused, and great hopes entertained as to the beneficial effect which should ensue, that is, of course, among those who have the interests of our young people at heart, and lovers of education in general. Such drastic action was foreshadowed that even the most callous and indifferent parents felt some qualms, and for a time the crowds of children who were daily to be seen in the street diminished, and the expectant teachers were gratified by an increased attendance, particularly of those whose reputation as "truants" was well known. Such were the terrors of the law, indeed, that many parents, who would not for the world be classed as law-breakers, tremblingly approached the Minister and asked "could they take their children with them as usual when going on their usual annual holiday," a permission, needless to say, most graciously granted. Acres of blue paper, with fearsome red lines and crosses all over them, were flourished in the faces of defaulting parents, and children—little children—were dragged from sick beds by mothers forced to be hard hearted, never knowing how "sick" you must be before you can escape the rigors of the law, and the whole State waited breathlessly to see what would happen, and who would be the first to suffer "victimisation." But, alas! for the hopes of men! Time went on; expectation, though somewhat wearied, still on tip-toe; teachers still used up quantities of blue paper and red ink, but nothing doing! The defaulters began to increase in numbers, the careless parents lost the little interest which fear had implanted, and matters very soon became "as you were." At long last a little action was taken. The Truant Officer came round, looked very fierce, and interviewed many children and some parents. Also he had sheets and sheets of blue paper, which the teachers instantly recognised as old friends. Once more there was a flutter. Now, who would be first? The stragglers made another frantic rush to school, and once more the streets were emptied. This, of course, did not last long. Off went the defaulters again, but at length a bolt from the blue—a batch of summonses. Now, if there is anything calculated to move the average parent it is to be "summoned," and to have the consequent disgrace of the visit of a man in blue, and to have to appear afterwards at the police court. So when the teachers heard of the summonses, being issued their hearts beat high with hope. It would be all right now, if only a few were made an example of. But alas! and again alas! the summonses were for the Children's Court, and were therefore received with every composure. Who cares about the Children's Court, where there are no disagreeable spectators, no taunting neighbours waiting to bestow sympathy; and the dreaded newspaper? There will be nothing in that; no inquisitive reporter may tread those sacred precincts, and give out to a world greedy for news the latest doings. So the parents calmly attend, pay the small fine (in many cases a speculation which pays large interest on the labour of children), and that is all there is to it. But why the Children's Court? These delinquent parents are not children, whose careers might be blemished by the ordinary police court atmosphere, and there is no reason whatever why the cases should be heard there. Those people who will not see to their children's education should be compelled to face a just exposure, and not allowed to shelter behind the pillars of the Children's Court. The force of public opinion and public obloquy is the one lever by which many of them can be moved, and it should be used. The fine is a mere nothing in comparison.

ARTS AND CRAFTS.

One of the most gratifying features of the exhibition of the Society of Arts and Crafts is the number of exhibits which have found purchasers. Since the opening of the show last Wednesday there has been a constant stream of visitors who were full of admiration for the deft handling of the many materials formed into such attractive articles.

More than one inspection is necessary to realise the extent of the work and the wide scope it covers. One small case is filled with most charming china pendants and brooches, the work of Mrs. Barker. These are painted in original designs, and are most novel slung on their slender chains. Miss M. Byrne shows a decidedly effective set of cups, which have been executed to order. The tiny sprays of red cherries on a blue ground are particularly artistic. These repose on a raffia-edged tray. Miss A. Newman's painted vases are well worthy of mention. A handsome oval mirror frame in oxydised brass is from the studio of Mrs. Soderberg. Hand-painted silk lamp shades are the work of Mrs. Dalgarno, who also shows some exquisite collars done in Georgette and having tiny sprays of hand-made flowers. Miss Myra Mullins (whose bound "Anzac" book will find a place in the National collection) is also represented by a goodly array of tooled leather note books, frames, and bags. Miss Nora Weston has a handsome book rest, with ends of beaten brass, done from a design by Miss Eirene Mort. Some small pieces of tooled leather-mounted furniture have been sold, and it is hoped that this section will prove a feature at the next exhibition. Meanwhile the workers are to be congratulated on a most artistic and creditable display, which will remain open to the public until the end of the week.

LAW REPORT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

A LOST FUR COAT.

Hoskins v Coles.

Mr. Alec Thomson, instructed by Mr. George Croaker, appeared for the appellant (plaintiff); and Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. O'Reilly, instructed by Messrs. Dawson and Herford, for the defendant, in support of the verdict. The action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four at the last September sittings, was brought by Jeanie Meek Hoskins, widow, against C. Coles, furrier, to recover compensation for the detention of a Russian dark grey squirrel fur coat, which had been sent by plaintiff to defendant for certain alterations, and which she valued at over £100. The coat, while still at defendant's establishment, had been stolen or lost. Plaintiff sued; not only for the return of the coat or payment of its value, but claimed £10 damages for detention. Defendant paid £25 into Court. The jury returned a verdict for defendant, thus holding that £25 was sufficient to compensate plaintiff. The plaintiff now appealed.

The Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Sly and Mr. Justice Gordon concurring) said that the determination of the appeal really depended upon the answer to the points raised in the third and fourth grounds of appeal, which alleged a misdirection by the Judge on the plaintiff's claim for detention. The other grounds, he thought, failed. The misdirection to the jury complained of was that there was no evidence of damage which would entitle the plaintiff to recover for the detention of the coat, and though no doubt there was no evidence of special damage, he thought, in the light of the case of the owners of the Mediana v owners, master, and crew of the Lightship Comet (1900 AC 113), that the circumstances of the present case necessarily implied some damage for deprivation of the article of dress, which left the owner in a worse position than she was previously. According to the case referred to, it was not necessary in order to entitle plaintiff to claim damages for wrongful deprivation of the property to adduce facts upon which special damage might be based. In these circumstances it seemed to him that the verdict must be set aside and a new trial ordered on both the issues raised by plaintiff's declaration; costs of the previous trial to be costs in the cause.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

ACTION ON A BANK.

CITY BANK v DEANE.

Mr. L. Armstrong, instructed by Messrs. Deane and Deane, appeared for the defendant in support of an appeal against the verdict; and Mr. Collins, instructed by Messrs. Leibius, Black, and Way, for plaintiff, to oppose. In the action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Pring without a jury on September 19, the City Bank of Sydney sued Henry Deane to recover £6,000 19s 8d upon a joint and several cash credit bond executed in favour of the bank by defendant and his brother, William Deane, who, at some time prior to 1894 and till June, 1903, were in partnership as solicitors. The bond was executed in 1894, and the defence filed was that the cause of action did not accrue within 20 years of the institution of the action. In its replication the plaintiff bank said that within the period mentioned an acknowledgment was made in writing by defendant, or his agent, of the debt, by part payment on account of principal and interest. By consent a formal verdict was entered for plaintiff in the amount claimed with leave reserved to defendant to appeal to the Full Court. He now moved to have the verdict set aside and entered for him or a non-suit or a new trial granted on various grounds

The case is part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

TESTATOR'S FAMILY MAINTENANCE.

Mr. W. W. Monahan, instructed by Mr. A. C. Hobbs, appeared in support of the application of John Chapman, of Sydney, special constable, for adequate provision for his maintenance out of the estate of his late wife, Mary Ann Chapman. Mr. S. A. Thompson, instructed by Mr. H. E. M'Intosh, appeared for Francis Frederick Jordan, executor of Mrs. Chapman's estate.

The applicant deposed that he and his wife had lived together on very friendly terms. They were married in 1910. Her estate was of the net value of £1300, of which £925 was realty, and £318 money in a bank. She left her husband £5, and devised the balance of her estate to her children by a previous marriage, who were alleged to be in comfortable circumstances.

His Honor made an order for the payment to the applicant of £150 out of the estate, in addition to the £5 left him under the will.

ORIGINATING SUMMONS.

Perpetual Trustee Co. v Mackenzie.

This was a matter in which the Court was asked to determine certain questions relating to the will of the late George William Harris, who died last January. Mr. R. K. Manning appeared for the plaintiff, the Perpetual Trustee Company, Ltd.; Mr. F. R. Jordan for the defendant, Jane Mackenzie; Mr. F. J. Bethune for the defendant, Blanche Stewart, and Mr. E. S. Bonney, for the infant defendant, William James Stewart. Mr. F. W. Barker was the instructing solicitor for all parties.

The Court was asked to decide on the priority of certain legacies, and also as to the payment of Federal stamp duty. The case is part heard.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION COURT.

(Before Judge Rolin.)

UNION SECRETARY FINED.

John Hutchinson, secretary of the Cobar branch of the Engine Drivers and Firemen's Federation, was cited to show cause why he should not be penalised for taking part in a strike at the Cobar smelting mines last July. Mr. T. R. Bavin, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., appeared for the Cobar Smelting Association; and Mr. J. A. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. Macgregor and Palmer, for the respondent. Affidavits in support of the application were read.

His Honor said a result of the strike was that a mine paying £1300 in wages per fortnight had to close down, and 200 men were thrown out of work. The respondent had said that he was opposed to the strike. Union secretaries who were made agents to enforce the men's demands were often placed in a difficult position. The real crux of the matter was that the respondent had placed his duty as secretary to the union above his duty to his country, and demanded, by directions, certain increases in wages. This was clearly aiding in a strike, just as the man who provided a burglar with a black mask and a lantern aided in a burglary.

On the whole, concluded his Honor, the respondent secretary was a law-abiding man, so far as his union permitted. A fine of £5, with £5/5/ costs, was imposed. Payments are to be allowed at the rate of 10/ a week.

An application for a stay of proceedings was refused.

SHOP ASSISTANTS.

His Honor made an award of the Court, till the end of the year, a mutual agreement between the Shop Assistants and Warehouse Employees' Federation of Australia (represented by Mr. M. J. Connington) and the Country Traders' Association of N.S.W. (represented by Mr. J. H. King). Among the conditions agreed to were wages for male employees from 10/ to £1/ a week, and for females from 10/ to 40/.

WOOL AND BASIL WORKERS.

Mr. Justice Heydon cancelled the registration of the Wool and Basil Workers' Association as an industrial union. His Honor's judgment is reported elsewhere.

QUARTER SESSIONS APPEALS.

Judge Backhouse presided in the Quarter Sessions Appeal Court yesterday.

The proceedings in the case of T. D. Mutch are reported elsewhere.

Randell Hilersley appealed against a sentence of six months' imprisonment imposed upon him by Mr. Clarke, S.M., at the Central Police Court on August 10, on a charge of wearing a military uniform, he being an unauthorised person. The appeal was dismissed, but the sentence was reduced to one month in gaol.

Thomas William Jackson, convicted by Mr. Burton Smith, D.S.M., at the Central Police Court, Sydney, on August 21, on two charges of stealing, and sentenced to one month in gaol on each charge, the sentences to be cumulative, appealed. The convictions were confirmed, but permission was given to the appellant to petition for his release at the expiration of one month.

Clyde Franks, or Frankston, was ordered by Mr. Love, S.M., at the Water Police Court on September 10, to serve a sentence of four months in gaol on a charge of being a suspected person, and now appealed. Appeal allowed, with 21s costs.

Liddell Macarthur, convicted at Kogarah on August 1 by Mr. Smithers, S.M., on a charge of using insulting words, and ordered to enter into a recognisance of £10 to be of good behaviour, or serve a month in gaol, appealed, and his appeal was upheld, with 21s costs.

MALIGNING THE POLICE.

T. D. MUTCH'S CASE.

Judgment was delivered by Judge Backhouse, in the Quarter Sessions Appeal Court yesterday in the appeal of Thomas Davies Mutch, M.L.A., against a conviction by Mr. Payten, S.M., in the Water Police Court, on September 7, on a charge of using insulting words. It was alleged for the prosecution that the appellant, in a speech in the Domain on August 19, said: "I regard the detectives standing there, with their arms folded, and the one taking notes—I regard these detectives as nothing else than but paid mental prostitutes of the tyrannical capitalistic class of this country, who, by their distorted statements and perjury, convict many an innocent individual before a class-biassed magistrate." Appellant was ordered to enter into a recognisance of £50 and find two sufficient sureties in £15 each, or one in £30 to be of good behaviour for twelve months; in default to be imprisoned in Long Bay Penitentiary for a term not exceeding two months; also to pay £2 18s costs, in default seven days in gaol.

His Honor dismissed the appeal, and confirmed the order, with £3 3s costs, to be paid to the Clerk of the Peace within fourteen days.

CHARGES OF PERJURY.

As a sequel to prosecutions of members of the I.W.W. in September, Mr. Macfarlane, S.M., heard charges of perjury yesterday afternoon against two of the persons dealt with in those prosecutions.

Hyam Isserman, alias Michael Smith, was charged with committing perjury at the Central Police Court, Sydney, on September 18. The occasion was one on which accused was charged with being a member of an unlawful association, and in giving evidence in his own defence he swore that he was not a member of the I.W.W., that he had not any connection with it, and had not sold any of its literature.

Several police witnesses were now called, and deposed that accused was in the habit of attending I.W.W. meetings in the Domain and at Darlinghurst, that he had been at that body's rooms in Sussex-street, and was there when the rooms were raided by the police in July last, and had frequently offered its literature for sale. When the rooms were raided accused gave his name as Michael Smith, but afterwards, when his lodgings were searched a quantity of correspondence in the name of Isserman was discovered in his portmanteau, as well as an I.W.W. member's badge, and copies of I.W.W. publications. He subsequently admitted that his name was Isserman.

Accused, who is now serving a sentence imposed upon him on the date in question, was committed for trial.

Abraham Marks was charged with a similar offence, committed in similar circumstances, on September 11. The evidence given in support of this charge was to the same effect as that in the preceding one. The hearing of the case was not concluded.

AT THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In reply to our friend, Mr. Loxton, K.C., we would like to say that in this matter we see no advantage in playing the role of Don Quixote. Unlike him, we do not think it is practical politics to expect recently-elected members of Parliament to plunge so early into the cold waters of a general election. Further, we remember that the National Party pledge at the last general election was, shortly, "No conscription without a referendum." In these circumstances we regard the proposed petition, which puts forward in a short way much fairer conditions of compulsory service than were submitted at the last referendum and conditions more likely to be acceptable, as the only practical means left open to the people to test the matter again. Hence we intend to persevere with it.

All we need say further is to remind Mr. Loxton of Bairnsfather's hero, "If you knows of a better 'ole, get to it." We don't.

But there is a suggestion that we would make, which is, that in the event of a referendum being taken the position would be much improved should the Federal Government announce that it would resign if a majority of "yes" votes were not obtained. This does not mean an immediate dissolution, but has practically all the advantages which Mr. Loxton thinks would follow from one.

We are, etc.,

GERALD R. CAMPBELL,
F. A. A. RUSSELL,
Joint Hon. Secs.,
N.S.W. Referendum Petition Committee.

BUILDINGS AND WORKS.

BUILDERS LABOURERS' CASE.

ACTION BY MASTER BUILDERS.

The extraordinary position created by Mr. Justice Higgins in his recent decision in the builders labourers' case, led to a special meeting of the Master Builders' Association yesterday. The position was outlined by the secretary. Notwithstanding that Mr. Justice Higgins' Court was one of conciliation as well as arbitration, and that the employers and employees had come to an agreement by conference, to adopt 48 hours per week, his Honor refused to confirm the agreement. The present position, therefore, was that they had three awards affecting builders' labourers in the State of New South Wales, two awards made by Mr. Justice Higgins, one of which gave 44 hours and the other 48 hours, and one by the State Court, giving 48 hours. The rate of wages under the two Federal awards was 1s 6d per hour; in one case the overtime had to be paid at the rate of time and a half after 44 hours, and in the other case overtime at the rate of time and a half after 48 hours. In the State award the rates of wages fixed, after a lengthy hearing of the Wages' Board and an appeal to the Industrial Arbitration Court, were 1s 6d for hod-carriers and 1s 5d for all other builders' labourers. Some employers, of course, were under the State award only, others were under one Federal award and one State award; others again were under the other Federal award and the State award, and, assuming that the last Federal award was made against those respondents who were mentioned in the plaint, there would be quite a few builders who were bound by both Federal awards and the State award.

Mr. Pringle outlined the main points in the judgment, and contended the whole proceedings were absurd. He stated that as matters were at present, there was nothing but industrial unrest.

Mr. Williamson said the Gilbertian review of the case had tickled quite a number of people, but it was a serious matter for the industry. The position was intolerable. It was most surprising that in a Conciliation Court, when conciliation was attempted, the Court refused to deal with it, and proclaimed compulsion as being the spirit of the Court. The people had been looking for a little more conciliation and less arbitration; in other words, a little more common sense and less law, but the action of Mr. Justice Higgins had killed all such desires. After both parties had agreed upon a course to settle a dispute the Judge refused to allow this to be done. He thus prevented the industry being placed upon a proper footing.

The chairman, Mr. Foster, said one of the highest public men of this country, when told of the case, said he did not believe the Judge had made such an order, but when the facts were explained to him he remarked, "The Judge's action is simply incredible."

Mr. G. P. Jones moved:—"That this association deplores the action of Mr. Justice Higgins in refusing a variation of the award recently asked for by joint representation from employers and employees, and that the case be brought under the notice of the Federal and State Ministries, with a view to having the Industrial and Arbitration Acts amended, and that the matter be left in the hands of the executive of the association to deal with."

The resolution, which was seconded by Mr. W. Williamson, was carried unanimously.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

With almost painful clearness of vision he saw again the evening when he asked her to marry him—the pale green sky in the West, the brightness of the evening star; the fragrances of pinks and Scotch roses that grew in the bed round the lawn, the insistent notes of a blackbird's voice. All these seemed to be inextricably mingled with the memory of Nina's face and Nina's voice when she promised to be his wife. She had smiled up into his face when he drew her for the first time into his arms, and he could have sworn that her eyes were alight with love; and the very words she had said in her pretty ringing voice still echoed in his brain.

"I couldn't be anything but true to you, dear; I love you so."

The man walking at such a rapid pace between the budding elms smiled sardonically. "I couldn't be anything but true to you." Yet, six months from that day, when she had plighted her troth to him in the garden that was fragrant with Scotch roses and pinks, Nina Mardley had married Archibald Danvers, a rich elderly friend of the Squire of her father's parish. John recalled every word of the prettily penitent letter he received from her begging for his forgiveness; and remembering every syllable of it, with such exactitude, he laughed aloud out there on the dusty highway. She begged him to forgive her—oh! yes, the expressions of penitence had been very well turned; the plea for forgiveness had been framed in most suitable language, he did not deny either of those facts. She had added that she had discovered she did not care for him in quite the right way, consequently she felt she could not, she ought not, to marry him, and would be still go on being her friend, even though she could not be his wife. Again John laughed, and this time a single passer-by heard him, and looked at him with a nervous start, wondering whether he had suddenly gone mad.

Nina had jilted him for a richer man. That was the plain and ugly truth in plain and ugly words; and he shuddered even to remember the black pit of misery into which he had fallen when he realised that the girl he had so wholly loved and trusted was unworthy of his love or trust. The bottom of his love had gone to pieces on the rocks, and with utter recklessness he had allowed it to sink in a whirlpool of despair.

Perhaps he could have fought through that bitter and terrible time if only old Dan Simpson had not died in so mysterious a way. John kicked a stone savagely out of his path as the old memories poured into his mind. Dan Simpson had died, and people declared the doctor was to blame. The death was laid at Canterley's door, and to Canterley himself that death was still quite unaccountable.

CHAPTER V.

"YOU WON'T BE DULL WHEN YOU'RE LESS LONELY."

The memory of Dan Simpson's death and of all the circumstances attendant upon that death filled John Camberley's mind during the remainder of his homeward walk, and, as he had done scores of times before, he went over and over again in his mind all those circumstances which at the time had seemed so inexplicable; which even now seemed to him to admit of no explanation. But the blame had fallen upon him; and although at the inquest he had escaped anything more than a grave censure from the coroner, his fellow-townspeople had ever since shown him with unmistakable clearness that for his medical ministrations they had no taste; and tongues had wagged and heads had been shaken over him in a way which would have driven many men out of the place for ever, shaking its dust with loathing from their feet. But John Camberley, whatever his faults and failings, was not made of the stuff which runs away from disaster. A certain dogged strain in his character prevented him from leaving the house of his fathers, even though those who had been friends of his family turned their backs upon him and would have none of him. Walking along the road on that April afternoon, he shrugged his shoulders, and laughed aloud for the third time, much as he had laughed and shrugged his shoulders four years before when men and women first began to cross the street hurriedly, or look the other way when they saw him coming; when old acquaintances gave him no greeting, when he was shunned by those who had once smiled upon him and welcomed him. Well, he reflected, after that his practice had dwindled to nothing; he himself had gone to the devil—and he deliberately chose to go to the devil in Marsdale, because of a certain pride and doggedness which refused to allow him, as he put it, to be hounded out of the place. With these thoughts pulsing through his brain it can be understood that he reached his house in no enviable frame of mind; and as he let himself in with his latch-key, he was still so absorbed in his own dour thoughts that the sudden opening of the door violently when a small figure rushed across the hall to greet him. The events of the afternoon had driven Sylvia completely out of his mind; the sight of her came to him with a distinct shock of surprise, not unmixed with dismay. Brentwood's little girl had forgotten her very existence.

The meeting with Nina, the mental turmoil brought about by that meeting, the reopening of old wounds and the old pain, had wiped a sponge over more recent events, and there was more of bewilderment than of anything else in his glance as it fell upon Sylvia.

"I am glad you've come back," she cried, not noticing his bewildered expression. "I was most dreadfully afraid you were going to be late, and please you've got to come and have tea with me. I've brought it up myself into your study."

"Oh, have you?" John said dully, trying to infuse some interest into his tones in response to Sylvia's eager accents. "What made you think of doing that?"

"I don't know. I just thought of it." Sylvia slipped a hand into his and looked up at him with a smile. "You see, it's rather lonesome for you having tea by yourself, and Dad always said it was jolly bad for any man to be lonesome. He said sometimes they saw blue devils when they were lonesome.

"Dad was perfectly right," John answered with a harsh laugh. "Lonesome people have plenty of unpleasant experiences—blue devils amongst them."

"So then we mustn't let you be lonesome," the child said with old-fashioned seriousness. "First of all, Mrs. Day said you mightn't like me coming to have tea in your study, but when I said it was a pity you should be lonesome, then she let me—and she said, 'Well, I never, out of the mouth of babes!' and lonesomeness is a trial."

Her quaint reproduction of the housekeeper's voice and phraseology brought a smile to John's face; and as he and Sylvia went hand in hand to study, some of the overwhelming weight which had lain heavy on his soul all the afternoon seemed to be lifted away.

"You see, I've tidied the study up a bit," Sylvia said, as they entered the room; "but was in the most fearful mess. I don't know when I ever saw a much untidier room. It was all higgledy-piggledy, anyhow. I can't think how you ever found any of your things." She looked at him with a certain old severity. "But there! I believe all men are untidy. Dad's room was always in a muddle as soon as ever my back was turned. I did tidy up a lot after him." John laughed, but as he glanced round his study he was aware of a difference in it, and of a very pleasant difference. The chaotic jumble of papers on the table had been arranged neatly into heaps; the huddle of pipes upon the mantelpiece had been disentangled, and the pipes now lay in serried rows each in its own place; a vase full of anemones made a refreshing patch of colour against the drab wallpaper, and the books which had been heaped pell-mell upon every available chair were put away into the shelves. Newspapers, which had lain in confusion just where he threw them, were now piled together in a corner, and the whole room seemed to have acquired an air of being tended and cared for, which gave John an unaccustomed sense of pleasure.

"I found these flowers in the garden," Sylvia said, nodding towards the yellow daffodils; "but my goodness! I can't think how ever they managed to grow with all those lots and lots of weeds. There are just a few poor flowers trying to poke through, but it must be hard work for them"—she chuckled softly—"the weeds are so big and strong, and they go pushing themselves everywhere, so as the poor flowers don't get a chance. I think we'll have to see to the garden very soon," she ended, with a wise shake of her head: "we can't let the poor pretty flowers be all choked and spoilt by those great pushing weeds. I haven't ever seen an English garden before, but I shouldn't think it ought to look like this one looks."

"No, you are quite right, it ought not," John spoke abruptly; "it ought to be a very decent garden."

"Then let you and me make it a very decent garden," Sylvia said earnestly; "it won't be very hard to do, will it? If only Dad was here, couldn't we be happy together, we three—you and Dad and me; and Dad would have helped us make the garden nice. He liked to have a garden tidy, even though he wasn't very tidy in his room. Still, he wouldn't have liked that untidy garden here, nor yet this dull room." She looked round the dreary apartment thoughtfully.

GUARANTEED FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS. THE "BEALE" PLAYER-PIANO.
Do you know of any other Piano maker in the world who will guarantee his Piano for 25 years? We don't. Yet, if a maker has confidence in his instrument, is there any reason for not showing it?
We know the excellence of the "Beale" Piano, and guarantee it to stay in perfect condition for 25 years at least. And, what is more, if any mechanical defect DOES develop within that time, our factory is right here in Australia, where you can call on us to make good. A guarantee from any foreign maker would be almost impossible to enforce—even if he would give a guarantee. Call and hear the "Beale" Piano—Player or straight type.

ON THE LAND.

WHEAT SUPPLY AND EXPORT.

A recent statement by the general secretary to the Millers and Mill Employees' Union that a number of city mills were on the eve of giving their employees notice unless supplies of wheat were forthcoming owing to the small supply on hand, has aroused considerable comment. There would be something extraordinary, considering that the country contains such an enormous supply of wheat, in such a development, and it is a foregone conclusion that the community would demand an ample explanation from whoever was responsible. According to the Minister for Agriculture, however, there is no warrant for alarm in this connection. Referring to this matter yesterday, Mr. Grahame said:—"A mountain is being made out of a molehill as regards millers' supplies. At no period, as far as I know as chairman of the Wheat Board, has there been any likelihood of the city mills being closed down. There has always been enough wheat coming forward from the country to keep the city mills going."

Another matter brought under the Minister's notice was the condition of the wheat being shipped abroad. It is stated in shipping circles that for several weeks a boat has been held up because the captain refused to accept delivery of a cargo of wheat on account of its quality. It was complained that portion of it was infested with weevils. We are informed that the wheat is being discharged from this particular boat, and that it will be loaded with another lot of grain. It is also asserted in shipping circles that grain infested with weevils has been shipped away on other occasions. Mr. Grahame declined to discuss the matter beyond saying:—"The balance of the 1915-16 crop, which is a small quantity, will be used entirely by the millers, and no more will be shipped away. Future shipments from New South Wales will consist of new wheat. No more old wheat will be exported."

STATE WHEAT OFFICE.

Mr. R. S. Drummond, who has been appointed to take charge of the State Wheat Office, takes up duty to-morrow, but may spend a day or two in the country, inspecting some of the wheat stacks before coming to Sydney. Referring to Mr. Drummond's appointment, the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. W. C. Grahame, yesterday stated he had received letters and telegrams from a number of farmers and settlers' associations, and from individual farmers, approving of the appointment. "I think," added Mr. Grahame, "the Government is lucky in securing the services of such a man, with a lifelong experience of wheat. Seeing that the next, and perhaps, the following crop, is likely to be kept in this country for some years, a man with Mr. Drummond's knowledge should be invaluable. He is a man who has attained marked success in business, having amassed a fortune, and, influenced largely by patriotic considerations, is leaving a business in which he can earn very much more than he will receive from managing the pool. As already mentioned in the "Herald" his recent trip to England, and investigations in connection with wheat, will be of value in his new work. Mr. Harris has done remarkably well in the office, but the thing has grown too large for any one man to manage. He will remain in the office as lieutenant to Mr. Drummond, and his knowledge of what has been done will be very valuable, and make the position much easier for the new manager."

FRUITGROWING.

At a meeting of fruitgrowers convened by the Hawkesbury District Fruitgrowers' Association, and held at Lower Portland, it was unanimously decided to establish a branch of the Fruitgrowers' Association of New South Wales. The matter of wharfage charges on fruit sent to Sydney was discussed, and a deputation was elected to wait upon the Harbour Trust at an early date.

THE IRRIGATION AREAS.

REPLY TO MINISTER.

Mr. W. J. Adams writes, replying to the Minister for Agriculture:—The Farmers' Union did pass a resolution declining to give the Commission any information regarding additional areas until a board had been appointed to consider the question. The Minister says the settlers are being consulted. They are being asked by circular what land they require, and what financial assistance, etc. But they have no say in what constitutes a living area of the different classes of land. It seems unreasonable to ask men who have had no previous experience on the land how much land they require, particularly when the rent to be charged is not known. The additional poor land can't possibly be accepted at their present rentals. The Farmers' Union claims that a board of experienced men, with the settlers represented, should be appointed (temporarily), presided over by an independent chairman of business qualifications—(a) to reclassify the land in the light of the experience of the last six years; (b) to inquire into the requirements of the various industries and the quality and quantity of land such industries demand; (c) with this knowledge to redesign the area.

For over two years there has been a clear-cut difference of opinion between the Farmers' Union and Mr. Grahame and his official advisers regarding the condition of the area and its needs. Judge Bevan's report has completely upheld the union's contentions, as published and submitted to the Government and the Press two years ago. It follows, therefore, that the report convicts Mr. Grahame and his advisers of a culpable ignorance of the situation, and places upon their shoulders the heavy responsibility for the results of the last two years' policy of drift. There is only one way for the Minister and his ill-informed advisers of the past two years to escape the force of this verdict, and that way is to succeed in discrediting the Judge's report in the eyes of the Cabinet and Parliament. If this Commission should succeed in convincing the Cabinet, and apparently they have for the time being, that the Judge's findings were in the majority of cases inaccurate, it naturally follows that the report generally would be quite discredited as a guide to the Government, and his Honor's general comments on the situation and his references to the need of a special redesigning board would have little weight. Considering the lengthy and searching nature of the inquiry, and the practical methods adopted by Judge Bevan, such a treatment of his report is a serious matter.

ENLARGING THE CANAL.

"Doubtful" writes.—I notice the Minister for Agriculture and chairman of the Irrigation commission is asking Parliament for a sum of money to enlarge the main canal. This is a big, expensive, and difficult undertaking, and will cost, I venture to think, much more than the present estimate. Is this expenditure warranted at the present uncertain stage of the doubtful permanency of the whole scheme? It is full time that the ratepayers of the State took some interest in this area, and as one of them I would like to have the following questions answered:—

First.—How many farms over the area of 5 (five) acres have been settled on the whole area since the introduction of the scheme?

Second.—How many farmers have held the total number of farms that have been occupied? Some farms have had three or more owners.

Third.—How many farms have been granted to original applicants within the last two (2) years?

Fourth.—How many farms have been abandoned or forfeited within the same period?

If it is found that there is less land under intense culture on the area than there was two years ago—I contend there is—the taxpayers of New South Wales should be informed why it is intended to increase the flow of the main canal. If the present area under occupation cannot be made a permanent and reasonably prospective paying proposition with more than sufficient water for the area, what justification is there for this great expenditure at the present time? Some contend this land is not suitable for irrigation. It has been proved—with little exception—that it will not grow lucerne, for which at one time, it was maintained it was specially suited. Why should it be assumed that other lines, such as fruit, vegetables, etc., are going to be an unqualified lasting success? I say lasting, as I have some knowledge of the district and have not found fruit trees always lasting under the most favourable conditions.

The Government might well consider further, the permanency of this scheme, before committing the country to so great an expenditure on top of what it has already cost, and what it must cost the country to maintain. I am well aware that the present canal is not capable of carrying sufficient water to irrigate all the irrigable land embraced in the scheme. The question is: "Is it advisable to expend any more money on the scheme until it has proved itself a sound proposition further than to maintain past expenditure, until such time as the scheme has proved a success?"

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

At the monthly meeting of the council of the Royal Agricultural Society, Mr. Samuel Hordern presiding, it was decided to cover all butter exhibits at the next show with glass, and also to make arrangements for having the exhibits better protected from the heat from the windows of the hall. It was decided to establish a class at the Royal Show for district collections of pears, to be on practically the same conditions as the district collection of apples, the prize money to be £30. The horse committee had considered details of the programme for the night sessions at the show, and it was decided to include an open hunting contest, and an event for three-year-old trotters and pacers, unhoppled. Some minor events were added, and a sub-committee was appointed to arrange for some military contests to be conducted at night.

Mr. Alban O. Gee was elected a member of the council, to fill a vacancy caused by the elevation of Mr. J. H. S. Angus to the position of vice-president.

On the motion of Mr. Henry Dawson, a resolution of congratulation was conveyed by the council to Mr. P. H. Morton, owner, and Mr. Samuel Hordern, breeder, of Bronzetti, winner of the Caulfield Cup.

FRUIT DISTRIBUTION.

The Fruit Distribution Committee met yesterday. The Under-Secretary and Director of Agriculture (Mr. Valder) was present for a time. The committee expects to be able to make a definite announcement in the course of a few days when certain negotiations are complete. The secretary, Mr. E. P. Crowther, would be glad to receive any suggestions for the consideration of the committee, which may be sent care of the Department of Agriculture.

COMPULSORY DIPPING.

CASINO.—A public meeting was held at Kyogle to discuss the compulsory dipping of cattle. The chairman, Mr. R. E. Alcorn, pointed out that when the Minister visited the district over a year ago he was told that the people would consent to compulsory dipping of the cattle provided more dips were erected, a satisfactory dipping solution supplied, and the border made secure, and rough country where it was impossible to muster fenced off. Nothing, however, had been done, and under the existing conditions dipping was futile, as the cattle could not be kept under control. After a long discussion, the meeting decided to give compulsory dipping a trial by a narrow majority.

FARMERS' GRIEVANCES.

TAMWORTH.—A deputation consisting of Messrs. A. Matheson, J. Lord, and W. McRitchie, representing the Primary Producers' Union, waited on the Minister for the Navy, Mr. Cook, at the National party's rooms to place before him certain grievances respecting the working of the wheat pool. Mr. Lord said that they wished to bring under notice the damage that had been done to the wheat in stacks through the lack of supervision. Unripe wheat had been received by agents, and placed alongside first-quality wheat, with the result that in a very short time weevils infested the whole stacks. Agents had also been wanting in attention to the protection of stacks. When asked by Mr. Cook to make a suggestion to overcome these maters Mr. Lord said that he thought the best plan would be to appoint inspectors to travel the wheat-receiving centres, and report irregularities on the part of agents in accepting inferior wheat, and restacking it with the good quality grain, and for not protecting the wheat in stacks.

Mr. Cook said he thought the appointment of inspectors an excellent idea. He would make representations in the right direction with a view to having the appointment of inspectors duly considered. He thought that the erection of silos should be rushed on; if wheat could not be shipped then some provision must be made for safe storage, and in the event of the pool having large quantities on hand some other arrangement would have to be made for the producers to receive some payment for the wheat, which was a national asset.

DAIRYING.

CASINO.—The Kyogle Co-operative Dairy Company's half-yearly report showed 266 tons of butter were manufactured, as against 482 in the corresponding period last year. The average price realised for all grades was 16.3d per lb. Five thousand six hundred and fifty-nine pigs were slaughtered, an increase of 960 over the corresponding period last year. An average of 7d was paid for prime baconers. The balance-sheet showed a profit of £948 9s 1d, from which a bonus of ½d per lb to all local suppliers of pork absorbed £700. Messrs. E. N. Larkin, D. Mahony, and H. M. Wallace were re-elected directors.

AUSTRALIAN PRODUCE ABROAD

CHEESE.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

The maximum retail price of cheese imported from the United States, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand has been fixed at 1/4 per lb.

TALLOW.

At yesterday's auctions 978 casks were offered and 725 sold, prices in some cases being again rather higher. The following are closing quotations for Australasian sorts:—Mutton: Finest 71/ per cwt, good 70/6, fair to good 69/6 to 70/. Beef: Fine 72/, good 71/ to 71/6. Mixed: Good 60/ to 69/6, dull to fair 68/ to 68/6. All prices are net, and include 4/ per cwt for packages. During the month the warehouse stock has increased 2275 casks, or 7320 tons gross.

PELTS.

Quotations for Australian pelts are only nominal. Merino firsts are 28/ to 30/, and seconds and thirds 16/ to 20/ per dozen.

SHEEPSKINS.

No further auctions of sheepskins are expected to be held during Government control.

CANNED MEATS.

Canned meats are in but moderate demand. There have been no changes in quotations of late.

EVAPORATED FRUIT.

Australian evaporated apricots are quoted at Cardiff 168/ to 171/ per cwt.

RABBITSKINS.

For garments made up of rabbitskins—Coney seal—are more than three times the price they were before the war. Few shipments of these skins are arriving, and the market is very firm. Some small offerings will be available for the next sales on the 19th instant. The following are ruling quotations for Australian and Tasmanian sorts:—Selected winter, 4/6 to 5/10; good season, 3/ to 4/; fair to good season, 2/8 to 3/3; medium, 1/11 to 2/; common and low, 1/3 to 2/8; small and suckers, 1/1 to 2/6; black and fawn, /10 to 4/10½ per lb. Hareskins, 3/ to 11/6 per dozen.

HIDES, ETC.

In the Australian section at the last public sales of hides 1533 dry-salted horse hides and 1290 salted sheep pelts offered, none sold. The following quotations for Australian sorts are quite nominal:—Heavy ox, /13½ to /15½, seconds /13 and /14½; cow, /13½ to /14½ per lb. There were no Australasian offerings at the last leather sales.

APPLES.

The last consignment of Australian and Tasmanian apples struck an unfortunate train of circumstances. Speculation has been eliminated, cold stores are full, we are on the top of the English season, the embargo has been lifted off French fruit, and considerable quantities of pears have been coming in from France, and there is a shortage of sugar. The last factor brought the price of cooking apples down to as low, in some instances, as 2/6 per case. Some Tasmanian Sturmers brought up to 8/6. Had the fruit arrived three weeks earlier, there would have been a big difference in the prices realised.

MEAT.

The following are among the latest quotations at Smithfield market:—Beef, States chilled, hinds 7/8 to 8/4, fores 6/2 to 6/4; frozen hinds 5/4 to 8/, fores 4/4 to 6/4. Argentine: Chilled hinds, 8/8 to 8/4; fores, 6/2 to 6/6. Uruguayan: Chilled hinds, 7/2 to 7/8; fores, 5/4 to 5/8. Brazilian: Chilled hinds, 7/4 to 7/6; fores, 5/1 to 5/8. South African: Frozen hinds, 7/ to 7/6; fores, 5/4 to 5/8. Mutton, New Zealand and Australian not quoted; Plate, 7/8. Lamb, New Zealand, 7/; Australian, 7/; Argentine, 7/8; Patagonian, 7/8. Practically everything in the market yesterday made the maximum prices. Sellers are making 7/ to 7/3 per lb for frozen ox tails; ox hearts, 7/ to 7/3; ox livers, 6/8 to 7/; ox kidneys, 7/8 to 8/; ox cheeks, 5/4; tripe, 4/3 to 5/ per stone; sheep kidneys, 1/9 to 2/2 per doz; sheeps' hearts, 2/ to 2/9 per doz; lambs' hearts, 2/8 to 3/; sheeps' plucks, 1/8 to 1/9.

Lord Rhondda has issued new orders fixing, among other things, maximum prices for meat. The following are the maximum prices, for wholesale dealings in imported meat, at per stone of 8lb.

	Beef and veal. Price per st. Hind qrs.	Beef and veal. Price per st. Fore. qrs.	Mutton. Lamb. Price per st. Carcase.	Pork. Price per st. Carcase.

MASTER BUTCHERS' STRIKE.

HOBART, Monday.

An extraordinary situation indirectly arising out of the high prices of meat now ruling in Tasmania occurred at the Hobart Abattoirs to-day, when the butchers struck as a protest against the new method of bidding introduced by the auctioneers increasing the bids on cattle from 2/6 to 5/, on sheep 3d to 6d, and on pigs 6d to 1/. The butchers stood firm, demanding an unconditional return to the old conditions. They say the higher bids run up the stock to an unfair value, but the auctioneers contend it saves time, and point out that they accept half-crown bids when something approaching the value of the animal is reached. The butchers say they will not attend the Sorell stock sale on Tuesday.

GIRLS.
BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR.

Do you know that in less than 10 minutes you can double the beauty of your hair. It becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant, and appears as soft, lustrous, and charming as anyone could desire, after a simple wash with Rexona Soap. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, dry, brittle, or thin. Rexona Soap cleanses the hair of all dust, dirt, or excess oil, and in a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. Rexona Soap dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies, and invigorates the scalp, for ever stopping itching and falling hair. If you care to have pretty hair, and lots of it, get a tablet of Rexona Soap to-day.

REXONA SOAP
GIVES NATURAL BEAUTY TO SKIN AND HAIR.

That natural beauty of skin and hair which cannot be imitated can be obtained by regular use of Rexona Skin and Facial Soap. Ordinary Toilet Soaps do not assert this influence. Many of them contain free alkali, which tends to dry the skin and destroy its delicate texture. Even the best of such soaps can only cleanse, they cannot heal and protect the skin. Rexona Soap contains the same soothing, healing antiseptic balsams as Rexona, the Rapid Healer, the value of which in the treatment of skin affections is known throughout the world. Simply use Rexona Skin and Facial Soap regularly once or twice a day, and see if it does not quickly soothe and cleanse the pores, lessen the tendency to pimples, and leave the complexion clear, fresh, and velvety. Rexona Soap is beautifully put up, and sold at 1/ per tablet.

MILLER.—In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away October 31, 1916. Inserted by his loving son and daughter-in-law, Arthur and Myra Miller.

PARKINSON.—In affectionate memory of my brother, Frank. Inserted by Harry Parkinson, Hobart, Tasmania.

RUDD.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who departed this life October 31, 1909. Inserted by his loving wife, Margaret Rudd.

RETFORD.—In loving memory of my dear son, Lance-corporal Harold A. Retford, killed in action, France, October 31, 1916.
Just when his life was brightest,
Just when his hopes were best,
He was called from this world of sorrow
To a home of eternal rest.
Inserted by his loving mother.

RETFORD.—In loving memory of our dear brother, Lance-corporal Harold A. Retford, killed in action in France, October 31, 1916.
He marched away so bravely,
His young head proudly held,
His footsteps never faltered,
His courage never failed.
Inserted by his loving brother and sister, Ronald and Eva.

RETFORD.—In loving memory of Corporal H. A. Retford, killed in action, October 31, 1916. Inserted by his fond friend, L. B. Hellins.

SANDERSON.—In sad but loving memory of my dear son and our brother, Private N. Sanderson, killed in action in France, October 31, 1916. Inserted by his loving mother, sisters, and brother, Will (on active service).

SMITH.—In fond remembrance of our dear friend, Juliette Smith, who departed this life October 31, 1912, aged 29 years.
In the hour of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.
Inserted by her friends, Lily, Kate, and Alice.

SOLWAY.—In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Ellen, who died October 31, 1916.
Days of sadness still come over us,
Secret tears do often flow,
For memory keeps our dear mother near us,
Though she died a year ago.
Inserted by her loving husband and children.

STUBBS.—In loving memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, Jim (James), who departed this life October 31, 1909, aged 25 years and 4 months. At rest. Inserted by his sorrowing mother, sisters, and brothers.

WARD.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Private W. J. Ward, died of wounds received in France, October 31, 1916.
We pictured his safe returning,
We longed to clasp his hand,
But God has postponed the meeting,
'Twill be in a better land.
Inserted by his father, mother, sisters, and brothers, also brother-in-law.

WILSON.—In ever-loving memory of our dear brother, Arthur Thomas (Dock) Wilson, who died at R.P.A. Hospital, October 31, 1911, aged 29 years. Never forgotten by his loving sisters and brothers.

WOODLANDS.—October 31, 1913, at Parramatta, Anne, relict of late Robert Woodlands, of Rocky Creek station, N.S.W. At rest. Mother of Mrs. J. Clarke, Rockdale.

leaving £2,050 18s 3d, which, added to £13,694 13s 7d brought forward from the previous Half-year, makes the total to carry forward		15,745 11 10
		£98,183 5 10

During the Half-year the Branches at Port Germein, South Australia, and Doodlakine, Western Australia, were closed, and replaced by Receiving Offices. A Receiving Office was opened at Elwood, Victoria, and a similar office at Dardanup, Western Australia, was withdrawn.

The total number of the Bank's Staff who have been accepted for service with the Australian Imperial Forces is now 347, of whom 31 have joined since our last Report.

It is recorded with much regret that in all 42 of our Officers have been killed in action or died of wounds, including 19 during the past Half-year.

The Ordinary General Meeting will be held at the Head Office of the Bank, Collins-street, Melbourne, on Wednesday, 7th November, at noon.

At that Meeting the Shareholders will be asked to increase the remuneration of the Directors, in terms of the advertisement in the Melbourne newspapers convening the Meeting. The present remuneration is £1000 p.a., while there are four Directors and £1,250 if there are five Directors. These rates have been in force since 1871, and it is now proposed to increase them to £1600 p.a., whilst there are four Directors and to £2000 p.a. should there be five.

By Order of the Board,
E. H. WREFORD, Chief Manager.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1917.

THE INVASION OF ITALY.

The reports from the Italian front published this morning, though they do not make the success of the enemy appear any less complete, throw considerable light on the means by which it has been obtained. The equipment necessary to maintain the positions taken on the left wing was gravely underestimated. The Austro-German armies were provided with enormous supplies of artillery, and with quantities of gas. Although a combined offensive movement was anticipated the attack when it came was a surprise, partly owing to the Italian observation being hindered by bad weather and partly owing to defective information from Russia. The result was that the second army was driven in confusion across the river, that great numbers surrendered, and that the line reached by the Italians in their advance became untenable. The German reports say nothing of the points at which they were held up by the Italian troops, but it is quite probable that they are substantially true. The immediate evacuation of the positions taken as far south as Gorizia would be a necessary consequence of the failure of the left wing. The subsequent evacuation would be necessary for the safety of the army. Having once been driven back on the Friulian Plain General Cadorna would be unlikely to make any serious attempt to stay the invasion until he had reached the line of the Tagliamento. To allow the Austrians to re-appear in the province is a step which no Italian general would take except under manifest compulsion; but it has always been contemplated as one of the possible sacrifices demanded by a war with Austria. Both Italian and Allied reinforcements can be conveniently transported to the new line, together with the armies which are retreating in good order along the sea coast. The position of Italy after the most disappointing and overwhelming defeat is serious, but the prospect is more hopeful than it appeared in the light of the cablegrams published yesterday. We no longer have to fear the influence of a spirit of anarchy and indiscipline spreading from one division and permeating the whole army. We have two striking examples in the earlier history of the war to remind us that an army surprised and defeated may turn and inflict heavy blows on its conqueror. The Russians on the Dunajec were overwhelmed and broken as this second army has been. They still retained their spirit and returned to inflict heavy defeats on the Austrians in General Brussiloff's campaign of the following year. Another instance is brought home to us when we are told of the great quantities of gas used by the Germans. At the second battle of Ypres the first wave of gas drove back regiments in panic which before and since had shown themselves to be the bravest of the brave. The Allies were then saved from disaster by the heroism of certain regiments, notably of the Canadians; but there was an interval during which the Germans, if their confidence had not deserted them, might have broken the Allied line and reached the sea. This second army which has now been overwhelmed had a record for bravery of the highest distinction. Correspondents and officials alike attributed the last Italian victories to its valour and discipline. Since its defeat is to be ascribed to panic and not to treachery the Allies and the Italian people will look with confidence to the remnants of its divisions to aid in the work of driving the enemy from Italian soil.

We shall look with interest for reports of the manner in which this disaster has been borne by the Italian people. There is a parallel in the defeat which swept the Crispi Ministry from office in 1896. Then, however, the country had committed itself to a policy of adventure which aroused little enthusiasm. To-day Italy is fighting for the first time as a member of the European system, if we except her short alliance with Germany in 1866. To-day both her past and future are at stake. She is threatened with the position of the lowest of Germany's vassals in exchange for the ambitions which have animated many of her people since the establishment of the kingdom. It is good news to hear that, in face of this threat, all political dissension has ended. Italy will have her anti-social organisations who will seek to make their profit out of their country's peril. Among the majority of the nations there can no longer be any division between Imperialists, Radicals, and Socialists. While "the eagles with their black wings flout the breath and beauty of their land" there can be no thought of internal disputes or of negotiating for an immediate peace, which would mean eternal servitude. The duty of the Allies in this case has been acknowledged at once. They are bound to send all the troops and munitions they can spare from the task of driving the Germans from France and Belgium. The doctrine of the unity of front must now be accepted by them, even if it has not previously been accepted by the Italians. The triumph of the Austrian armies would involve the failure of the attempt of the Allies to break up the Austro-German block and thus ensure the freedom of Europe. There would be no prospect of autonomy in Austria or of liberty in the Balkans if the Austrian armies were to be triumphant and if their victory had been assured by help from Germany. In the Italian recovery are involved the future alike of the Mediterranean and the Near East. We feel confident that this recovery will be brought about by co-operation between the Allies, but we must acknowledge that this new task involves new burdens on all who participate in it and a further prolongation of their sacrifices.

WHAT SHALL IT BE?

In his speech at the Town Hall to-night Senator Pearce will have an opportunity of stating the case for the Federal Government if Ministers have decided on a policy of inaction with respect to universal service. We do not know, of course, what is in their minds; but judging from Mr. Cook's recent remarks it seems that they are disinclined to abandon the voluntary system. Now this should be a matter for clear statement. There must be reasons which appeal to the Government as so good that its apologists find no difficulty either in asking for more time, as Mr. Cook in effect did, or in finally refusing to go to the people by referendum, or otherwise, to decide the question. It may be remarked in passing that while Australia stands practically alone in the Empire and among the Allied nations as having obtained its soldiers without compulsion, it is the only Dominion that has put the matter to the test of a popular vote—and has refused to give the final trial of its faith in the Allied cause. This might appear at first sight as a commendable thing; and so it would be if men were forthcoming in the numbers required. If we were doing our duty with the same whole-heartedness as other people, the triumph of the voluntary system would become a magnificent advertisement of Australian patriotism, and of the power of perfect freedom to unify a community in the face of desperate danger. Unfortunately the refendum of last October was an advertisement of our disunion and wrong-headedness. It has been followed by dwindling recruiting figures, until to-day, even on the lower standard set because of our recalcitrancy, we are 25,000 men below the quota. Senator Pearce may explain again, perhaps, that we have not done so badly, that there are reserves in England, and that recruits are still coming forward. He may plead that all will be well if we will only pull together, and so forth. But this will not satisfy sober-minded people who know only too well that our men at the front are not being reinforced as they should be. Notwithstanding possible Ministerial assurances, they will be quite sure that future fighting on the scale and with the intensity of the last half-dozen battles will leave our divisions hopelessly depleted. It does not need special knowledge or unusual perspicacity to understand what is going on. Our letters from the front, no doubt, as well as our lengthening casualty lists, prove something; but we go upon the speeches made by Ministers themselves, first, when setting the higher quota, just before Mr. Hughes went to England, and, later, after the lower quota was adopted. The appeals were direct and emphatic. Men were wanted in definite numbers and they were wanted at once. They have not come forward, and the fighting has been heavier than ever. Is not the logical conclusion so plain that he who runs may read? Why has General Birdwood added his appeal to the rest? Why have messages reached us from time to time from other prominent men at home if the supply of Australians has been equal to the demand? On every count we find that the voluntary system of recruiting has failed; and it must be a corollary that the Government knows it has failed.

What, then, are the reasons for refusing to face the position? When Mr. Hughes made his great fighting speech in the last Federal elections from the same platform that Senator Pearce will stand on to-night he gave a certain pledge. He said:—"We pledge ourselves in this forthcoming Parliament not to attempt to introduce conscription either by regulation or statute. We shall not attempt to sneak in conscription behind the backs of the people." This pledge followed upon an acceptance of the verdict of the people as delivered on October 28, 1916, and upon the cheerful statement:—"We hope and believe that the great advance on the Western front, coupled with the entry of America into the war, presage the relatively speedy ending of this great war." But the Prime Minister could not let it go at that. He could foresee a possibility of disaster and he guarded his pledge by a reservation: "Only if the circumstances of the nation—of the Empire—demand it shall we again put the question to the people." This did not specify whether the Government would resign and go to the country again or take another referendum. A passionate appeal was made in following up this statement, and Mr. Hughes asked the question:—"If a great land victory gained by the Germans shall send the Allied forces reeling, if the dagger of the Hun shall pierce the armour of the Empire, will Mr. Tudor do nothing?" Since then Russia has gone steadily to pieces, and now Italy has received a blow which is indeed sending her reeling. After the Russian debacle was seen to be creating one peril after another, the people of the Commonwealth began to ask themselves whether Mr. Hughes would appeal to them for the withdrawing of his pledge. Those who heard him speak at the Town Hall at the beginning of April could see how deeply moved he was at the thought of possible disaster; and it seemed as if he were contemplating action under conditions that might require him even to take the consent of the people for granted. His argument pointed to a need for universal service that would transcend pledges and make mere discussion futile. With time as the very essence of our contract to help Great Britain and her Allies, by every means in our power, it might be criminal to begin making polling booths and to count the ballot-boxes for a vote to be taken months ahead. But leaving that and accepting the pledge and its qualification as alone holding the ground surely nothing further is required to justify at once another appeal either by referendum or by general election. So do we come to possible Ministerial reasons for doing nothing. Can it be the pledge? Is that to be continued so that not even another appeal can be made, since the urgency of the crisis relieving the Government of its pledge may be a matter for argument? Or is it that an appeal by Parliament to the people seems the only alternative? Whatever the reason may be, it will be found. Senator Pearce either will give it or hide it in words. If he is silent, the reason will still appear. Silence will be read as consent to the implication that Ministers are afraid of the people's verdict, and so of their own fate; and if that is to be accepted as the truth Australia will be advertised before the world now as craven where before she was seen to be blind and foolish. But that would not be the true Australia. Let the Government trust the people fully, as it should have done at the last general elections, and it will find the Commonwealth following willingly in the footsteps of Canada and New Zealand.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Joseph Cook, Minister for the Navy, left Sydney by the express for Melbourne last night.

Members of the Ministry will tender a private dinner to the Premier (Mr. Holman) at the Hotel Australia to-day.

The Premier having returned, Mr. G. W. Fuller yesterday went back to his old department as Chief Secretary.

Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert James Wright, of the Crescent, Homebush, who is attached to the Australian Imperial headquarters, and who was mentioned for his valuable services has, according to advices just received, been decorated with the C.M.G.

Lieutenant Adrian Consett Stephen, son of Mr. A. Consett Stephen, who is serving with the Royal Field Artillery in France, has been awarded the Military Cross. A few months ago he was mentioned in despatches for conspicuous gallantry, and awarded the Croix de Guerre, and more recently he was promoted from the rank of second-lieutenant to that of lieutenant.

Word has been received by Mr. J. B. Youdale, of this city, that his son, Lieutenant Alfred Youdale, M.C., of the Royal Flying Corps, has been promoted to flight commander, and has been given a bar to his decoration. He has been flying for some time with one of the special aeroplanes contributed by New South Wales to the British squadrons.

Mr. Alleine Fletcher, of Armidale, has received a cablegram to the effect that his son, Lieutenant A. H. Fletcher, who was recently reported as severely wounded with "multiple gunshot wounds," and also as seriously ill, is now making good progress.

Dr. A. J. Brady has received information that his son, Lieutenant Gordon Brady (Northumberland Fusiliers), has been promoted to captain.

At the biennial meeting of the members of the Institution of Civil Engineers resident in New South Wales, held on Friday, the following were elected as the advisory committee for the ensuing two years:—Messrs. Allan, Bradfield, Dare, De Burgh, Houghton, Keele, Small, Walsh, and Warren.

NO RELIEF.

FOR THE FIRST DIVISION.

OFFICIAL REASONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) stated to-day that it will not be practicable to bring back to Australia for a short period of leave members of the First Australian Expeditionary Force who are still on active service.

He said that the Commonwealth Government had been for some time in communication with the Imperial Government to ascertain if some arrangement could be made by which the original members of the Australian Imperial Force who first landed in Gallipoli might have a short period of leave in Australia by the end of this year. It seemed that other dominions had been negotiating with the same object in view, and that the replies received from the British Government and General Sir William Birdwood showed that the proposal was impracticable at the present time.

The reasons given by the Imperial authorities bore an intimate relationship to the European military situation, and could not at the present time be fully disclosed, but amongst them was the urgency of shipping requirements for conveying reinforcements to England, for bringing invalids back to the various dominions, and for the transport of foodstuffs, munitions, and materials that were urgently required. In view of these requirements that must have first claim in order to carry out the war, the British Government had been unable to meet the request of the dominions, the outstanding fact being that sufficient ships were not available.

In regard to the Australian position particularly, shipping has been seriously delayed by the recent industrial troubles; reinforcements had been awaiting ships to take them to England, and the sick and wounded in England had been awaiting ships to bring them to Australia. It was obvious that these must have first consideration.

Another factor was the submarine risk to which these troops would be exposed on the homeward and return voyages, which was only a little less than the risks of the battlefield. There were about 10,000 Australians still in the field who could claim the honour of being associated with the first Commonwealth force. Probably half of this number were officers or non-commissioned officers. There were probably an equal number from the other dominions.

In common with the Governments of the other dominions, therefore, the Commonwealth Government had been compelled to acknowledge the strength of the reasons disclosed, and felt sure that on consideration the parents, wives, and friends of our brave men could exercise the same noble virtues of patience and self-sacrifice that has distinguished their soldier relations, and that in their letters to the front they would show the same cheery spirit that was a point of honour in the Australian Imperial Force.

OUR DAY.

FOR THE BRITISH RED CROSS SOCIETY.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the New South Wales division of the Red Cross Society was held yesterday to make arrangements for "Flag Day" and for collections to be held for the parent body of the British Red Cross Society.

A sub-committee, consisting of Mr. J. O. Fairfax (chairman of the executive committee), Mrs. MacKinnon, Mrs. Alfred Lee, Miss Walker, Miss Egan, Mr. J. J. Cohen, Mr. Blythe, Miss Mort, and Miss Owen was appointed to carry out the arrangements.

HOSPITAL COLLECTIONS.

The Hospital Saturday Association has come to the decision that as the work of street collections and industrial collections in aid of hospitals is purely the work of the Hospital Saturday Fund any hospitals undertaking collections on their own initiative shall in future be penalised when the annual distribution of funds is made. As the result, a conference of those concerned will be held at an early date.

OVERSEA MAILS.

Mails for the United Kingdom and the Continent of Europe (letters only) will close at the G.P.O. at 8.30 a.m. to-morrow.

Parcels (only) for the Expeditionary Forces in France and England will be received until noon to-day, and parcels (only) for the United Kingdom until noon on Monday next.

CONSCRIPTION.

AUSTRALIA'S OBVIOUS DUTY.

Conscriptionists have no need to apologise for raising the greatest of all issues again. Many lesser issues have been submitted to the people for their endorsement more than once. The Federal Constitution, which gave birth to Australia's nationhood, ran the gauntlet of two referendums. A similar course was followed with regard to the proposals to alter the constitution, so as to widen the scope of the powers of the Commonwealth Parliament. In the various States of the Commonwealth, a number of issues—notably the liquor question—have been the subject of more than one appeal to the people. It is therefore difficult to appreciate the first objection raised against the re-submission of the conscription issue to the people, viz., that the decision, once having been given, should be final. Many of the more important affairs of State would have been most sadly neglected had that principle of the irrevocableness of a decision once given been followed. It will be remembered that when Mr. Fisher was Prime Minister, with Mr. Hughes as his chief colleague, the present High Commissioner refused to entertain such a motion. He said, with regard to the Commonwealth powers proposals, that they (the Labour party) believed in them, was committed to them, and would submit them over and over again until they were carried. And it is a matter of common knowledge that a third referendum had been arranged, and would have been carried out, but for the war.

Yet that issue did not approach in importance the question of the maintenance of adequate reinforcements for the Australian troops at the front. There is, however, a very much stronger claim for the resubmission of the conscription issue now. It is no longer merely a matter of believing in the system, or even of being committed to it. It is a question of the absolute need. There are still some people contending that the voluntary system of recruiting has not failed, while others even go so far as to say that it has done well. Even the Minister for Defence has spoken of the great things done in the name of voluntary recruiting. That kind of talk by conscriptionists during the memorable campaign of a year ago helped much to swell the margin of "No" votes. The simple truth is that the voluntary system has not done well at all. On the contrary, it has failed miserably. It was not the voluntary or any other "system" of recruiting that sent over 300,000 Australian soldiers to the war during the first two years. It was sheer, downright patriotism of the individual kind. Almost from the first day when the rush of recruits ceased, and when it became necessary to cajole and threaten in turns, the voluntary system failed, and failed badly. We sent away those 300,000 soldiers, told them to uphold the honour of Australia, cheered to the echo their patriotic resolve to "do their bit"—and then, for the most part, we settled down to enjoy the freedom of life in Australia for which they are fighting in veritable death-grips with an unscrupulous and dastardly foe. When there were only 5000 fit and whole men left out of the first 20,000 who had been three years on service we declined to send them relief, man for man, so that they could come home to a well-earned rest. That is admittedly the unpopular view. But it is simply the other side of this picture of the voluntary system which we have painted for our own satisfaction.

Let anybody examine the recruiting results of the last twelve months. They will find that the recruits may be divided into three sections:—(1) Immature youths, bubbling over with the spirit of patriotic adventure, yet altogether too young to be submitted to the test of a European war campaign; (2) intensely patriotic married men, who have at last persuaded their wives and children to allow them to answer their country's call; (3) married men, with families to support, who find themselves on the unemployed market. There is no "system" of voluntarism about all this. Everyone of the men who come within either of these three categories is compelled—compelled by what has been called the "intolerable conscription of voluntarism"—to offer himself and his services to his country. Meanwhile the eminently eligible man, he who is mature in years, though still well within the military age, and still unburdened by family responsibilities is permitted to stay at home and enjoy the improved conditions—improved because there are 400,000 less able-bodied men in the country now than there were three years ago.

In this way is the second objection to the re-submission of conscription answered. There are, of course, other objections which will have to be dealt with should the issue again become one of immediate consideration. Just at present it is more necessary to answer the queries of the moment. Does the pledge given by both Federal and State National parties prohibit the taking of another referendum at this stage? That pledge was a double-barrelled one. First, it was that conscription should not be introduced either by regulation or legislation, without a direct appeal to the people; and, secondly, that no such appeal would be made unless there were a serious reverse to the Allied arms. To introduce conscription by regulation or by legislation without the popular consent would be a flagrant breach of a solemn undertaking, deliberately given. It is not seriously suggested that this course should be taken. But it is equally plain to anybody who follows the events of the war at all closely that the second condition of the pledge has been abundantly fulfilled since it was given. The enemy is employing every ounce of his strength. An anti-conscriptionist in Germany, Austria, Turkey, or Bulgaria to-day would be hailed as a freak and treated either as a madman or a traitor. By the use of every ounce of his strength the enemy has managed to inflict crushing defeats on both Russia and Italy. Anybody who fails to realise the seriousness of that position had better admit frankly that he is not concerned about the war at all. What is Australia to do in the matter? Will Australia quit? These are questions which call for an immediate answer.

As to the referendum itself, one point seems to stand out clearly. It must be made a national matter, instead of one of party politics. The decision rests with the Commonwealth Government. But if that Government is prepared to admit defeat a second time, and to carry on again, although defeated, then it would be better to admit straight out that Australia has quitted, and have no referendum. Unless Mr. Hughes and his colleagues are prepared to stake their political all on the issue, it were better not to raise it. Events have shown that they cannot discharge Australia's obligations to her Allies without conscription. Then they should be prepared to declare that they will no longer make a pretence of the win-the-war cry, unless the people give them the power to provide the men who are required from Australia equally as from all her conscript Allies. If Mr. Hughes would do this; if he would deny the right of thousands to vote for no-conscription one week and for the win-the-war party the next, he might yet redeem Australia's dishonour of a year ago. But before the Commonwealth Government again asks the people of Australia to throw their all into the scales to win the war, they should be prepared to declare openly that unless this is done they will no longer contribute to our national humiliation by sticking to the miserable failure of voluntaryism, with its attendant undemocratic, unscientific, and uneconomical evils.

LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

"That this meeting of business men and citizens of Sydney, realising the detrimental effects the liquor traffic is exercising on national efficiency and repatriation and win-the-war policy, forms itself into a committee for the purpose of advocating such measures as will effectively deal with the problem, and urges the Government to submit to the people of the State as a whole the question as to whether the liquor traffic should continue or not."

"That the Lord Mayor be requisitioned to convene a meeting of citizens for the purpose of urging the Government to introduce a measure of State option on a simple majority."

These resolutions were unanimously carried at a meeting of business men and citizens on Monday, who attended a luncheon which was given under the auspices of the New South Wales Alliance at Sargent's Cafe. The gathering was held for the purpose of hearing proposals for effectively dealing with the liquor traffic in its relation to repatriation and national efficiency.

The acting president of the Alliance, Mr. W. C. Clegg, claimed that this was a win-the-war question. The seriousness of the question had been admitted, and he trusted that the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce), in his address in Sydney, would tell them what harm had been done through drink. Canada had wiped out the traffic, the United States had taken drastic action, and in New Zealand the business men brought pressure to bear on the Government, with the result that legislative reform followed.

A PROSCRIBED BODY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

An order issued by the Defence Department to-day states that to ensure that no person who is a member of the Industrial Workers of the World or any other unlawful association shall secure employment in the Commonwealth Public Service, applicants for permanent or temporary employment in the Defence Department will in future be required to sign a statement that they are not members of any unlawful association.

INVASION OF ITALY

GRAVE CRISIS

HELP FROM ALLIES

ITALIAN RESISTANCE

LONDON, Oct. 29.

An Italian official message on Monday afternoon stated: Our troops are fulfilling their duty regularly, and checking the advance on the plains.

The portion of the Italian communique published yesterday, referring to some of the units of the Second Army "retiring in cowardice without fighting, or surrendering, is modified by a statement from the Official Press Bureau saying that for the paragraph in question the following should be substituted:—

"A violent attack and the feeble resistance of detachments of the Second Army permitted Austro-German forces to pierce our left wing on the Julian front."

ENEMY'S CLAIMS.

Reports which have reached Amsterdam from Vienna state that the Austro-German troops have penetrated into Italy a distance of 15 kilometres.

A German official report on Sunday night stated: The Second and Third Italian armies are retreating westward. We are pursuing them rapidly between the mountains and the sea.

Our captures now total 100,000 prisoners and 700 guns.

A German official communique issued on Monday night stated:—The whole of the Italian Isonzo front has collapsed. The Third Army is hastily retreating along the Adriatic coast.

The Austro-Hungarians are now before Udine.

We have also captured Cormons (about seven miles west of Gorizia).

The prisoners are continually increasing.

ANGLO-FRENCH SUPPORT.

Official advices received in Washington state that General Cadorna will make a stand at the Tagliamento River.

English newspapers debate whether the Allies are in a position to render help to Italy to stem the tide of invasion by transporting troops and guns. Some writers are of opinion that the requirements of the Anglo-French offensives will prevent the withdrawal of troops, but it is stated in some quarters that England and France have intimated their readiness to render the utmost support as soon as possible.

BATTERING-RAM TACTICS.

Later accounts from the Italian front are regarding the situation somewhat less gloomily, and show that a combination of many adverse and unexpected conditions prevented the Italians stemming the first onslaught.

The Germans employed their favourite spearhead formation and battering-ram tactics, so successfully utilised on the Eastern front. It is pointed out that General Cadorna frequently expressed his confidence in the troops to withstand the shock, but Germany's new gas shells and secret batteries, and the favourable weather, enabled the Germans to secure a swift and overpowering initial success, from which the Italians have not yet recovered. It is hoped the Italians will soon be in a position to make a firmer stand.

FEELING MORE HOPEFUL.

Latest reports from Rome state that feeling in Italy is calmer after the first shock. The rather more hopeful feeling is based largely on reports that the Italians are rallying; nevertheless, the critical nature of the position is not disguised in England.

The Central News Agency states that the French Cabinet has decided to send troops to the Italian front.

DEFENDING THE PASSES.

The Milan correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" writes: The small nucleus of troops defending the passes opposite Tolmino fought like heroes against an overwhelming force. Splendid feats were performed at Monte Stol, near Bergogna. The Italians stubbornly held their ground. Another enemy wave tried to force a passage to the valley between Robic and Creda, but were stopped. Successive attempts to force a passage between Iderseo and Lucio were foiled, the Germans being compelled to fall back before repeated bayonet charges of a celebrated Italian brigade.

AN AMERICAN OPINION.

The Washington correspondent of the New York "World" states that a high military expert says the German drive will play havoc with the Italians, and the situation is the most serious for the Allies since the Marne.

Other information inclines to the opinion that the Allies will rush assistance to the Italians in men and big guns.

FALSE IMPRESSIONS.

An authoritative report concerning the Italian situation states that the exaggeration of the enemy's strength is unfair to the Russians and the Roumanians, who, despite the Russian collapse, still retain as many enemy divisions on their front as there were when the Russian offensive began in last July. It also suggests that the Italians were left to bear the brunt of the numerically superior enemy. This is not the case. The Italians were fully prepared for the attack, and were confident of success without help from the Allies. They had considerable numerical superiority to the enemy on the whole front. This exaggeration also gives an entirely false impression of the enemy's power of transporting large forces from the east to the westward in a short time.

Mr. Ward Price telegraphs: The truth is that the enemy overwhelmed a single corps of the second Italian army and forced his way into the gap thus formed, obliging the Italians to evacuate Bainsizza. The German attack was more formidable owing to the use of a special gas before bombardment from unsuspected batteries. This broke the Italian resistance. Neither Italy nor the Allies should exaggerate the gravity of the position.

Cables received in Washington from Rome state that the German Emperor will join the Emperor Charles of Austria on the Italian front.

WESTERN FRONT.

FLANDERS ADVANCE

THREATENS FOE'S REAR.

LONDON, Oct. 30.

The correspondent of the United Press Association in Flanders telegraphs: The ground east and north of Ypres continues bad. There is little prospect of much improvement as the winter advances.

Sir Douglas Haig has shown his appreciation of the conditions in the following telegram which he has addressed to the general officer commanding the Second Army:

"The successes gained on Friday under such conditions are deserving of the highest praise. While all the troops did well and contributed to the results achieved, the performance of the Canadian division was remarkably fine. The ground gained is of the highest importance. I congratulate you and all under you on the results of this great effort."

The correspondent states that the French success between Houthulst Wood and the Yser directly threatens the enemy's rear at Dixmude.

MERCKEM PENINSULA.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at midnight on Sunday, stated: The Franco-Belgians carried out successful operations northward of Merckem. The French captured Luighem village. The Allies now hold the whole of Merckem Peninsula.

Reciprocal artillery activity prevails on the battle front.

Our aeroplanes have been busy all day. On Saturday they co-operated with the artillery, and fired several thousand rounds at ground targets from heights ranging from 100 to 1000 feet. They dropped 29 heavy bombs on Roulers station, six on Abeele aerodrome, 121 lighter bombs on billets eastwards of Lens, and 124 on other targets.

Our squadrons at night time dropped four tons of explosives on seven aerodromes and three important railway stations. Several burst near the hangars and railway tracks, one setting fire to a train. Enemy aeroplanes repeatedly attacked, but our airmen never failed to reach their objectives.

We brought down eleven machines and drove down seven. Nine of ours are missing.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Monday, stated: We raided trenches last night opposite Warneton and repulsed reconnoitrers in the neighbourhood of Reutel.

A Belgian patrol yesterday captured a post and the garrison of 21 men north of Merckem. The Belgians at night carried out a successful raid north of Dixmude, capturing 23 prisoners.

Sir Douglas Haig's final report on Monday night stated: The Inniskillings, raiding north-eastward of Croisilles, took a few prisoners.

The Belgians carried out successful raids and took a number of prisoners northward and southward of Dixmude.

Our aeroplanes on Sunday, flying low, fired many rounds on troops in trenches and shell-holes. Our aeroplanes dropped 100 bombs on billets, and at night time bombed Gontrode aerodrome, Courtrai station, and railway stations in the neighbourhood of Roulers.

FRENCH FRONT.

A French communique issued at midnight on Sunday stated: There is fairly great artillery activity in the region of Pinon, Chavignon, and near Epine-de-Chevrigny.

The Germans at midday strongly attacked our positions north of Froidmont Farm. Our fire drove back waves of the attack with heavy losses, and 60 prisoners remained in our hands.

There is a fairly lively artillery duel in the region of the Champagne heights.

A French communique issued on Monday afternoon stated: After violently bombarding the Bois-le-Chaume-Bezonvaux front on the right of the Meuse, the enemy attacked but was driven back by our fire.

The enemy did not reach our lines except at one point north of Caurieres Wood, where he gained a footing on a front of 500 metres, which our counter-attack mostly recovered.

GERMAN REPORT.

A German official message, issued on Monday night, stated: We repulsed the English north of the Boesinghe-Staden railway.

We repulsed the French twice near Braye, with heavy losses.

FRANCO-BELGIAN VICTORY.

ACROSS FLOODED COUNTRY.

Mr. Percival Phillips (correspondent of the "Daily Express") telegraphs: Nothing during the campaign has been quite like the Franco-Belgian victory on Saturday. The Peninsula of Luighem is a tongue of land a quarter of a mile wide at its widest part. The first French advance on Friday morning took them through the marshes, where they waded and swam. Their success gave them a bridgehead across the flooded Yser.

French engineers on Friday night performed a wonderful feat. They threw pontoons over the flood, working shoulder-deep, enabling the infantry to cross before daybreak, when the enemy was taken by surprise. The 8th Bavarian Reserve Division had arrived in the line the previous night, expecting that they would not be disturbed in this quiet region. A sanguinary fight followed with bayonet and bomb. The Bavarians were driven from line to line, the French pursuing them so closely that the enemy was unable to establish himself.

Thus the French stormed Verbrandesmis, Aschoop, and Kloostermolen. The whole region was most difficult, as it lay under water, but the impetuous French toiled on until they reached firmer ground on the outskirts of Merckem, in which they charged with the bayonet, rooting out the occupants of cellars. Others advanced on the Dixmude-road to Kippe.

These successes ought to have sufficed, but the French did not stop. They waded through a maze of communication trenches fronting Luighem village, which stands on a slight elevation commanding an extensive field of fire. The main road thither had been wired and barricaded, and was only conquered after several hours of hard fighting and repeated assaults.

The Belgians then entered the fight after crossing the floods on punts, and secured a solid footing on the peninsula.

GERMAN RETREAT PREDICTED

Mr. Baker (Secretary for War) predicts another German strategic retreat on the west front, under more critical circumstances. He is confident that Italy will stem the Teutons, and that Russian resistance is apparently being consolidated.

AUSTRO-GERMAN DRIVE INTO ITALY.

The black arrows on the above map indicate approximately the direction of the Austro-German drive into Italy. The enemy claims that the whole Italian Isonzo front has collapsed, and that the Third Army is retreating hastily along the Adriatic coast. The enemy also states that he has captured Cormons, and that his troops are before Udine.

BELLEVUE BATTLE.

GALLANT CANADIANS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs telegraphs: The Canadians never did better than during the attack on Bellevue. They were beaten back but re-formed and scaled the slope and carried the blockhouses held by sturdy, brave Bavarians. The position was an extremely strong one. Bellevue, on one side of Crest Farm, and Passchendaele, on the other, support each other by sweeping any attack on the slopes, as the Australians found on October 12. The Australians were forced to retire when Passchendaele was almost within their grip owing to the enfilade fire from Bellevue, while other Australians, trying to climb from the Ravebeek swamps were terribly scourged by a machine-gun barrage. The Canadians had the same bad luck as regards the weather.

Many were obliged like the Australians and New Zealanders on October 12, to struggle through bogs and seas of mud, but the right flank attacked Crest Farm along the main ridge, where the ground was much better than the slope below Bellevue, and reached a point near Duck Wood. Their position was good, but the Canadians on the left were having the same tragic adventure as the Australians at the same place a fortnight before, being caught by the mud under a heavy machine-gun barrage from a row of blockhouses on the crest of the ridge. The Canadians strove desperately to reach them. Some gained a footing on the higher slopes, but were scrambling, stumbling, and falling.

It was difficult to get news of this heroic brigade, owing to mist and low-lying smoke. Airmen tried vainly to pierce the fog by flying perilously low. The Canadian rockets were wet, and the airmen's signals were unanswered. An airman flew ten times over the scene at a lower altitude every time. At last, from 600 feet, he saw how matters stood. His machine was badly hit and crashed down behind our lines. His report was not good, and it looked like a tragedy. The Canadians had been forced to withdraw from Bellevue, almost to their original line.

Then the Canadians showed the stuff they were made of. Strengthened by a small body of Canadian comrades, they re-formed, and re-advanced. It was a great and splendid struggle which re-commenced. It is difficult to understand how it succeeded. There were the same difficulties as before. The men worked forward in small packs inspired by a kind of rage, as they passed their own dead. More fell, but enough remained to invest the forts and silence them. The garrisons were given the choice of death or surrender. They chose the latter. Four hundred prisoners were taken down.

The German counter-attacks lasted all night. The Canadians not only held on, but went ahead and captured another row of blockhouses, the garrisons fleeing in haste, and abandoning 12 machine-guns.

HELP OF DOMINIONS.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S TRIBUTE.

Mr. Lloyd George, speaking in the House of Commons, said the Dominions had sent from 700,000 to 800,000 men, whose names were imperishably connected with Pozieres, Vimy and Ypres. The dash and tenacity of these citizen armies rivalled the conduct of veterans in their hundredth battle. He emphasised the splendid spirit and energetic helpfulness of the citizens of the Dominions, notably the women.

UNITED STATES.

WAR EXPENDITURE.

A Washington report states that the Government spent £200,000,000 in October, an increase of 900 per cent. as compared with October of 1916. The expenditure was approximately at the rate of £6000 per minute.

The United States has lent Great Britain £5,000,000, making a total to £280,000,000.

A campaign has commenced aiming to induce 500,000 women to sign a food economy pledge supporting the Chairman of the Food Board (Mr. Hoover).

It is reported from Washington that President Wilson has made a statement declaring it to be America's duty to provide an adequate supply of food for her soldiers and the civil population, and also the armies of the Allies. He adds: "Citizens should remember that we cannot accomplish the objects of the war without sacrifices—particularly the sacrifice of eating less in our homes and restaurants."

PEACE OFFER TO FRANCE.

"Le Journal" publishes the letters of an intermediary to show that Germany offered France a separate peace in November, 1915. Germany was to keep Alsace-Lorraine, and offered Western Belgium as compensation.

THE RUSSIANS.

NAVY'S SPIRIT REVIVES.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" telegraphs that there is an astonishing revival of spirit in the Baltic fleet. The Bolshevik crews are eager to defend their country to the last breath, and a complete accord prevails in the navy. If the army rises to the occasion similarly there will be no question of any important German success.

The object of the Germans slightly withdrawing their line above Riga is to draw on the Russians before thrusting at the Russian rear.

FURTHER GERMAN WITHDRAWAL.

A Russian official message states: Our artillery dispersed the Austrians, who were attempting to fraternise in the Bystritz region.

The Germans left the Werder Peninsula (Gulf of Riga) on Saturday.

FOE FAILS.

ATTEMPTED AIR RAID.

It is officially announced that enemy aeroplanes attempted to raid the south-east counties on Monday night. Our aeroplanes ascended and guns and searchlights were in action.

The hostile aircraft did not succeed in passing our outer defences.

BRITISH AIR RAIDS.

The Admiralty report: Naval aircraft on Saturday dropped many tons of bombs close to sheds and the railway lines at the Engel and on the St. Denis Westrem aerodrome. We dropped two tons of explosives at Cordmarck-Lichtervelde railway junction. One of our machines has not returned. We obtained direct hits on Varsenaere aerodrome.

On Sunday we bombed St. Alhillebrugge station, near Bruges. We shot down one enemy machine.

MONTENEGRO.

ALLEGED REQUEST FOR PEACE.

The "Morning Post" says that during a recent debate in the Italian Chamber of Deputies, Signor Labriola created a sensation in the House by reading a telegram from King Nicholas, of Montenegro, to the late Emperor of Austria, saying, "Your troops having occupied Montenegro, I ask for an armistice and peace. Your generous heart cannot be cruel to my people."

The Emperor Francis Joseph replied: "I am glad to learn your Majesty wishes for peace, which shall be made on conditions already known."

GERMAN CHANCELLOR.

A message from Amsterdam says that the German newspapers report that Dr. Michaelis has tendered his resignation as the German Emperor's representative. The report is unofficial, but is generally believed to be true.

Paris advices state that the German newspapers confirm the acceptance of Dr. Michaelis' resignation.

SPANISH CABINET CRISIS.

It is reported from Madrid that a commission from Barcelona, representing the unanimous views of the military, started for Madrid bearing a peremptory message to King Alfonso with instructions to withhold it if a decision were meanwhile reached on a policy satisfying the military junta's aspirations.

The Spanish Premier (Senor Dato) on hearing of the junta's action objected to the military seeking to address the King directly instead of conveying their wishes through the Minister for War. Senor Dato forthwith conferred with King Alfonso for two hours and finally resigned.

"El Imparcial" mentions the prospect of a Coalition Ministry under Senor Maura.

ARGENTINE TRADE.

An Ottawa message says the Canadian Trade Commissioner reports from Buenos Ayres the abolition of the stipulation by which Argentina was to export her wheat to Britain in return for Canadian and Australian exports to Argentina. Argentina will continue to export to Britain.

NAVAL BRUSH.

OFF THE BELGIAN COAST.

The Admiralty report: Six British and French destroyers patrolling the Belgian coast on Saturday attacked three German destroyers and 17 aeroplanes. We obtained two direct hits on the enemy destroyers, which immediately retired to the protection of the land batteries.

Our anti-aircraft gunfire broke up an aeroplane formation. The aeroplanes each dropped three bombs in the vicinity of our vessels, which did not suffer beyond two men being slightly wounded.

ROYALIST PLOT.

SENSATION IN FRANCE.

A Paris message says that the Military Governor ordered a search of the offices of a Royalist newspaper, and simultaneous searches elsewhere, which revealed that stores of firearms had been accumulated since the war.

Documents were also found disclosing schemes tending to provoke civil war and plans for arming citizens.

Proceedings have been commenced against certain persons on a charge of conspiring to produce civil war.

The Royalist newspaper is the "Action Francaise," of which Leon Daudet is editor. Daudet is the deputy who accused M. Malvy, ex-Minister of the Interior, of selling the plans of the French offensive on the Chemin-des-Dames to a German living in Spain.

The "Petit Parisien" reports that documents seized in the office of "Action Francaise" prove that royalists for some time have been preparing plans for fomenting manifestations of disaffection in the streets, particularly among the poor, concerning the cost of living.

WAR NOTES.

RECENT GAINS IN THE WEST.

More spectacular developments on the Italian front during the past few days have temporarily diverted attention from the slow but steady progress which has been made on sectors of the Western front. The operations there have mainly been of a "nibbling" nature, the French astride the Soissons-Laon road, above the Aisne, having been engaged in rounding off their recent effective gains, and the Allied forces in Flanders, around and above Ypres, having devoted their efforts towards improving their front. The British have been achieving this purpose by means of more or less minor operations, with limited [illegible] objectives, similar to many of the less interesting moves which marked the Somme offensive, and without which the final success of the larger operation could not have been achieved. The French and Belgians on the left of the British troops have probably secured the most pronounced gains in the recent operations, and Mr. Percival Phillips's messages, which is an interesting and enlightening summary of the Franco-Belgian move on Saturday last, shows that it was more of a substantial bite than a nibble. It is probably, however, a little too early to regard it as a direct threat to the enemy's rear at Dixmude, as the United Press correspondent describes it. The enemy's rear at Dixmude is not likely to be in any immediate danger as long as he maintains his stronghold in Houthulst forest. Saturday's advance, however, has brought the French closer up towards the western fringe of this enemy stronghold, which, besides protecting the German rear at Dixmude, also threatens to narrow down the front of the whole Allied drive eastward of Ypres. The Franco-Belgian move on Saturday has widened the base of that drive, and has opened up the way for more effective pressure to be brought upon the enemy in Houthulst forest, where a bitter struggle will no doubt take place before the Allies around Ypres achieve the strategical objective towards which the principal Flanders offensive is directed.

AUSTRO-GERMAN ATTACK ON ITALY.

In the absence of any definite statement from Italy as to the extent of the progress of the Austro-German drive into her territory, we are compelled to rely almost completely upon the enemy's communiques in order to obtain any idea at all as to the extent of Italy's reverse. The enemy could not hope to secure any permanent advantage by falsely claiming the capture of large and well-known towns. The truth would sooner or later be revealed, and his misrepresentation would only lead to unnecessary disappointment amongst his own people in the long run. The Italians have not yet admitted the loss of Cividale or of Gorizia, but, as no denial of the earlier enemy claims in this respect have been forthcoming, there is no doubt as to the fate of these towns. The claim that Cormons has been captured by Austro-Hungarian troops is, therefore, no doubt, also correct. This fact dashes to the ground the hope that the Italians might still retain the hills dominating Gorizia, even although they had evacuated the town itself. Cormons is situated over seven miles westward of Gorizia, and, if the enemy is there, he has long since secured the hills which dominate Gorizia. His presence there would also discourage the belief that the Italians are attempting to retain their positions on the Carso plateau. The enemy, therefore, may not be guilty of gross exaggeration when he states that the Third Italian Army is retreating along the Adriatic coast. The Austro-German counter-offensive has already proved a most effective defensive measure against Italian invasion.

MORAL OF ITALIAN SECOND ARMY.

Not the least remarkable feature of the latest official news from Italy is the substitution of a fresh paragraph in place of the bitter accusation against certain units of the Second Italian Army which had been made in the preceding communique. It is not a very pleasant theme to dwell upon, this question of the weakened moral of portion of the Second Army, but unfortunately it must be taken into consideration by anyone who attempts to realise how the enemy succeeded in making such a rapid and effective stroke. The correction of the original statement, while it attempts to remove the charge of cowardice definitely made in the previous message, still refers to feeble resistance by detachments of the Second Army as being a contributory cause of the piercing of the Italian left wing on the Julian front. This almost unprecedented instance of an official communique being modified and corrected justifies the view expressed in these notes yesterday that "in spite of the very bitter phrasing of the Italian communique, it will be well to await further information before attributing it (the collapse of moral) to the same influences which resulted in the Russian collapse in Galicia." It may also be fair to the Second Italian Army to recall the fact that the London "Daily Telegraph" of August 28 last published a statement, which had been issued at Italian headquarters, regarding the Italian success on Bainsizza Plateau, of which the following is an extract:—"The enemy is in full retreat before the untiring and daring attacks of the soldiers of the Second Army, who persistently attacked, battered, and finally overcame his mighty resistance." In view of this something definite is needed to explain the cause of the "feeble resistance" referred to this morning. At the same time some actual proof of the later official statement that the Italian troops "are fulfilling their duty regularly and checking the advance on the plains" will also be necessary before we can entirely expel from our minds that original opening paragraph of the Italian communique published yesterday.

TEMPORARY RESPITE FOR RUSSIA.

It would appear as if Russia is about to enjoy a period of respite while the Central Powers are engaged in the more profitable task to which they have now set their hands in Italy. The recent German withdrawal on the Riga front indicated that no serious effort to drive further into Russia was to be attempted this year, and this belief has been strengthened by the announcement published this morning that the enemy troops have withdrawn from the Werder Peninsula, which was the only point on the mainland, immediately opposite the Baltic Islands, where the enemy had secured a footing. The drive which is being made against Italy is less likely to be hindered by winter conditions than would have been the case with extensive operations against Russia, especially as the enemy has already passed beyond the worst part of the mountainous country. Russia's respite, however, can only be temporary. We may not agree entirely with the assertion of the Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" that the enemy's withdrawal near Riga was intended to "draw on the Russians before thrusting at the Russian rear," but it is clear that Germany's possession of Oesel and Moon islands makes such a thrust possible. Her recent successful move against these islands prepared the ground for a striking blow against Russia, and she can now afford to await her own time and favourable circumstances for delivering that blow. She may decide to use this threat merely as a lever towards bringing about peace with Russia, or she may put it into direct operation at some future date. It is certain, however, that she had a good reason for occupying these islands, and, if Russia is not to receive a very rude shock from this direction in the future, she will need to bestir herself in the interim and prepare against unpleasant developments. The future alone will show whether she is capable of doing so.

LATE WAR NEWS.

BRITISH ATTACKING.

LONDON, Oct. 30.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Tuesday, stated: At 5.40 this morning we attacked to the northward of the Ypres-Roulers railway. Good progress is reported.

FRENCH REPORT.

A French communique issued on Tuesday morning states: There is violent artillery firing on the right of the Meuse, and an intermittent cannonade along the rest of the front.

ITALY'S NEW PREMIER.

It is reported from Rome that Signor Vittorio E. Orlando, who was formerly Minister of the Interior, is forming a Ministry.

THE FLOODS.

TOWN SUBMERGED.

A telegram was received yesterday by the Weather Bureau from the meteorological observer at Deniliquin advising that the Edward River was at its greatest height since 1870, and that there is very little of the town that is not submerged.

A RISE AT ECHUCA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The chairman of the Water Commission stated to-day that another very high rise had taken place in the Murray at Echuca. During the 24 hours an increase of 8 inches had occurred, making the river level 32ft 9in. which was the highest reading of the year. All the other stations continued to show a decrease in the readings, but at Mildura and Merbein the position would be critical in about ten days.

CULCAIRN, Tuesday.

The Billabong floods have now gone down, and the council can estimate the amount of damage done to roads and bridges in the Culcairn shire. Besides small bridges, there are seven large bridges over the Billabong for which this council is responsible. In one, the Brooklyn, between Culcairn and Walla, the abutments collapsed, and the bridge will have to be dismantled and rebuilt. At the Culcairn, on main road from Culcairn to Albury, after the waters went down, it was found the approaches had gone, and traffic was again suspended for a few days. At the other bridges much damage was done to the embankments and approaches, and it will cost the council a good amount, besides repairs to bridges, in getting roads in decent order for traffic.

SYDNEY PUGILIST OUTCLASSED.

LONDON, Oct. 30.

At the National Sporting Club "Young" Symonds knocked out Frankie Neil (of Sydney) in the third round. The winner showed himself to be much the superior, and floored Neil several times.

DEATH OF PRINCE CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK.

LONDON, Oct. 28.

The death is announced of Prince Christian of Denmark.

[Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein was 86 years of age. He lived most of his life in England, and married the third daughter of the late Queen Victoria.]

ARCHBISHOP CATTANEO.

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE.

CORDIAL WELCOME TO SYDNEY

Archbishop Bartolomeo Cattaneo, the new Apostolic Delegate to Australasia, was accorded an enthusiastic welcome in Sydney yesterday.

Aged 56 years, with an open countenance and pleasant expression, dignified, but with a singular simplicity of manner, he has already become popular among the prelates, the clergy, and the laity. Taller than his predecessor, Archbishop Cerretti, the new Apostolic Delegate would pass without difficulty for an Englishman. But, like Archbishop Cerretti, he is an Italian, and was born near Milan. Before studying for the priesthood he gained the Laureate of Jurisprudence at the Genoa University. In 1891 he was ordained priest, and appointed secretary to the Bishop of Saluzzo. Subsequently he was appointed Vicar-General of the Diocese of Novara, and six years ago he took over the directorship of the College of Propaganda in Rome, an institution for the education of missionaries for all parts of the world, and from which a number of students have come to Australia. In the service of the Church the new Papal Delegate, who is a good linguist, has visited America and other countries, but his chief work has been at Rome. He is now titular Archbishop of Palmyra, having been consecrated before his departure from Rome.

Almost the first question that suggested itself in the course of a brief conversation at St. Mary's Presbytery had reference to the Italian reverse. It was news to the Archbishop. He admitted that it was very sad news, but added that he had great faith in the military valour of the Italians. When Archbishop Cattaneo left Rome the Pope's peace proposals had only just been published, so he declined yesterday to say anything on the subject.

The Pope and Archbishop Cerretti had both assured him that in view of the kindly welcome which had been given to the first Apostolic Delegate, he could look forward with great expectation to his sojourn in Australia. "You will not want to come back," Archbishop Cerretti had told him.

It was learned during the conversation that Archbishop Cerretti is now Assistant Secretary of State at the Vatican—one of the highest positions in the gift of the Pope.

After leaving Rome, Archbishop Cattaneo visited Spain and the United States. He was especially pleased with his reception in America, where he met many of the priests who had studied under his rectorship at the Propaganda College. Many of the clergy travelled hundreds of miles from the back-blocks to meet him, and, as he said yesterday, to accompany him for even a few hours on his many train journeys. While in Washington Archbishop Cattaneo was the guest of the Papal Delegate to the United States (Archbishop Bonzana), whom Archbishop Cattaneo succeeded in the rectorship of the Propaganda College.

While rector of the College of Propaganda, Archbishop Cattaneo met many Australians, who had gone there to study for the priesthood. Referring yesterday to these young men, the Archbishop said:—"They are an excellent type, remarkably cheerful, and have, by their assiduity and good character, done great things for themselves and for Australia."

Several hundred Roman Catholic school-children cheered Archbishop Cattaneo as he approached the Cathedral door, where he was received by the Rev. Father O'Gorman (Administrator). The procession to the throne was headed by the Papal Knights (Messrs. T. J. Dalton, W. J. Spruson, John Meagher, M.L.C., Sir Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., P. S. Cleary, and J. Lane Mullins, M.L.C.), and representatives of the Hibernian and kindred societies. Then followed the Apostolic Delegate, Archbishop Kelly, Bishop O'Connor (Armidale), Bishop Dwyer (Maitland), Monsignor Coonan, Monsignor O'Haran, Monsignor Collins, Monsignor Ormond (secretary to the Papal Delegation), the Very Rev. T. O'Reilly, P.P.V.F., the Very Rev. M. J. O'Reilly (rector of St. John's College), and the leading priests of the archdiocese.

Included in the congregation were the Lord Mayor (Alderman R. D. Meagher), accompanied by Mr. Horsfield, and attended by Mr. Martin Carrick (orderly), Mr. Justice Edmunds, Mr. J. W. Doyle, M.L.A., and Chaplain Captain O'Connor (London).

The choir was composed of students from St. Patrick's College, Manly, under the Rev. Dr. Hayden. The first hymn was "Ecce Sacerdos Magnus" (Behold a great Priest). The Te Deum (Gregorian chant), was intoned by the Apostolic Delegate.

Monsignor Coonan (Vicar-General), in an address of welcome, which was signed by himself for the clergy and by the Lord Mayor on behalf of the laity, said that the clergy and laity of the Archdiocese of Sydney rejoiced at Archbishop Cattaneo's safe arrival in the mother city of Australia. They were grateful to Providence, to Whom they attributed that happy circumstance, and they appreciated the faith and Christian fortitude that had inspired him to face the dangers of the present time to fulfil his exalted mission.

Addressing the new delegate, Archbishop Kelly said: "The Church in Australia rejoices that you come to us from that centre of Christian unity which the Lord Himself, in His infinite wisdom, constituted on this earth. You will feel our devotion towards you and towards your office as the delegate of the vicar of Christ to our Australia. We thank God that you are the second delegate from the Holy See, because the delegation is now an established fact. It is recognised to be a blessing for Australia, a blessing for Sydney, and also a blessing for the clergy and laity. The work of religion is to restore all things in Christ. We hope for the best of things from you, because you are the selection of the vicar of Christ."

Archbishop Cattaneo, who speaks almost perfect English, said: "As soon as Archbishop Cerretti was appointed to another place the Supreme Pontiff was anxious to send another representative in his place. If it were not for the difficulties of travelling during this period of war I would have arrived sooner. I am confused when I remember that I am here to succeed Archbishop Cerretti. It is difficult to succeed a great man, but with the grace of God I will do my best. What is failing in my person your benevolence and your goodness, and especially your prayers, will do for me. I have heard so much of your wonderful country, and this magnificent cathedral tells me of your faith and generosity in a most magnificent way. I offer special thanks to the representatives of the Sydney Church. I feel proud to live in Sydney, and I feel that I am a citizen of Sydney. I had heard many things about this country and its people long before I dreamt of coming here—when I was at the College of Propaganda. In the name of the Supreme Pontiff I give you all blessing."

After the service Archbishop Cattaneo was entertained at luncheon in the presbytery by Archbishop Kelly.

It is understood that Monsignor Ormond, who was appointed secretary to the Apostolic Delegation by Archbishop Cerretti, will remain its secretary under Archbishop Cattaneo. Dr. Collins, of Melbourne, accompanied the new apostolic delegate from Rome, but he will now return to his diocese.

AIRMAN'S FLIGHT.

FROM MELBOURNE.

MACHINE DIVES TO EARTH.

ALBURY, Tuesday.

Lieut. R. Galloway, in his 100-h.p. Bristol Strout biplane, landed here at 7.45 this morning, occupying about 100 minutes in the flight from Melbourne, which is 190 miles by rail. He left Melbourne at 6 o'clock. The weather was favourable, and the flight was successful in every respect. The machine was secured from the Central Flying School, England, and a landing was effected at the local racecourse, in the presence of a number of cheering people. After an hour's wait, the journey was resumed at 8.45, Galloway expecting to reach Sydney about noon. This is his first flight in this machine.

WAGGA, Tuesday.

In the course of his flight from Melbourne to Sydney, Lieut. R. F. Galloway crashed to earth when four miles from Wagga, partially wrecking the machine, but he escaped injury. Engine trouble caused him to descend in a wheat crop at Culcairn. He rose again, and when eight miles from Wagga again struck trouble with the engines. Lieut. Galloway aeroplaned to within four miles of Wagga, watching anxiously for a clear landing place, and from a height of 3000 feet he gradually descended till the machine, just skimming over the tree tops when over Lloyd's farm on the Albury-road, came down nose first, striking stumps and turning a somersault with the pilot underneath. Lieut. Galloway extricated himself from the machine, the propeller snapped off, and the wheels and undercarriage were damaged, but it is nothing very serious. Lieut. Galloway, assisted by the farmers, later brought the machine into Wagga, where the damaged parts are being repaired to enable him to resume his flight. Lieut. Galloway, who is on the instruction staff at Point Cook Aviation School, made the flight to test the war machine, and he dropped Liberty War Loan leaflets en route.

AMERICA'S PART.

AUSTRALIANS IN FIRST GRADE

MR. HOLMAN'S IMPRESSIONS.

Bad as the news from some of the theatres of war may be, encouraging impressions of the prospects of ultimate success for the Allies was brought to Sydney by Mr. W. A. Holman, Premier of New South Wales, who has returned after an absence of several months, during which time he visited England, France, and America.

The Premier has obviously benefited a great deal in general health during his trip. Whilst he entered with characteristic energy into the discussion of the national problems of the three great countries which he visited, he frankly confessed that he was relieved to find that New South Wales affairs generally had relapsed into a condition of normal calm, after surviving the turbulent times of the last three months.

Mr. Holman did not hesitate to express his personal gratitude for the manner in which his colleagues had tackled the serious crisis through which they have just passed, and the informal meeting of Ministers which assembled in Mr. Fuller's room at the Chief Secretary's Department yesterday morning was of the most harmonious character.

Interviewed during the afternoon, the Premier declined to discuss his trip in so far as it affected the particular financial mission on which he went away. Whatever information he has to give on that matter is probably being reserved for his Ministerial colleagues, when they meet in a formal Cabinet meeting later in the week. He did not hesitate, however, to give his general impressions on the war activities of Great Britain and her Allies.

"I have met practically all the leading spirits in France, England, and the United States," he said, "and I had the great satisfaction of seeing the wonderful organisation which the United States Government has put on foot for the war. They are still in their preliminary stages, but everything is being most admirably handled. They have profited to the full by the experience of the Allied Governments. They have brought over large bodies of expert military advisers from England and France, and their own arrangements are going forward with a swiftness and smoothness almost incredible. Already there are between 700,000 and 800,000 men in training, and the arrangements for their training and the supply of munitions are well nigh perfect. So far as one can see, there is not a weak link in the chain."

Mr. Holman became enthusiastic when speaking of the "big" men of England, France, and America. He has no sympathy with the suggestion of incapacity which has been made against many of them. Passing over those who are better known because of their public positions, he went on to speak of others who are doing most valuable work in the great task for the preservation of the liberties of the world.

"The members of the English Cabinet," he said, "are men of very remarkable capacity—much more so than is generally recognised. There is an occasional tendency to speak of some of these men as though they were lacking in the capacity. It is not so. Men like Lord Rhondda, General Smuts, and Sir Arthur Steele Maitland, are absolutely in the front rank. General Smuts has made an extraordinary impression, and I think it is in every way justified."

Avoiding any reference to his own visit to the firing line in France, when the late General Holmes met his death, Mr. Holman went on to speak again of his impression of America's part in the war. "In America, I was similarly impressed with the standing and character of the men who surround the President," he said. "The President himself, the ex-President, and all the higher nominated officials are men of remarkable character and capacity. I was also most agreeably surprised with the United States Senate as a body. It is really a wonderful piece of constitutional machinery, and contains a great number of men of the very highest calibre. In certain quarters of America the question is raised: 'Why are we in it at all?' But this is only by a small and diminishing minority. It can safely be said that the whole nation is aroused, and that there is no pacifist feeling of any importance in American now. The attitude of Senator La Follette, for instance, is getting practically no support. I met ex-President Roosevelt on his return from the Nebraska and Wisconsin States, where an anti-war feeling existed. He had immensely successful meetings, and was convinced that only an explanation of the position was required. In no State of the Federation has there been any resistance to the draft. The young German, Austrian, and Irish Americans have responded willingly."

Referring to the deeds of the Australian troops, Mr. Holman said that all the high commands of the Allies agreed that they were absolutely in the first grade of soldiers. "It must not be thought that they are looked upon as the first unit in the whole of the Allied forces," he said. "But they are certainly esteemed as in the front rank of the Allied armies."

REGISTRATION LOST.

WOOL AND BASIL WORKERS.

PLEA FOR FORGIVENESS.

An application was recently made by the Wool Scourers and Fellmongers' Association for the cancellation of the registration, as an industrial union, of the Wool and Basil Workers' Association. The applicants were represented by Mr. J. Stuart Thom, and the respondents by Mr. D. Gulhen.

In giving reserved judgment yesterday Mr. Justice Heydon set out fully the history of the case as it appeared in evidence. He said that the great strike broke out about August 1. Twelve days later the union had a large meeting, at which it was plain that those present recognised that, unless they repudiated the "black" doctrine, they would probably have to strike. They did not, and subsequent events showed that they would not repudiate that doctrine. Out of about 1200 members in the union 1036 were out of work and 152 at work. On September 13 the union elected their president to be their representative on the strike defence committee.

His Honor referred to the Painters' Union, whose action in keeping out of the strike seemed to him to point a moral. "This union," said his Honor, "had the clear sightedness and the firmness to keep out of this trouble throughout. It did what other unions have lost their registrations for not doing. It appears to stand free of all responsibility for the help that has been given to the enemy, and for the suffering that has been inflicted upon our women and children. Yet the Labour Council is reported in the papers to have punished this union for standing out of the strike. It has done the equivalent of cancelling their registration with the Labour Council. This is keeping up the fight, and the doctrine that the law must be disobeyed. If the Court is to be asked to forgive those who put their union above their country, why do not the unions set an example by forgiving those who put their country above their union? We call a man who puts himself above his country a very ugly name. Does it make a difference if it is a group of men?

"Mr. Gulhen, who represented the union, had made a very earnest appeal to the Court not to cancel the registration of a small and poor union, which since 1911 had been orderly. "I would," added his Honor, "most gladly meet his wishes; but how can I? I must be consistent; I cannot make fish of one and flesh of another. The facts speak for themselves. It is perfectly clear to me that the union asserted the 'black' doctrine, and entered into the general strike. Now that the strike is over, the community, I think, feels in a generous forget-and-forgive mood. I should like to be the mouthpiece of that mood, but I must do my duty. We cannot overlook how very serious the crisis was; what extreme distress the strike has caused, and that the whole thing was a widespread, formal, and ostentatious defiance of the law. Nor can it be denied that to forgive the union, on condition that it alters its rules, would be useless; for unions ignore their rules. Important questions affecting the general interest of the union were, according to the rules, to be decided by ballot. Yet they took no ballot. Other unions had acted similarly. One had a rule that it would not strike at all, which it adopted to get re-registration, and then it did strike. During the bad times, which prevailed before the recent strike, many unions thought nothing of striking, even though it cost them their registration. A time has now come to show that loss of registration is rather a serious matter, and that it does hurt. Is the Court to hold its hand because it hurts? I should be glad to see my way clear to let the union off, but, really, I cannot. I must direct the cancellation of its registration as an industrial union."

FLIGHT TO MELBOURNE.

The Minister for Education (Mr. James) is busily engaged clearing up his departmental duties in order to free himself for his flight to Melbourne in company with Chief Pilot Instructor Stutt, of the Richmond Aviation School. He will leave Richmond at 5.30 on Thursday morning.

LIBERTY LOAN.

MR. DENISON MILLER'S APPEAL.

Applications for war loan bonds close on November 2. This is Australia's fifth war loan. Once more the people of the Commonwealth are asked to help to win the war by lending their money to their country. Compared with what our soldiers in the trenches are doing, it is not too much to ask of those who are obliged to stay at home, but it means a great deal. Money, as the Commonwealth Treasurer puts it, is a good soldier.

Mr. Denison Miller, Governor of the Commonwealth Bank, which has the management of the loan in its hands, told a "Herald" representative yesterday that there was a steady stream of applications coming in from all over Australia. "Until the last day actually arrives, however, it is hard to estimate what the response will be," he said. "The Treasurer has authority to borrow £80,000,000 for this year, and he is now asking for £20,000,000. There are indications that the loan will be liberally responded to, as the bulk of the people of Australia are anxious to assist in winning the war to such extent as they may be able to contribute. I have no fear as to Australia's ability and willingness to find the money. This is a producing country, only partially developed, and with the high prices we are obtaining for our wool, wheat, metals, butter, skins, and other products, an amount like £80,000,000 is not beyond our possibilities. The present loan will be followed by others—how soon the next one will be in coming will depend, of course, on the amount that is raised now.

"AUSTRALIA'S WAR."

"The loan has been liberally advertised all over Australia, and the public have from day to day had the matter brought prominently before them, so that there is no excuse for anybody who can assist to hold back. The urgency for raising large sums of money is very apparent, as the Treasurer has said that Australia is required to find £64,000,000 for war expenditure this year. I have no doubt that Australia is quite able to find such a sum, although it appears a large one, and it is to be hoped that the liberal terms offered by the Commonwealth Government for this loan, which is on the same basis as previous loans, will meet with that full and hearty response that we expect. Australia to-day is as far removed from the seat of war as it is possible to be, and the incentive that is so manifest in Great Britain, where they hear the booming of the guns and the dropping of bombs, and see all the misery and loss of life entailed, is not present here. But this is Australia's war none the less. Our sons are fighting, and many of them dying, for our sakes, and it is up to us to do our bit and stick to them till the war is happily ended.

PREVIOUS LOANS.

The following table is of interest, as showing the number of applicants and the amounts subscribed in the four previous loans:—

	Number of Applicants.	Amounts Subscribed.
First War Loan	18,748	£13,389,440
Second War Loan	29,939	21,655,690
Third War Loan	102,642	23,587,420
Fourth War Loan	66,191	21,484,026
		£80,116,586

The management expenses for the loans already raised were as follows:—First loan, 5/2½ per cent.; second, 4/7¾; third, 4/3¾; fourth, 4/3½. These figures include commission to the Commonwealth Bank of 2/ per cent., which also provides for the payment of interest and principal. The interest cost to the Commonwealth, including redemption, but not allowing for exemption from Commonwealth and State income taxes, was as follows:—First loan, £4 14s 10d per cent.; second, £4 14s 6d; third, £4 14s 3d; fourth, £4 13s 10d. The variation is the result of slight alterations in regard to the payment of the instalments.

DISTURBING FACTORS.

There has been hesitancy on the part of some to subscribe largely to the present loan owing to the uncertainty regarding the operation of the war profits tax. The amount of the assessment and the length of the period for which this special tax will run are important questions to many. The last loan was raised in February. The wool people knew what their clips would realise, and the wheat people knew what they were getting. Now they do not know. The first pronouncement regarding wool was only made yesterday, and as far as the wheat is concerned all the farmer has is a promise from the Federal Government that he shall get 4s f.o.b. for his wheat next year.

There is another factor that is, perhaps, having a disturbing effect on the loan—there is a simultaneous campaign for the sale of war-saving certificates. This campaign received a fillip recently as a result of the efforts of the wholesale and retail merchants and traders, and there is a danger that some of the public may think they are doing their duty sufficiently by buying these certificates. But they should not allow their efforts in this direction to take the place of their subscriptions to the war loan; rather should it be the "little more" that they do.

The call is an urgent one, and no man who can possibly afford it should neglect to subscribe to the loan. Each according to his ability—that is what is asked and what is expected of us. And remember that you are not giving your money away; you are only lending it, and getting good interest on it. It is a gilt-edged security.

SUBSCRIBE OR BE TAXED.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

Mr. Cook (Minister for the Navy), addressing the Nationalist Conference, advised a generous subscription to the war loan. "It means this," he said: "If you don't do it willingly we shall take it in taxation. That is one thing we cannot let you off; we will take it from you in taxation, and you will not get any interest, so you had better give generously."

The secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Collins) stated to-day that War Loan Bonds could be deposited by merchants with the Customs Department as security under the Customs regulations.

FACTORY DESTROYED.

FIRE AT LEICHHARDT.

Shortly after noon yesterday a fire, which resulted in damage estimated to be close on £10,000, occurred at Messrs. Barclay and Company's box factory, White-street, Leichhardt.

The outbreak appears to have originated at the southern end of the building, and as a southerly wind was blowing the flames within 20 minutes spread over the whole length of the factory.

The factory was well alight when the firemen got to work, and although they laboured arduously with several motors and four lines from hydrants they were unable to save the building. They managed, however, to prevent the flames from spreading to the offices, and also saved some weatherboard dwellings close by.

When the brigades ceased work shortly after 6 o'clock the factory, which was a wood and iron structure, about 250ft by 200ft, had been completely burned down, and the contents, including some valuable machinery, destroyed.

Mr. Barclay, the owner, estimated the damage at £10,000. It was insured for £5000 in the Australian Mercantile Mutual Insurance Company, Limited.

CONSCRIPTION.

EFFECT ON RECRUITING.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Sir William Irvine, commenting to-day on the statement of Mr. Leckie, M.P., that the reopening of the conscription question would mean a diminution of about 50 per cent. in the voluntary recruiting figures, said that experience proved the exact opposite to be the truth. For months before the referendum was taken conscription was the most prominent subject dealt with on every platform, and the monthly rate of recruiting at that time was roughly 8000 to 10,000. Immediately after the referendum the rate of recruiting decreased.

RAILWAY FATALITY.

COOTAMUNDRA, Tuesday.

On Saturday evening five men belonging to a gang employed re-railing on the Temora line were returning from town to their camp, riding on a Sheffield trolly, when they were suddenly confronted, in a bad cutting a few miles out from Cootamundra, with the oncoming Temora mail, running at 30 miles an hour. They jumped off the trolly, and tried to save it, but were not quick enough. The engine cut the trolly in two, and the flying pieces hit a man named Fred. Day, aged 55, fracturing his skull and killing him. An inquest, held by the Coroner (Mr. P. M'Mahon), resulted in a verdict of accidental death, but a rider was added that the men were wrongfully using the trolly. No blame was attached to any of the railway officials.

SWEDEN AND THE WAR.

CONSUL-GENERAL'S STATEMENT.

NOT HELPING THE GERMANS.

The Luxburg case and its effect on the Swedish elections, a vigorous protest against the allegation that Sweden was feeding or helping to feed the Central Powers, and the irritation now being caused in Sweden by the continuous sinking of Swedish vessels by German submarines were among matters mentioned by Mr S. T. de Goes, Swedish Consul-General, who has returned to Sydney after an absence of a year. From January 1 next Sweden will have a full Consulate-General in Australia, thus bringing her into line with the other Scandinavian Powers.

"What is specially interesting to you," said Mr. de Goes, "is the Luxburg case. You must understand that Sweden was quite placed in the dark before the details were published. It is a recognised general rule that these telegrams are sent by neutral Powers for belligerents. If this affair has done Sweden damage, it has done Germany a greater damage—far more damage in Sweden than many can imagine. The result has been seen in the last elections to the Second House of Parliament. The Conservatives lost heavily. Now the Socialists and the Liberals quite predominate in the House. This means, of course, that it will be practically impossible in the new Parliament for the present Government to carry on. There will be a change of Government, either a coalition from the whole House or a Socialist-Liberal Ministry. It means an exceedingly friendly feeling towards the Allies. As a matter of fact, to-day there are fully two-thirds of the Swedish population who favour the Allies.

"As to the allegation that Sweden is helping to feed the Central Powers," said the Consul-General, "I must enter my strong protest. We are not doing anything of the kind. Sweden herself is only two-thirds self-supporting in regard to breadstuffs. One can understand and judge from that that Sweden would be unable largely to export without greatly interfering with her own people's wants. If Sweden has been exporting more largely during the war than previously, her imports in this direction would also show in that direction. Take the imports of wheat, rye, and flour during the years from 1911 to 1916, and see how Sweden stood. In 1913 she imported 326,000 tons of flour, and in 1916 296,000 tons. Those figures would show she was not able to export much to other countries. As a matter of fact, what she did export was very little. In 1914 Sweden exported to the Central Powers 1800 bushels of wheat; in 1915, 1200 bushels; in 1916, 1600 bushels; and in 1917, nothing at all. Now, take rye and oats. In 1916 500,000 bushels were sent to the Central Powers; in 1914, 1915, and 1917, nothing at all. Take corn. In 1916 80 tons were exported; during the other year of the war, nothing at all. If one takes into count the whole of the production of Sweden in regard to foodstuffs and fodder, it will be found that since the outbreak of the war her total exports have amounted to 9,000,000 tons. This amounts to only one-tenth per cent. of the whole of her exports.

"It has been said," continued the Consul-General, "that we have helped the Central Powers very considerably in regard to meat supplies. Well, I will give the figures to show just how far we have helped her. In 1915 Sweden exported to Germany on account of meat, pork, and cattle a total of 20,400 tons. Last year she exported to the same country for the same cypher 20,000 tons. Taking the German population at 65,000,000 people and the exports of meat in 1915, each German would have received 1lb of meat from Sweden and in 1916 11oz.

"Our principal exports to Germany have been iron ore and boots. We have to get our coal from Germany, also our chemicals, machinery, dye stuffs, and several other things. But Germany has to pay very dearly for whatever she gets. I say we are not feeding Germany. I protest strongly against that statement. We cannot do it, and if the blockade by the Allies goes on we shall have to place our people on two-thirds rations."

Touching on the continuous sinking of Swedish vessels and fishing smacks by German submarines, Mr. de Goes said it was having a very irritating effect on the people of Sweden, and it was not doing Germany any good. "I remember one case," he said, "where a large sailing vessel, loaded with fertilisers, was destroyed off the coast of Spain. This caused considerable irritation, and agitation as well, among the country people—our agriculturists. Then, too, there was the sinking of a large number of fishing smacks. There was a terrible loss of life connected with the destruction of these vessels. While Germany made reparation for the loss of the vessels, she could not replace the lost lives, and it was this that was causing considerable bitterness against her."

Concluding, the Consul-General expressed the hope there would be very cordial relations between Sweden and Britain. He hoped a friendly feeling would always exist between Sweden and Australia. The whole of Scandinavia was interested in Australia. To-day there were very large numbers of Swedes fighting on the British side, and there were many Australian-Swedes in the firing-line. Numbers had applied to him to be permitted to go, but, while he could not give official sanction and encouragement, being connected with a neutral country, he offered no objection, leaving it to the military authorities to say whether they would be accepted.

WATERSIDE LABOUR.

WARNING TO MALCONTENTS.

Cases of serious interference by members of the old Wharf-Labourers' Union with other workers who are registered at the Shipping Labour Bureau having occurred, the shipping companies desire to warn the members of the old union that they will not tolerate any interference with any such registered labourers as they may elect to employ. If these tactics are not discontinued forthwith, it was stated yesterday, members of the old Wharf-Labourers' Union will be entirely excluded from work on the wharfs.

There are many more men offering than there is work for, even if no member of the old Wharf-Labourers' Union were employed, and the latter are reminded that in their signed applications for employment they gave an undertaking that they would work peacefully, and not molest other labourers. Whilst the employers have no desire to exclude members of the old union from work on the wharfs, and have no quarrel with unionism, it is repeated emphatically that molestation of volunteer labour or of members of other unions who are entitled to be employed on the wharfs will not be tolerated.

PROPOSED AMALGAMATION.

MASTERS AND ENGINEERS.

At the sitting of the Federal Council of the Masters and Engineers' Association just concluded in Sydney the question of amalgamating with the Merchant Service Guild was dealt with. A conference between the councillors and officers of the guild took place, when a basis of amalgamation satisfactory to both unions was adopted, and a postal ballot will be taken of all the members of the Masters and Engineers' Association as to whether they will accept the proposal. The basis provides that on amalgamation being accomplished, the masters and engineers' secretary should take up the position as secretary of the harbours, rivers, and coastal branch of the Merchant Service Guild, with a transfer of the entire membership and books of the guild premises. The masters and engineers will be governed by a permanent committee, to be selected by transferred members of the harbours, rivers, and coastal branch annually. After a period of six months from the date of amalgamation all the new members will pay an entrance fee of £5 5s, to be paid within a period of twelve months of application for membership. The branch will have control of its own funds, and a proportion of the funds will be paid to the Merchant Service Guild on a pro rata basis for general expenditure. The body will be known as the Harbours, Rivers, and Coastal branch of the Merchant Service Guild of Australasia.

IMPLEMENT MAKERS.

The federal council of the Australasian Society of Engineers received a request from the Federated Implement Makers of Victoria to meet them in conference to discuss the question of amalgamating the two societies. A conference was held as requested, when conditions were drawn up. These were accepted by the federal council of the Society of Engineers, and then submitted to a general meeting of the Implement Makers, and endorsed. It was decided that a ballot should be taken immediately, and it is now being proceeded with. The ballot is to close this week. The officers express confidence that the proposals will be accepted by a large majority. The implement makers of Victoria have about 1500 members in Victoria and about 500 in South Australia.

"HERALD" EMPLOYEE KILLED.

GUNNER A. H. LIVINGSTONE, of the Clerical Staff of the "Sydney Morning Herald."

Information has been received by Mr. David Livingstone, of Bombala, that his son, Gunner Arthur Henry Livingstone, was killed on the Western front between October 10 and 12. He was 23 years of age, and was educated at the Monaro Grammar School. Before joining the staff of the "Herald" he was an officer of the Bank of New South Wales in the country, and enlisted in September, 1915, in the Field Artillery, proceeding first to Egypt and then to France.

EAST-WEST RAILWAY.

The Minister for Works (Mr. Ball) and the Minister for Mines (Mr. Fitzpatrick), will be present as the representatives of this State at the formal opening of the trans-Australian railway, and will leave Sydney on Thursday of next week. The Premier (Mr. Holman) had been urged to make the trip also, but he has not so far made up his mind in regard to the matter. Mr. Ashford, Minister for Lands, proposes to attend a forestry conference in Perth, and will fit in the visit to Western Australia with the opening ceremony of the railway. Mr. Ashford will be accompanied by Mr. J. H. Maiden, Government Botanist, and Mr. R. Dalrymple Hay, Chief Commissioner for Forests.

COMPULSORY SERVICE.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

At a meeting at the Town Hall on Monday night a communication from the New South Wales Referendum Petition Committee was considered. A resolution was carried that, whilst the meeting recognised the present need for compulsory service, it did not approve of the referendum. Furthermore, if the Federal Government had not power to give effect to compulsory service, the issue should be decided by a general election, applying to both Houses of Parliament.

A SOLDIER'S WIDOW.

GOODS TAKEN FOR RENT.

Emanuel Myerson was charged at the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. McKensey, S.M., under the War Precautions Act, with distraining on furniture the property of a Mrs. Annie Woolsey, widow of a soldier. It was stated during the evidence that the dwelling was taken in the name of Smith, and defendant said that he did not know Mrs Woolsy lived in the house, or that any dependent of a soldier was there. A fine of £30 was imposed, with £6/11/ costs, or four months' imprisonment; defendant was also ordered to pay £20, the value of the furniture seized, in default, six weeks' imprisonment.

PROPOSED REFERENDUM PETITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—We desire to put before your readers a few reasons why this petition should succeed:—

1. The process is democratic; the petition will be a people's one as large and representative as voluntary effort can make it.

2. The object is the nation's self-defence—it is more than desirable—it is one which must be gained in order that Australia may be worthy and useful as a factor in the civilisation which is at stake under the menace of Germany. Not merely national self-respect, but freedom springs from self-reliance and freedom will be lost to us and others if we cannot take our own part adequately.

3. The occasion is unique in two ways:—(a) The minds of voters are now especially trained to come to a conclusion, and (b) there can never have been so favourable an opportunity for the collection by voluntary workers of large numbers of signatures.

As to (a): The referendum of a year ago brought unprecedented numbers to the polling booths. Since October, 1916, the action of the Federal Government has given great assistance and the fullest unimpeded opportunity to voluntary effort, but recruiting has not been sufficiently maintained, and experience has therefore shown within 12 months that the alternative to compulsion (voluntarism) is unsound. Again: Our voters have now 12 months more experience and knowledge of the war, and, if demonstration were needed that we fight on the side of democracy and for principle, those proofs have been forthcoming. And further still, if proof were wanted that our lads need help, and knowledge that their ranks are thinned has come. There seems to be now no question of increasing our armies, only of properly maintaining them.

Now as to (b) the opportunity to proceed by means of petition is likewise unique. Warm patriotism has created bands of voluntary war workers who toil zealously for their dear ones and their country's honour in a new way. Many of these will throw their energy into working upon this petition, so that it will be canvassed as no petition ever has been.

4. The process will clear the atmosphere. The requirements of national honour and duty are clear, and folk will have to determine whether to sign this petition or refuse. Thus, certain supposed Nationalists who voted "anti" on the last occasion, will not be able to throw the responsibility on to another political party or a religious body, but will have to come into the open, and in the open we think right will win.

5. Singleness of purpose: The petition represents a single purpose: those who join the referendum petition committee need have no further or ulterior object but that Australia shall reinforce her own sons and do her part. Those who want the further ideals of universal service and those who are not yet ripe for such aims can work together for the limited necessary purpose which should be the aim of all, namely to provide constitutional means of getting the much-needed reinforcements.

We, the writers of this letter, for example, might not, perhaps, be found in the same boat upon all occasions; one of us possibly is more deeply imbued with a sense of the needs and problems of defence; the other more conversant with and jealous to preserve the ideals of popular constitutional government. But neither of us yields to the other in anxiety for the welfare of Australia, and thus we can work in absolute harmony for this movement.

6. Definition of the question: The lessons of the past have been a positive gain for the purposes of this petition and have enabled the question to be framed in a way that will command the approval of large bodies of voters. For example: The question takes the provisions of our Australian Defence Act as the basis and includes recognition of the principle which gained approval in England as the "Derby" scheme (calling up by yearly groups instead of men of 21 to 25 in one lot, as on the last occasion). Then room has been left for Parliament to settle the necessary exemptions for vital industries, and for the fair spreading of the burden of service in families, and the most reasonable exemptions offered by the Government on the occasion of the last referendum are adhered to.

We claim, therefore, that with a democratic process and a democratic object, an occasion so unique, a purpose so single and clearly defined there are in this movement all factors making for success.

And the movement is capable of embracing all classes, all parties in politics and all modes of thought. It is not originated by politicians, and we shall not be surprised if we find it frowned upon by some of them. No one need have the fear that if he comes into this committee he will be caught in any political net. We are, etc.,

GERALD R. CAMPBELL,
F. A. A. RUSSELL,
Joint Hon. Secs.,
N.S.W. Referendum Petition Committee.

RECRUITING.

TO-NIGHT'S MEETING.

SENATOR PEARCE TO SPEAK.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) will deliver an address on Australia's part in the war in the Town Hall to-night, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Donald Mackinnon, M.L.A., Director-General of Recruiting, will also speak. In view of recent military events on the eastern and southern fronts, the Minister's speech is expected to be of more than ordinary interest. Returned discharged soldiers are specially invited to be present—seats have been reserved for them—and have official permission to wear their uniforms for the occasion. Skipper Francis will sing his own composition, "Australia will be There," before the Minister's address; the City Organist, Mr. Ernest Truman, will give an organ recital; and the Liverpool Headquarters Band, under Bandmaster Mellor, will render patriotic airs.

KILLARA RECRUITING RALLY.

The Director-General of Recruiting, Mr. Donald Mackinnon, M.L.A., will address a recruiting meeting at Killara, in the Killara Hall, at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening. Other speakers on the platform will be Professor Macintyre, chairman of the State Recruiting Committee, and Major Shillington, organising secretary of the committee. Mr. Lawrence Campbell will recite "Hell Gate at Soissons" and "Carry On."

A WEEK'S RECRUITING.

During last week 234 volunteers were accepted in this State out of 473 who offered. The number who were accepted in each subdistrict of the State were:—Calare, 4; Cook, 14; Cowper, 4; Dalley, 10; Darling, 9; East Sydney, 11; Eden-Monaro, 6; Gwydir, 10; Hume, 7; Hunter, 1; Illawarra, 7; Lang, 19; Macquarie, 4; Nepean, 7; Newcastle, 21; New England, 5; North Sydney, 15; Parkes, 15; Parramatta, 9; Richmond, —; Riverina, 3; Robertson, 9; South Sydney, 11; Wentworth, 10; Werriwa, 8; West Sydney, 9; outside areas, 6. Total, 234.

TO-DAY'S MEETINGS.

Martin-place: 1 p.m., Mr. Donald MacKinnon, Mr. Austin Chapman, M.P., Professor Macintyre.

Town Hall: 8 p.m., Senator Pearce, Minister for Defence, Mr. Donald Mackinnon, Professor Macintyre.

To-morrow's fixtures are as under:—

Killara: 8 p.m., Mr. Donald Mackinnon, Professor Macintyre, Major Shillington.

Randwick workshops: 12 noon, Sergt. Douglass, Warrant-officer Blake, Private Norman.

Neutral Bay gas works: 12.15 p.m., Lieut. Nicholls, Sergt. Devlin.

APPEAL TO WOMEN.

An appeal for the assistance of women throughout New South Wales in raising recruits for the sportsmen's units was made at a public meeting in the vestibule of the Town Hall yesterday afternoon. It is hoped that one woman in every Federal polling district will undertake the duties of honorary organiser, and will enlist the active assistance of other women. Each woman will receive a diploma of membership, and will wear a medallion, which she will pin on to the breast of a recruit procured by her, when she will be supplied with a fresh one from the office at Penzance-chambers, 29 Elizabeth-street, Sydney.

The Lord Mayor, who presided, appealed to the women of the State to throw themselves wholeheartedly into the work of procuring recruits. "In the fulfilment of our great obligation," he declared, "you are our last resource, and we appeal to you. The honour of Australia is at stake. I say definitely here to-day, if those who with flushed faces and loud voices cheered the marching heroes as they went on board the transports are not prepared to make the gaps good, it would have been better if no one had ever been cheered going from Australia's soil."

Mr. J. J. Cohen, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, in proposing a motion forming all present into a committee to co-operate in the campaign, which was carried, said that the voluntary system in Australia was not providing half the men who were needed to reinforce their troops at the front. It was hard to imagine any eligible man holding back when it was known that the five divisions at the front were far from receiving the support that they required, and the 5000 men who were all that were left of the first division could not get back to their native land for the rest that they had so well earned, and which they so greatly needed, because men were not forthcoming to take their places.

Major Shillington, Mr. R. L. Baker, and Mr. R. S. M'Coy also addressed the meeting, and musical items were rendered by Professor Ranclaud, of Sydney University, and Miss Punch.

Private John Norton, of the machine gun and trench mortar battery, was tendered a farewell social on Monday evening by the North Auburn Church of Christ. Chaplain F. T. Saunders presided. Private Norton held the position of Bible school secretary, and was a member of the choir. Several presentations were made to him.

THE GRAMPIANS SEAT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Almost all the absent votes have now been counted in connection with the by-election for the Grampians seat in the House of Representatives. The totals now are:—

Edmund Jowett (Nat.)	11,225
D. P. Russell (Lab.)	9,261
Majority for Mr. Jowett	1,964

SINN FEINISM.

"Sinn Feinism is a thing of grave danger to the Empire to-day," said Professor M'Intyre, speaking at the annual banquet of the Ulster Association last night. "The present situation in Ireland, but not in Ulster, is still full of grave anxiety. That spirit of Sinn Feinism is even spreading its evil disease into Australia. It is not out of place to say that the head of a Church in another State, Victoria, encourages Sinn Feinism, the very heart and passion of which is disloyalty to the Empire. (Voices: "Intern him!") Australia does not want it, and will not have it, and will know what to do with those who encourage it. (Applause.) I will say this. Whatever happens, whatever means need to be taken, and whatever method we have to adopt, the one thing Australia can never do is to be false to her pledge to the men at the front. In Australia nearly 360,000 of her men have gone forward, and in all half a million of men have offered themselves. That is a splendid thing for Australian history in that men recognised their duty. Duty, however, is not limited by the recognising of it. I think the time is very close at hand when the force of that duty will have to be brought home. I hope the time will come when there will be a man in our midst big and strong enough to forget every political interest and come forward and say he will stand for Australian duty, whatever may befall him. (Applause.) If that man comes, I say Australia will stand by him. I believe the time has practically arrived when the duty which is not recognised will be compelled to be recognised."

GERMAN ESCAPEES.

LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.

Early this morning the Liverpool police were informed that two Germans, Heinrich Carl Seemann, 21, and Edward Carri, 35, who escaped from the concentration camp at Holdsworthy last Saturday morning, stole into a stable on the premises of Mr. Frank M'Mahon, of Hart-street, Liverpool, where they stayed the previous night, and were proceeding to Sydney.

The police immediately commenced a search of the scrub on the Kaloola Estate, at the rear of Toohey's Hotel, Cabramatta, and sighted the escapees near Mr. L. Haine's residence. The men immediately dived deeper into the scrub, pursued by the mounted police at full gallop. The Germans, however, evaded the police, who were assisted by a number of civilians, and later on turned up near Canley Vale Public School, which they visited for water. The escapees kept to the bush at Canley Vale, and crossed Orphan School Creek at the rear of the Chinamen's gardens, but made for the Liverpool-road near Canley Vale railway station, where Constable Copas, of Fairfield, who was mounted on a bicycle, overtook and arrested them, revolver in hand. The men were making for the city. The pursuit of the men lasted until the afternoon.

PRICE-FIXING PROSECUTIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

As a warning to traders, it was announced by the Minister in charge of Foodstuffs, Senator Russell, to-day that a number of prosecutions for alleged infringements of the price-fixing regulations in Victoria were pending.

EXPLOSIVES.

TO DESTROY SHIPS.

A YOUNG MAN CHARGED.

Harold Batten, alias Sanders, a young man, was charged at the Central Police Court yesterday with having in his possession gelignite, detonators, and fuse, with intent to commit malicious injury within the meaning of the Crimes Act, 1900, by causing explosions upon ships.

Inspector Mitchell prosecuted, and Mr. Stewart appeared for the defence.

Evidence was given by Detective Souter that on October 10 he asked accused whether he was a student of Baylidon's Nautical School, and he replied that he was. Witness then said to him: "I have a couple of letters, I believe, in your handwriting," and showed them to accused, who said he had written the letters, but it was only a silly joke. "There is mention in the letters of blowing up ships," said the witness, and accused answered "Yes; but I could not do that, I am English." There were, he said, plenty of Germans about the city, and he wrote these letters to let the shipping companies know. Accused said he came to Sydney in a transport, and paid £4 4s for tuition at the nautical college as he wanted to qualify for an officer. The witness produced two letters, which, he said, he had received from the Inspector-General of Police. Both were addressed to the manager of the Marine Insurance Company, and ran as follows:—

September 27.

I am a student of Baylidon's school, but have left owing to coming in contact with one or two from Bu—, Philp, and Co., who are working at me to kid me to bust up your ships with explosives. They are hitting at you for some money, either to dodge paying you the proper insurance or something of effect. My discharges are incorrect. I have not served full time of the engineering at sea from the merchant bounds. I would like a couple or half a dozen. If you have some discharges, new, printed, and unfilled in, would you forward them to me, so I could make my time full by same.

I have a New Zealand stamp and pad, and can stamp them when I fill them. Also send shipping masters' signatures and other signatures, making everything correct for whatever ports you fix them. New Zealand, make them for five years. I will either get through or fix them. I will place the name, etc. Could you tell me how I could get a birth certificate in Australia at any required port? It seems hard having to face the sea, but now I have paid my money for tuition I am going to fix things some all right.

Kindly forward same as required by this letter by me, to the address given below, at earliest convenience. Yours, thankingly, Sea Life.

Written on the side of the letter were the words:—"Should you fail at earliest date, look out. I'm gone."

G. E. L., Sydney G.P.O.

September 27.

Dear Sir,—I have been a student of Baylidon's school, and have left. Am going to sea privately. He has kept me back, and my time of unfortunate living at such a job at sea is not correct to the three years required.

I am going to fix the (these words were scratched out). Would you forward me some discharges that I could fill up to my satisfaction? You could put them New Zealand or any place you think that will not be detected. Do not send me a letter asking me questions, as I am gone, and you know what that means. Kindly forward me the discharges with a signature of shipping masters at bottom, ship, etc., and I will fill my name and age for myself, and time required, and occupation required. Should you fail to send same at early date to address given, look out.

G. E. L., Sydney G.P.O.

On receiving required I will notify you with thanks.

On the back of a memo. from the Victorian Government Statistician, dated September 12 of this year, and addressed to W. E. Sanders, G.P.O., Sydney, the following was written in pencil:—

When I go up for examination I am one of the mugs that was caught young and crammed it together, and am a terrible great thing, an officer now. I will wear my uniform the day I go up, and let them know I have caught them, the Nerong and some others. Also had much in it to get my second mate's certificate, and have more plugs in.

I am going for a job in a shipping office, taking a term to the sea, and will take it on and will get my master's certificate as soon as possible. I will also let them see that it was me that sunk the Nerong, giving notice of a larger one if I don't get what.

Witness, continuing, said he found in accused's room in George-street a parcel in which there were plugs of gelignite, a coil of fuse, two socks, and a tin containing a powder, also packets containing wax matches, and some newspapers. In a handbag he found some detonators in sawdust, some seamen's discharges in the name of H. Batten, and other papers, as well as a notebook with the name "J. E. Sanders" in it. Accused admitted ownership of the notebook. Witness pointed out to him that a tin of stuff rolled up in the socks contained phosphorus, and questioned him about the gelignite and fuse. Accused said he picked it up, but witness told him he had found a receipt for it. When spoken to about the phosphorus, accused said: —"I know nothing about that crowd." In the notebook were references to blowing up ships.

Frederick Wenden Stewart, discharge clerk in the Government Shipping Office, said he issued a discharge to accused off a steamer on August 9 of this year. A day or two afterwards accused went to the office and handed witness a letter, which he gave to Detective Souter:—

For Discharge Department, Shipping Dept.

J. E. Sanders, of ——, scullion.

Dear Sir,—I received my discharge from the —— who I joined at Melbourne after the other chap had signed for London. It was all you could do for that lot, I know. I suppose you saw the captain of the —— was anxious for me to get a cook's job, as I don't suit as a scullion, so if you write me a couple of discharges from transports (the word sunk was scratched out) in the capacity of steward, where there are 20 or more stewards, for three or four years, I have a couple of quid for you now, if you agree; so if you make for me for about four years I will be your true friend in future times. I will get into the chef's department all the silver. I am your true friend.—J. E. Sanders.

P.S.—So as to be fair, post my letter to 79 George-street North, near the Sailors' Home, stating where I will meet you to receive the discharge and pay you.

Yours anxiously, C. Sanders.

A witness named Gubrin deposed to selling accused 1lb of gelignite and a coil of fuse on October 8. He wanted some detonators as well, but witness told him he could not supply the two together. On the following day he returned for the detonators.

The magistrate asked whether there was any restriction on the sale of explosives, and was told there was not. His Worship remarked that this should be brought under the notice of the authorities.

Accused when asked whether he wished to say anything replied, "I am innocent; I had no intention of blowing up ships."

He was committed for trial, and allowed bail, himself in £200 and one surety of £200; other sureties of £100 each.

MINERS' COURTS.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

The Court to inquire into alleged victimisation sat again to-day.

When the case of H. W. Payne was called he demanded that before he made any statement specific charges should be laid against him by the manager. Judge Curlewis intimated that he would conduct the inquiry his own way. Mr. Sweeney, who represented the men, and Payne then withdrew. Several other men made similar demands, and their cases were not heard. Those who did not make such demands were proceeded with, and subsequently his Honor and Messrs. Morgan and Sweeney had a conference on the bench. Mr. Sweeney returned to the table, and said that he thought he should represent the men when they desired him to.

In the case of Knight, of the South Bulli mine, Mr. Miller, manager of the Coledale colliery, where he formerly worked, said that when Knight worked at the mine he suspected him of belonging to the I.W.W. He was the head of a clique in the mine organised for the purpose of stopping the mine either by strikes or obstructions. He had to appoint patrols along the ropes to prevent stoppages. A lot of stoppages took place at that time owing to wilful breakage of the machinery. Knight denied the whole of the charges. He said that they were nothing else than concoctions raised to get him out of the industry. He went on to say that a manager in New Zealand said that he was a good workman and a man of his word.

His Honor expressed the opinion that any miner who took part in the recent strike could not call himself a man of his word, for the miners had given their word to preserve industrial peace for three years, and had broken it. His Honor said that Knight was a man of considerable intelligence. There was no doubt that trouble seemed to follow him wherever he went. To say that he had been dismissed owing to his connection with unionism was ridiculous. In his Honor's opinion the managers believed that he was a bad character, and a man they would not have, and in his opinion he had been dismissed on honest and conscientious grounds.

The grounds given for the dismissal of a miner named Somerville were habitual bad language, to which his fellow-workmen even objected. This he denied, and he was allowed time to call evidence that his language was not offensive to his mates.

In several cases the men were allowed time to produce evidence in reply to the statements made by the managers. It is intimated that George Phillips, who was one of the representatives who took part in negotiations with the Government, had been reinstated.

LABOUR FOR NEW ZEALAND.

The New Zealand Government Agent, Mr. W. R. Blow, has received cable information from the Dominion Government stating that it guarantees that Australian shearers and slaughtermen going to the Dominion for the season will at the end thereof be granted permits to return to Australia.

COLONIAL SUGAR COMPANY.

STATE OF THE INDUSTRY.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Colonial Sugar Refining Co., Ltd., was held yesterday, Mr. H. E. Kater, M.L.C., presiding. In moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, particulars of which are given in our financial columns, the chairman said that much trouble had been caused during August and September through the strike at two of the refineries and the subsequent shortage of coal at other factories, while the laying up of the sugar-carrying steamers rendered necessary the storage of large quantities of sugar at the mills. The situation has been relieved, but it may not yet be said that all is running smoothly. So far they could not accurately state the sum of their losses, for it was uncertain whether the consumption of sugar had actually been reduced during the last three months or the public had drawn on invisible stocks, which would later on be replenished.

At the mills in New South Wales the crops were somewhat below the average, some of the cane having been affected by recent heavy frosts. The industry in this State was, however, holding its own, and, indeed, on the Richmond and Tweed there was a prospect of an increase in their supplies of cane.

In Queensland the crop generally was too large for the crushing capacity of the factories, this being one of the consequences of the Cane Prices Act, which took from the manufacturer all the control hitherto exercised by him over the extent of the planting. The result was serious, and would become worse, for no remedy was in sight at present. At their mills the growers had realised that a reversion to the old system of co-operation with the millowners was best for all concerned, and the arrangement with them for the handling of this season's crop had worked satisfactorily. To defeat such a resumption of friendly relations the Government had passed through the Assembly a bill which contained, among other remarkable provisions, one empowering the Minister to take possession of and work a mill without any obligation to pay compensation, and to claim on the owners for loss involved by this action. This was one of the many examples in regard to recent legislation and administration which could be quoted as evidence of the spirit and temper of the politicians now controlling that State. Fortunately, those concerned in Queensland were awake to the danger of the position, but grave harm had already been done, and severe losses must be expected before there was a return to normal conditions. The handling of the 1917 sugar crop had, as before, been undertaken by the company under arrangement with the Federal Government. The agreement was on similar lines to those preceding it, except that provision was now made for the probable carrying over of a stock of sugar into the 1918 season, due to over production of cane, as above stated. One serious defect they had already found in the new agreement: they did not expect, nor provide for, the strike, and the loss thereby occasioned fell on the company.

In Fiji there had been unusually wet, cool weather during the autumn and winter, and they had, in consequence, a marked deficiency in the crops, both as to weight and sugar contents. And as to the future, the outlook was not clear, for the recent conference in London about the continuance of Indian immigration seeks to impose what look like impossible conditions for the engagement of the necessary labour. The Fiji company had declared an interim dividend, that on the ordinary shares being at the same rate as the fixed 6 per cent. on the preference stock. The Fiji company had again undertaken to supply New Zealand with sugar for twelve months at a stated price, the consumer being free to procure it elsewhere if he could do so more cheaply. The Board of Trade, in drawing attention to this arrangement, expressed its satisfaction at obtaining supplies for the Dominion at a much lower price than the cost of similar sugar in other countries.

The report as printed was then adopted.

METHODIST SYNODS.

The annual session of the Sydney District Synod of the Methodist Church opened in the Conference Hall, Castlereagh-street, yesterday. The president of the conference, the Rev. P. J. Stephen, occupied the chair.

It was resolved to recommend to the ensuing conference that the Rev. B. Danks be made a supernumerary.

It was decided to recommend that the Rev. W. E. Bennett, Principal of Leigh College for training candidates for the ministry, which was closed by resolution of the last conference, be retained in his present position at the college.

It was resolved to sanction the transfer of Brooklyn from the Gosford circuit to the Hornsby circuit, on condition that the Parramatta synod, in the district of which Brooklyn is situated, sanctions the transfer.

It was resolved to appoint a commission of inquiry as to possible adjustments in connection with Marrickville, Wardell-road, and Hurlstone Park Churches, and the area affected by them, the commission to report to the ensuing conference.

An application for the division of Hurstville-Kogarah circuit was considered. It was resolved to recommend that a new circuit be constituted to consist of Kogarah, Carlton, and Ramsgate Churches, and the constituency served by these churches, the new circuit to be known as Kogarah-Carlton circuit, and the remaining portion of the present Hurstville-Kogarah circuit to be known as Hurstville circuit, comprising Hurstville, Mortdale, Peakhurst, Hurstville South, and Oatley. It was also decided that a married preacher be appointed to the Hurstville circuit, and a probationer to the Kogarah-Carlton circuit.

Discussion took place over a proposal to divide Rockdale circuit. It was decided to recommend that Rockdale and West Botany-street be constituted the Rockdale circuit, and Arncliffe, Bexley, and West Bexley the Arncliffe-Bexley circuit.

Lakemba and Cronulla circuits applied for exemption from the obligation to take a married instead of an unmarried minister, as decided upon at conference. It was resolved to recommend that these applications be granted.

Statistical returns showed an increase in membership of 227 as compared with the previous year. In the Sunday-school there were 90 additional teachers, and an increase of 814 scholars.

WESTERN DISTRICT.

DUBBO, Tuesday.

The western district synod was opened today under the presidency of the Rev. Archibald Graham. Two candidates for the ministry, Messrs. W. Thompson and J. Mort, were recommended to the conference, and the Rev. J. N. V. Bullen was recommended for ordination.

ULSTER ASSOCIATION.

The eleventh annual banquet of the Ulster Association of New South Wales was held at Sargent's last night. Mr. C. W. Oakes, M.L.A. (president), presided. Amongst others present were Dr. Marano (Italian Consul), M. Chayet (French Consul), Messrs. E. W. Foxall (representing the Japanese Consul), T. Hoskins, M.L.A., Col. Onslow, M.L.A., W. F. Latimer, M.L.A., Geo. Nesbitt, M.L.A., T. Waddell, M.L.A., J. Stinson, A. F. Waters, Harkness (Under-Secretary), W. H. Wassall, D. Storey (Minister for Health), Cox (president of the Chamber of Commerce), Professor Macintyre, Professor Angus, J. M'Clure, J. Stevenson, Thompson, Coulter, and T. Phillip-Gibson (secretary).

The president, in the course of his address, said that Ulster stood for all that was brightest and best in English history, and Ulstermen were the loyal of the loyal. When England called, and duty was asked for, every Ulsterman was there. (Applause.)

Mr. John Stinson, in proposing the toast of Ulster, said that many of the sons of Ulster had gone out and fallen, and their record would live for ever. They as loyal Irishmen were privileged and proud to take part in the great struggle.

Mr. A. F. Waters responded, and said they had always endeavoured to keep the flag flying, and they were going to see the war through to the bitter end.

INDUSTRIAL FEDERATION.

The secretary (Mr. H. C. Mueller) of the Commercial and Industrial Federation of Australia states that the manifesto issued by the provisional committee has been accorded wide approval and support. Strenuous efforts are being made with considerable prospects of success to secure the repeal of the War-time Profits Tax Act. A branch has been formed in Brisbane, and Mr. William Harding, chairman of the Sydney committee, is in Melbourne arranging for the formation of a branch of the federation.

TRAINING NOTES.

CAULFIELD.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The weather this morning was perfect for galloping, the grass was recently cut, and there was not a breath of wind, and some very fast times were made. Erasseven furlongs of a mile in 1m 47s; Newtown (Stewart) slipped over six furlongs in 1m 18s. Rael Locin (Townsend) slipped over 6 furlongs in 1m 19s. Rael Locin (Townsend) was not fully extended for a mile and three furlongs in 2m 26½s, and he ran his first mile in 1m 46s. Veronal dashed off four furlongs in 50¼s, and Tread well did a furlong more in 1m 5¼s. St. Mira showed something of his old form by running six furlongs in 1m 15¼s, but the same journey occupied Whitefield 1m 16¾s. Semi Blue (Fox) moved nicely for a mile and a quarter in 2m 12¼s, and she was all out at the finish. Appendix beat Admirable Bob badly over a mile and a quarter in 1m 26½s, and Bronzetti (Dempsey) beat Court Jester (Eaton) by five lengths over a mile and three furlongs in 2m 24s. The Derby colt looks to have considerably improved since his Caulfield Cup race. Lord Bobadil galloped 7 furlongs in 1m 32s and five furlongs of it in 1m 7½s. St. Speed beat Verdun easily for five furlongs in 1m 2½s, and for the same journey Eudoria beat Tuneta in 1m 5s. Bridges was responsible for a mile in 1m 47s, and half that distance in 53¼s went down to Bottle King, who beat Mountain God. Lady Comely was in front of Sweet Lady at the end of four furlongs in 49s, and Beau Syce was a quarter of a second longer. Pleasant Moments beat Tongorogan over six furlongs in 1m 18s; Barley Prince, Amada, and Valet was the order at the end of five furlongs in 1m 4¼s. Secret Service made light of a mile in 1m 52¼s; Lady Lagrange sprinted five furlongs in 1m 4s, and Cetigne, who looked to have a pull in the weights, was going easily alongside of the Fortune Hunter for a mile and a quarter in 2m 17¼s. Ranger did not go as well as he did on Saturday morning. He was sent a mile and a half, and it took him 2m 46¼s, and he tired very much at the finish. He went off very fast with Mazarron for the first six furlongs in 1m 16¼s, while the last six, with Woolpagerie, took him 1m 24¼s. Queen Comely dashed off six furlongs; De Gama ran the last of six in 1m 4¼s. Royal Token outstayed Adagio at the end of a mile in 1m 47s on the sand, and Blind Murphy did long strong work. Camp Out's mission was a mile in 1m 52¼s; Westendale and Sedick went about a mile and a half at a strong pace; Piami made his way over a mile in 1m 47s; Parlamore ran the last two furlongs of his gallop in 25¼s. Polygamist did not put in an appearance, but went to the beach for swimming exercise.

FLEMINGTON.

It was rather chilly to-day, but the conditions were generally favourable for training operations, and there was a lot of interesting galloping, mostly on the outside of the course proper, witnessed by a large assemblage, which included the Rajah of Pudukota and Messrs. Philip Russell, S. P. Mackay, G. L. M'Donald, G. L. Stead, and D. U. Seaton.

On the course Westcourt (R. Marsden) beat Eastcourt (A. Brown) decisively in a well done gallop of a mile and a half in 2m 42¼, and did the last mile and a quarter in 2m 15s, and the last five furlongs in 1m 4s. Modesto was better than Royal Reserve for seven furlongs in 1m 30s. Biplane (R. Deeley) had the help of Killem for the first five furlongs of a mile, completed in 1m 46¼s, and he reached out in fine style. The Toff went at about easy-time pace, and Ample also strode along while Shrill ran five furlongs in 1m 7s. Lingle concluded some striding work with a brush up. Satin Bird was going leisurely for a mile in 1m 53¼s. Pah King (W. H. M'Lachlan) went well for a mile and a quarter in 2m 15¼s. Perform and Red Rock ran six furlongs in 1m 19¼s. Wallace Isinglass (M. Connell), after waiting behind Prince Viridis (A. Brown) and Cosmos (N. Russell), went past them and beat them by gaps of some lengths, and ran a mile and a quarter in 2m 11¼s. Colbert beat Lanius over the same ground in 2m 15¼s, while Orient (T. Burn) took a longer running in. Thane (light boy) gave Cagou (C. Marsden) about four lengths' start, and finished on equal terms with him over a mile and a quarter in 2m 13s, and she went uncommonly well. Sir Amyas (R. Lewis) finished a long way in front of Fantarie (F. Lander), who moved very scratchily in a weedy run gallop of a mile and a half in 2m 51s. Tongorogan helping for the final mile. Kilbus and Reliane sported half a mile in 51s. Mistico (R. W. Brennan) did well to run a mile in 1m 46s, while Roxy (L. N. Smart) took 1m 47s to go the same distance, and Spring Song (P. Kelly) ran 6 furlongs in 1m 19s. Lanius (J. L. Riley) had the help of Accrington for the first 7 furlongs and of Shadowland (H. Cairns) for the remainder of a gallop of a mile and a-half, which occupied 2m 43s, while the last 5 furlongs were run in 1m 7s, and the big English horse seemed to go somewhat sluggishly, but he looked well after his work. Chrome (a very light boy), who is holding his condition wonderfully well, was going very easily for a mile and a quarter in 2m 19s. Broken Glass (T. Herbert) had the successive help of Purple Ross and Barley Mow, and was fully extended in a gallop of a mile and a half in 2m 44s. Wishing Cap (C. Dobson) was going rather stronger than Marcellus (L. Lane) over the same ground in a slower time, while Alcconer (T. Fleming) covered it in 2m 43s, but only had the pace on during the last mile, done in 1m 50s, for most of which he had the company of Luteplayer. Harriet Graham (Littlewick) went with [illegible] a dash, and beat Prince Bardolph (L. Franklin) well over a mile and a quarter in 2m 18s, but she was decidedly lame on pulling up on the big sand track. Conacre led off with half a mile in 54s. Lasol ran the last six of eight furlongs in 1m 23¼s. Biarritz went at even time pace. Manderston went along for seven furlongs in 1m 37s. Yandil strode along at about even time speed. Inverney was going easily for a mile in 1m 48s. King Kora (P. Tehan) sported half a mile in 51s, and Prince Soda and Sarah Alice were three-quarters of a second longer for the same distance. Path ran a mile in 1m 52s. Macadam (P. Herbert) did the last six of eight furlongs in 1m 22s. Burnley (R. Lewis) and Trillion (E. Hamilton) were 1m 23s, and Romanna (R. Lewis) and Benefit (E. Hamilton) 1m 25s for the same distance. Lowall (E. Hamilton) and Cane Sky (R. Lewis) sported half a mile in 51s, and so did Valaster and what was taken as Dubiben. Thrice (R. Lewis) kept company with Jaune for a mile in 1m 46s, the last six furlongs being done in 1m 21¼s. Glad Eye (R. Lewis) began slowly in a gallop of 11 furlongs, and kept going all the way. He did the first five furlongs in 1m 10s, a mile in 1m 50s, a mile and a quarter in 2m 18s, and the full journey in 2m 32s, while he had the better of Lady Santoi, who was put in to help for the last mile and a quarter.

Jumpers, going along strongly, included Oh, Highview, Sylvan Lass, Affinitis, Highland Clan, and Wood Peirce, Torchy (C. O'Reilly), and Bartani (T. Butler), Paternos (W. M'Pherson), and Pram (P. Cosgrove), and Donacles (C. Boyd), and Barley King (C. O'Reilly) in pairs were schooling over the hurdles, and shaped in a satisfactory manner, and the last-named couple afterwards ran six furlongs on the tan in 1m 28s.

TWO-YEAR-OLD TRIALS.

After breakfast the outside of the Maribyrnong Plate course was opened for the use of the two-year-olds, and the visitors, who went down to the judge's box, had a good opportunity of admiring the beautiful lawn and flowerbeds, which have never appeared to more advantage than they do at present. The five-furlong course was in splendid order, and some very fast time was made by several of the youngsters, who seem better than those that have been seen for some years past. Tragic Star (E. O'Sullivan) led off by running the journey in 1m 2s, some of the watch-holders making it even better. He was ridden right out, and shifted about considerably at the crossings, but finished strongly, and would probably have gone straighter had he been in company. Eusebius (H. Scott) and Fitness (J. Killorn), who both finished well, were well in front of King of the Sea (G. Harrison), Lar (W. H. McLachlan), and Centreline (J. Fleming) in 1m 3s. Aircomer (L. A. Walker), who went in a most determined manner and finished strongly, beat King's Treasure (L. Franklin) by about a couple of lengths in 1m 2½s, and Woorawa and Kilfoyle were further in his rear. Liquid Fire, who was well in front of Damaton, did the journey in 1m 5s, and they were followed by Aries and Peat and by Wangil, who were not extended. Neither was Blushing Honours, but Lilian Blamsey defeated Myuna in 1m 6¼s, and Solar Rays (R. W. Brennan) accounted for Pierian (L. Franklin) in 1m 3¼s, while Status, Democracy, and Thessaura did it easily in 1m 10s.

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

There were several surprises among the scratchings for the V.R.C. Meeting to-day, and the greatest of these was Thrice's withdrawal from all engagements. It is understood that it was due to a recurrence of foot trouble experienced prior to the A.J.C. Derby. The scratching time was 10.30. Glad Eye, who was scratched at the same time, pulled up badly this morning; and Harriet Graham was very lame after working. She was scratched at 3.25 p.m.

The following are the probable riders for the Melbourne Cup:—Thana (A. Wood), Cagou (K. Bracken), Lanius (H. Cairns), The Fortune Hunter (——), Lavendo (G. Harrison), Colbert (A. Davis), Wallace Isinglass (M. Connell), Lingle (P. Brown), King's Bounty (L. A. Walker), Wishing Cap (J. Killorn), Marcellus (L. A. Hebert), Westcourt (W. H. M'Lachlan), Eastcourt (——), Sir Amyas (R. Lewis), Ranger (P. Kelly), Semi Blue (W. Smart), Bronzetti (F. Dempsey), Rael Locin (J. Townsend), Kilfinn (G. Eaton), Broken Glass (T. Herbert), Cumos (——), Chrome (J. K. Riley), Ahoo (S. Bowler).

CRICKET.

At the annual meeting of the Australian board of control for international cricket the following resolution was agreed to:—"That, in the event of the war terminating within the next 12 months, the chairman and hon. secretary be empowered, if they deem it necessary, to at once call a special meeting of the board to deal with any matters affecting international cricket."

Mr H. Blinman (South Australia) was re-elected chairman, and Mr. Sydney Smith, jun., hon. secretary and treasurer.

BOXING.

There will be six bouts of four rounds at the Stadium to-night, including paper-weight, bantam-weight, feather-weight, light-weight, and welter-weight divisions. New vaudeville turns will also be staged.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

A conference of the National Party was held at Tamworth yesterday, those present including Mr. Joseph Cook, Minister for the Navy, Senator Josiah Thomas, W. Massey Greene, M.P., Messrs. G. R. M'Donald, F. J. Thomas, and H. W. Lane, Ms.L.A., Messrs. Archdale Parkhill, Hector Lamond, and Percy Hunter, organiser of the National Party.

Mr. Cook expressed pleasure at the strong support that was being given to the movement in an electorate which had taken the initiative in many ways. They could not have too much organisation so long as the objects and ideals were national in their character. He thought that they would do well to make the machinery to fit the facts of the situation. The war had made a tremendous difference in their political organisation, in their personal relations and attitudes, and it had upset many of the old opinions, but there was one great unifying cause operating—the standing together in the defence of their country.

Senator Josiah Thomas said that the sending of men into Parliament with a blank cheque to fill in as they thought fit was against his idea of representative government. He thought the programme was more important than organisation, and he hoped one would be evolved that would make organisation easy. Unity was the great thing necessary. The time might come when honest reformers would have legitimate differences of opinion; but the time was not now.

The following resolutions were carried: (1) "That in the interest of the country electors, especially women, and to permit of their discharging their responsibilities in electing a representative Government, the postal vote should be revived for the Federal elections and introduced in the State." (2) "That the conference recommend the advisability of a uniform date for State and Federal income tax returns being adopted." (3) "That the repatriation question being a matter of vital importance to the Commonwealth, this branch suggests that a scheme be inaugurated whereby the whole area would be split up into districts, the management and funds to be controlled by responsible citizens, which would expedite the transactions of business, and the inquiry into individual cases be more closely dealt with." (4) "That a law be introduced making it a criminal offence for any unauthorised person to lay cyanide or other poisonous baits for the purpose of destroying opossums or other furred animals." (5) "That this conference, largely representing the primary producers' interests in this division, respectfully urges that the monetary losses occasioned by the mice plague be charged to the Consolidated Revenue, and not be a direct charge upon the farmers, as it would be if it is liquidated out of the wheat pool."

In aid of the Y.M.C.A. Field Service Fund a grand display and concert will be given by the Y.W.C.A. physical culture class at St. James's Hall to-night, commencing at 8 o'clock.

FINANCIAL.

COLONIAL SUGAR COMPANY.

The half-yearly report of the above company covers the six months ended September 30. It shows that the profits made during that period, including dividends on shares in Colonial Sugar Refining Co. (Fiji and New Zealand) Limited, and after providing for interest, depreciation, and all other charges, amount to £136,502. From this amount the Board propose to appropriate—to payment of dividend at the rate of 6¼ per cent. per annum, £105,625, leaving £30,877; to which sum has to be added the balance at profit and loss account, £62,985, leaving to the credit of profit and loss account, £93,862. The work of the refineries for the half-year has been reduced by the strike of some of the employees in Sydney and Melbourne, and the stoppage in Adelaide through inability to procure coal. At the mills in New South Wales fair results are being obtained, though damage was done to the crops by heavy frosts. In Queensland the start was delayed through difficulties created by the Sugar Cane Prices Act, and it is doubtful now if the large crop will be taken off before the wet season sets in. The following comparison may be made:—

ILLAWARRA STEAM.

The half-yearly report of the Illawarra and South Coast Steam Navigation Company, Limited, covers the six months ended September 30. It shows a net profit for the period of £4390, out of which the directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent., and a bonus of one per cent. per annum, absorbing £3750, leaving £169, which, with £1425 brought forward, leaves £640, which it is recommended be transferred to a reserve account for equalisation of dividends. NATIONAL BANK.

The accounts of the above institution cover the six months ended September 30. They show net profits of £84,488, against £78,429 for the corresponding term in 1916. The sum available is £98,183, of which the usual dividend, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum on both classes of shares, absorbs £52,438. To the reserve fund £25,000 is transferred, raising same to £675,000, and towards reduction of bank premises account £5000 is allocated. The balance of £15,745 is carried forward, against £13,694 brought into the accounts. The balance-sheet figures are shown below in comparison with those of 1915 and 1916 for the corresponding half-year:—

SUGERI PARA RUBBER COMPANY.

The report of the above company covers the year ended June 30. It shows a net profit of £1619. A dividend of 6d per share is recommended absorbing £806, £344 is written off preliminary expenses, £500 added to reserve fund, and £45 carried forward. The shareholders met yesterday and the report was adopted. Messrs. W. Brooks and J. J. Brenan being re-elected directors.

WELSBACH OF AUSTRALASIA.

Another indifferent season was the experience of the Welsbach Light Company of Australasia last year. The result of operations is a loss of £5400, as compared with a profit of £200 in 1915, reducing the credit balance brought in to £4300. In its early years the concern enjoyed much prosperity, and in 1909 was able to return the shareholders 19s out of every 20s. Since then it has paid only two dividends, the last being 50 per cent. in 1912.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Chemical lines were fairly active yesterday. Strychnine was selling in quantities at 9/6 oz, and in smaller lots at 10/. Sulphur was inquired for in large quantities by vignerons, but the quality usually employed—Crown—is now unprocurable. The next quality, flowers of sulphur, was worth yesterday in parcels £27 a ton, and in distributing lots £28. Grocers' ground sulphur was selling at £17 a ton. The proclaimed price of soda ash was £2 over landed cost. Some holders were asking £40 a ton. Tartaric acid was somewhat easier, holders offering to quit at 3/7½ in ton lots. Cream of tartar was extremely firm, nothing being procurable under 3/1½ for ton lots. Citric was selling at 3/11 to 4/, according to quality. Caustic soda was unchanged at £70, and bi-carb. was firm at £40.

Groceries were doing a moderate business yesterday where goods could be obtained. The distributing business was good. Evaporated apricots were inquired for. Large lots were difficult to obtain. Two-crown were worth 11½d, three-crown 12½d, and four-crown 13½d. These rates are considerably above the quotations at the opening of the season. Dried peaches were plentiful, and were selling at opening prices, three-crown 8d, four-crown 8½d. Tasmanian evaporated apples were distributing in bulk at 10½d, and in 1lb cartons at 11½d; although they were offered recently to the Commonwealth Government from Tasmania at 5d per lb. Dates were irregular on account of the certainty that there would be no new season's here this year. Prices asked were up to 6½d in distributing lots. Supplies of Norwegian sardines caused some concern. It is not known how the difficulty with regard to tinplate will be overcome. Reports from Tasmania indicate that this year should conditions remain favourable the largest grey pea crop on record will be pulled. Epsom salts were at a high price, cwts being quoted at 75/ and box lots at 5/.

In jute the only business doing yesterday was in branbags, reports having been received from Calcutta that in the last vessel preference was given to shipments of cornsacks. The market was cleared of all branbags offering on spot at 8/9, and holders thereafter asked 9/. There did not seem to be any spot sacks available, as what lots importers had they were holding to supply September shipments. The position may ease a little when a steamer, now in Melbourne, arrives here. Quotations were nominally 9/6 for wholesale lots. Sales were made to users at 10/. Sales of woolpacks were made at 4/2 net. Queensland was the principal buyer.

NETHERLANDS INDIES EXHIBITION.

An exhibition of the products of the Netherlands East Indies is now on view at the office of the Consulate for the Netherlands, 58 Hunter-street. Formerly a great part of the trade of the Indies was done through London or Amsterdam, but with the disturbance to trade caused by the war much trade is now done direct between the Indies and the consuming countries. The range of products exhibited is extremely wide, as, indeed, is only natural in the case of tropical islands with an extremely rich soil and a wide variety of climate. Tobacco is shown, and among the material for brewing beverages there are tea and coffee. Both of these, of course, are well known here. Then there come fine samples of nutmeg and cinnamon sticks. Quinine is shown in all stages of manufacture from the cinchona bark cut in regulation lengths to the finished product, sulphate of quinine or hydrochlorate of quinine. Among edibles there are rice, sugar, and peanuts. British firms are extensively interested in the rubber estates of the Netherlands East Indies. The resultant product is here shown. Tanning extracts are on view, oils from different nuts, benzoin, and natural indigo for dyeing. A great deal of our kapok comes from these islands. That also is shown, and a fine collection of sisal hemp. An instructive sample of native handiwork is some batik cloth very beautifully woven and covered with a picturesque pattern. Altogether the exhibition, which is accessible to all interested in the furtherance of commerce, furnishes much information of the opportunities for trade with the Indies.

MELBOURNE SHEEP SALES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live-stock market to-day 20,800 fat sheep were entered, but owing to the floods a number of trucks failed to arrive. The bulk of the yarding was of good to prime quality, the greater proportion being shorn sorts. During the greater portion of the day biddings were brisk and rates on about a par with the best of last market prevailed, but towards the close competition slackened a good deal and values eased again for all good sorts. Quotations: Crossbred wethers, shorn, prime 33/ to 37/, extra 39/, odd pens to 40/4, good 30/ to 32/, seconds 27/ to 29/, inferior from 25/; woolly, good to prime 43/ to 53/6, others from 34/; crossbred ewes, shorn, prime 31/ to 35/, extra to 37/6, odd ewes to 40/, good 28/ to 30/, seconds 25/ to 27/, inferior from 21/6; woolly, good to prime 39/ to 47/3, others from 26/9; merino wethers, shorn prime 29/ to 33/, extra to 36/7, odd pens to 38/1, good 26/ to 28/, seconds 23/ to 25/, inferior from 20/; woolly, good to prime 42/6 to 48/, extra to 49/9; others from 28/; merino ewes, shorn, good to prime 24/ to 27/9, others from 19/6; merino ewes, woolly, 32/ to 35/6, inferior from 23/. Fat lambs: 17,000 were entered, but a few consignments were blocked by flood waters, and failed to arrive. The bulk of the supply was of prime quality, though there were fewer pens of heavy lambs and a slightly larger supply of inferior sorts. The demand was irregular, early sales, in many cases, showing an advance, whilst late afternoon sales occasionally displayed lower values, but prime quality firmed again at the close, and no material alteration in this class can be quoted. Secondary quality, however, were slack at the close of the sales, though graziers operated freely throughout the day. Quotations: Prime 25/3 to 30/3, extra to 34/2, odd lots to 35/11, good 23/ to 24/6, seconds 20/ to 22/, inferior from 14/9, with shorn from 19/2 to 24/1, odd lambs from 34/6 to 35/, shorn from 23/ to 29/1.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

EGGS HEAVILY SUPPLIED.

Yesterday the egg market was very heavily supplied with local and interstate consignments, and agents experienced the greatest difficulty in maintaining the previous day's levels. New-laid eggs realised from /10½ to /11, while case varieties were to be had at from /9 to /9½ a dozen. A big parcel is expected to arrive from Adelaide during the next few days.

The Federal Price Fixing authorities have allowed Sussex-street agents again to charge 2/ per cwt. for boxes and cartage on all butter sold in New South Wales. That means that choicest butter in Sydney is now worth 151/4 per cwt., compared with 149/4 in Melbourne. The representations which were made to the Price Fixing Commissioner were evidently convincing.

Hams for Christmas delivery were freely booked. Agents are rapidly running out of medium weights, and latecomers will have to be content with heavy and fat meat. The demand for bacon was fully maintained, and prices were unaltered.

BUTTER BOXES.

"Grocer" writes:—

Sir,—Would you be kind enough to let the grocery trade know if it is lawful for Sussex-street merchants to charge 2/ per cwt for boxes and cartage on butter, seeing that the Commissioners proclaimed a uniform price for the whole of the Commonwealth, and there is not any mention of cartage charges? Further, I am informed that this is the only State that charges for boxes. Then, why should the trade in New South Wales be so penalised?

Successful representations were made to the Federal Price Fixing authorities by the Sussex-street agents, with the result that they are now allowed to charge 2/ extra for boxes and cartage. No such charge is made in any of the other States.

Quotations were:—

Eggs.—Hen and duck, new-laid, /10½ to/11; South Coast and railways, /9 to /9½; Northern Rivers, /9 per dozen.

Butter (boxes and cartage 2/ extra).—Choicest 149/4, seconds 140/, thirds 121/4 per cwt.; packed in prints, ½d per lb extra may be charged.

Guineafowls: To 5/6. Pigeons: Young and old, to 2/3 per pair.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

FALL IN ONIONS.

The market was over-supplied with onions yesterday, and there was a heavy fall in prices. New season's Victorian Silverskins changed hands at from £14 to £15, while old season's Brown Spanish bulbs were to be had at £13 a ton. On Monday the market was firm at £20. Potatoes also were dull. Tasmanian varieties were available at from £9 to £10 a ton. Victorian consignments were offered at from £7 to £8.

Forage and grain lines were steady at previous rates.

Competition at the firewood sales was dull, and 21/6 a ton was the highest price secured for boxwood. In all, 20 truckloads were offered.

Quotations were:—

Broom Millet.—Prime long hurl, £38 to £45, inferior from £22 a ton.

Oats.—Tasmanian: Giants, 3/10 to 4/; Algerian, feed, 3/2; milling, 3/6 to 3/8 a bushel.

Maize.—Northern Rivers, yellow 4/8, white 4/5 a bushel.

Lucerne.—Hunter River, small bales £4/10/, large prime green £4; green, £3 to £3/10/; slightly heated, £2 to £3 per ton.

Potatoes.—Tasmanian, £9 to £10; Victorian, £7 to £8 a ton.

Onions.—Brown Spanish, £13; New Silverskins, £14 to £15.

Peas.—Nominal, grey 8/ to 8/6 a bushel; blue, none offering.

Firewood.—Best boxwood, to 21/6, good 18/ to 20/; stringybark 20/, good 17/ to 18/6, mixed 15/ to 16/, ironbark, 18/ to 17/; best bakers' wood, 19/, good 17/, rough 10/ to 11/ per ton.

RAILWAY MARKET.

Only a few trucks of potatoes were available at Alexandria yesterday. Buyers were well represented, but as they refused to bid, prices showed a decided decrease.

Business in the forage section was quiet. The chaff generally was of medium quality, and the demand being poor, prices fell.

Consignments placed in position for sale: Hay, straw, chaff, 131; grain, 14; potatoes, 32.

Produce manifested to arrive: Hay, straw, chaff, 115; grain, nil; potatoes, 34.

Details were:—

Potatoes.—From Arnold, Albury (493), 130 bags Warrnambool Redskins, 6/6; Arnold, Albury (12247), 150 bags Pinkeyes, 4/4; ex Albury (16091), 160 bags Snowflakes, 6/9; Reis and Co., Albury (5903), 44 bags Redskins, 7/, balance 90 bags Snowflakes, 6/7; Reis and co., Albury (16022), 80 bags Snowflakes, 7/; Reis, Albury (9052), 120 bags Redskins, 7/5 per cwt.

Wheaten Chaff.—From London, Webb's Siding (8437), 2/3; Spence, Trundle (12690), 3/; (3494), 3/4; Hubbard, Combo Siding (3461), 3/4; ex Dubbo (16085), 2/9; (12027), 2/9; Sackville Estate, Forest Hill (234), 3/2; Dowler, Locksley (7393), 3/2; ex Cowra (17071), 3/2 per cwt.

Derrick Straw.—From Cusick, Kelso (14253), 3/5 per cwt.

FRUIT MARKETS.

Choice quality mandarins were in excellent demand yesterday, and the best samples commanded to 18/ a bushel case. Passionfruit were also freely asked for, and sold as high as 13/ a half-bushel case.

Quotations were.—

Lemons.—Choice 8/ to 9/, medium 6/, small to 2/6 a bushel-case.

Bananas.—Tweed River, 13/ to 20/ a case.

Mandarins.—Special 16/ to 18/, choice to 14/, medium 5/ to 7/, small 2/ to 2/6 a bushel-case.

Loquats.—Mammoth, special to 12/, choice 8/, medium 5/ to 6/, small 2/ to 2/6 a half-bushel case.

Passionfruit.—Choice 13/, medium 5/ to 7/, small 2/ to 2/6 a half-bushel case.

Pears.—Victorian: 10/ to 16/ per bushel-case.

Pineapples.—Queensland: Queens 7/ to 12/, commons and Ripleys 8/ to 9/ a case.

Apples.—Tasmanian: Dessert, 15/ to 17/; jam lots, from 5/. Western Australia: Dessert, 16/ to 18/ per bushel-case.

Oranges.—Choice 8/ to 9/, medium 4/ to 6/, small 2/ to 2/6, navel, extra choice 18/ to 20/, choice 14/ to 16/, medium 7/ to 9/, small 3/ a bushel-case.

Cherries.—10/ to 12/ a 12lb box.

PIG SALES.

The market was fully supplied with 1650 pigs at the abattoir sale yesterday. Porkers were well in evidence, comprising the bulk of the offering. About 100 backfatters were offered, with a moderate showing of baconers. A full attendance of buyers competed, and values in the porker section ruled firm except at closing sales, when values were in buyer's favour. Baconers were not in such strong demand as recently, and late high rates were not quite maintained. Owing to the increased number of backfatters, the market for these was a little weaker.

Quotations were:—

Backfatters.—Extra prime and weighty, £8/10/ to £9; good and heavy, £7 to £8; medium, £6 to £7; prime light, £4/10/ to £5/10/; inferior from £3/10/. Baconers: Prime and weighty, £4/12/ to £5/5/; good and heavy, £4/1/ to £4/12/; medium, £3/16/ to £4/4/; prime light, £3/7/ to £3/13/; light and inferior, from £3/5/. Porkers: Prime and weighty, £2/15/ to £3/3/; good and heavy, £2/8/ to £2/15/; medium weights, £1/15/ to £2/2/; prime light, £1/5/ to £1/15/; light and inferior, from £1/2/.

PRODUCE INWARD.

LAUNCESTON, Tuesday.

The Wakatipu left for Sydney to-day with 4484 bags oats, 566 bundles bark, 654 bales willows, 305 cases fruit, 335 bales straw.

MINING.

BARRIERS EASIER.

A dull market prevailed for mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and in some sections a weaker tendency pervaded operations. It was not until the day had far advanced that Barriers appeared amongst the listed business, and the easier trend in prices thereupon made manifest influenced dealings in other groups. B.H. Proprietary eased 7½d on terms to 51/9, and Norths declined 6d to 55/9. Junction North, after fluctuation, throughout the day, closed practically unaltered at 13/10½. Some weakness was apparent also among the Westonian gold enterprises. Deeps receded to 27/3, and Edna Maya finished 2/9 lower, at 42/. The late price of 20/ was maintained for Consols, while Centrals recovered to 16/. Malayan tin ventures were the only tin stocks engaging serious attention, and here, too, prices varied. Ronpibon fell 7d to 19/3, and Trong eased to 10/7, while Deebook sagged to 12/9, and quotations for other stocks exhibited a sympathetic leaning. Kampong were inclined to harden, and were booked at 47/, at 3 months, but the late rate of 46/ was accepted for cash.

STOCK EXCHANGE SALES.

The following mining sales were listed:—

Gold.—Edna May Consolidated, 20/; Edna May Central, 16/; Edna May Deep Levels, 28/; 2 months, 28/; cash, 27/6, 27/3; 6 weeks, 27/4½; cash, 27/3; Edna May, 43/, 42/; 6 weeks, 42/; Edna May Main Lode, 1/1½; Golden One, 5/7.

Silver.—B.H. Proprietary, 6 weeks, 52/; cash, 51/9; 6 weeks, 51/9; 6 weeks, 51/9; B.H. Junction, con., 7/; Junction North, 13/9; 3 months, 14/; cash, 13/9, 13/8; 3 months, 14/; cash, 13/9, 13/8½, 13/9; 6 weeks, 13/10½; New Burragorang, 5/11; North B.H., 55/9.

GLOUCESTER BY-ELECTION.

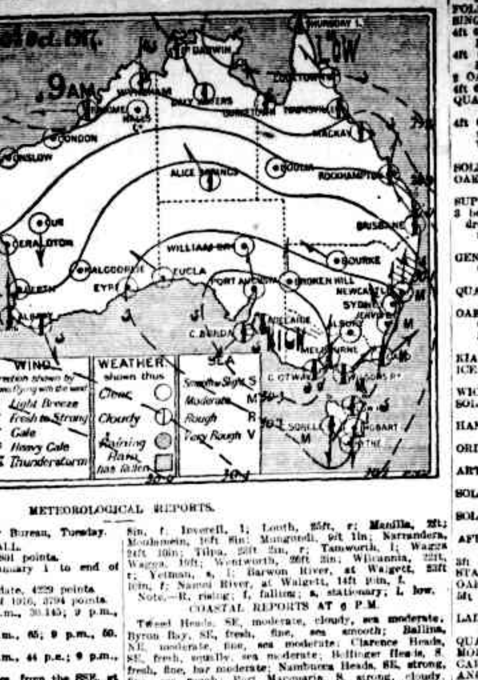

The Chief Secretary (Mr. G. W. Fuller) will probably speak at Gloucester at the beginning of next week in support of the National candidate. His present intention is to leave for the electorate on Monday morning.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure on Tuesday morning practically covered the whole of the continent. Since Monday it travelled about 700 miles and surged slightly northwards. It had on Tuesday morning lost a little in barometric values, the centre being between Adelaide and Robe. The antarctic disturbance over the Tasman Sea was on Tuesday morning well to the S.E. of the Bluff, New Zealand, while the high pressure still lingered over the North Island. The tropical depression was on Tuesday morning over the Coral Sea, while greater monsoonal activity was shown over Queensland than on the previous day. With this distribution of pressure fine and pleasant weather may be expected generally, with land and sea breezes.

AMUSEMENTS.

PRINCESS JU-JU.

"Your faces all look lovely," said Madame Ada Baker on Saturday night from the stage of the Repertory Theatre, when returning thanks to the crowded audience which witnessed the performance by the Pymble Cecilia Ladies' Choir of the Japanese operetta, "Princess Ju-Ju, or the Golden Amulet." Madame Baker had wielded the conductor's baton during the evening, and this was the first time she had seen the "house." The only male performers during the evening were those in the orchestra, and Madame was the trainer of "the girls," as she designated them. Their trainer had eradicated all semblance of staginess, and naturalness prevailed throughout the dialogue. As for the operetta itself, it tells the love story of a Japanese Princess, much in the same manner as children's story books tell tales of beautiful princesses and their love affairs. During the three acts the incidents of the plot with dances, eccentric and otherwise, processions on a small scale, and pleasing musical airs, keep the house interested and amused. Miss Jeanette Wride played the part of the Princess; Miss Clare Peating that of the Emperor Hokipokitippitop; and Miss Trixie Hall, Clara Hart, and Ennie Jeffery, the three princes. The proceeds of the performance go to the War Chest, Y.M.C.A., and Red Cross and Nurses' comfort funds.

"THE GEISHA."

The large and appreciative audience in the Repertory Theatre on Monday night had the pleasure not only of witnessing a very artistic production of "The Geisha" by the Amateur Patriotic Operatic Society, but also of assisting several worthy causes, for which the performance has been arranged, viz., the 1st, 6th, and 7th Light Horse Comforts Fund, the Civil Ambulance Brigade, and the Rawson Institute for Seamen. The production, which lent itself to effective staging, and especially the musical numbers, went with a sparkle and smoothness that did the society distinct credit. The appearance of Miss Grace Palotta between the first and second acts added to the enjoyment of the audience. Accompanied by a chorus, she gave with characteristic vivacity and charm the number "Oh, Listen to the Band," for which she was encored, and afterwards presented with floral and other tributes. In thanking the audience she commended the funds for which they were working, and in response to her appeal the audience showered coins on to the Union Jack on the stage. Among those who figured prominently in the performance were Mrs. Eustace Holroyde, Mrs. Charles Hotham, Misses Molly M'Cubbin, B. Holdship, and V. Baillie, and Messrs. Stanley Allen, Harry Perfect, J. Manchester, and T. Bell. The musical director was Professor R. Woodhouse. The production will be staged again to-night.

THE HOSPICE MATINEE.

Not only was the Tivoli Theatre crowded for the matinee in aid of the Sacred Heart Hospice for the Dying yesterday, but Mrs. H. D. M'Intosh reported that in various ways about £300 extra was in hand. Mr. Cattley (business manager at the Tivoli) roughly assessed the house takings at £250, so that the total outcome of this splendidly organised effort will be fully £600, with possibly a little over. Expenses were small, as Mr. Hugh D. M'Intosh lent the theatre and all the artists, and the various staffs and orchestra generously gave their services free. The programme included a smart performance of "The Beauty Shop," and first-rate contributions (involving encores) by Misses Fane, Trevenyon, Perry, Vaughn, Nugent, Revette, Bessie Beattie (accompanist), Messrs. Frith, Higginson, Cesaroni, Frank Greene, Fisher, Andrews, Preston, Hooker, and the Camille Trio. Mr. Barry Lupino was unavoidably absent through illness in his family, and Miss Lilian Tucker through a relaxed throat. During the afternoon Mr. Andrew Higginson, assisted by Mr. Wheeler, auctioned a camera, presented by Messrs. Baker and Rouse, which fetched £5 5s twice (Mmes. Hemming and Duval); a kewpie doll sold twice for £2 10s, to Mrs. Major and Mr. Major; a salad bowl, presented by Stewart Dawson and Co., for £1 10s, to Mrs. Arnett; and a silk cushion for £1, £1 5s, and 10s. Bids for a sable pomeranian puppy reached £7 7s only towards a reserve of £15 15s. Mmes. Leahy and W. J. Adams were hon. treasurers, and Mmes. Morgan, O'Neill, and G. W. Durrell hon. secretaries of the committee, with Mrs. M'Intosh as president.

CONSERVATORIUM STUDENTS.

The first of the Conservatorium Students' free concerts took place at the institution last night, when there was a promising attendance. The programme possessed intrinsic merit, inasmuch as the old masters were chiefly drawn upon, and as soon as the public realises that in this respect a classic standard will be maintained their support will be, or ought to be, much larger. On the pianoforte side Misses Edna Moses, Ruth Doutty, and D. Easson contributed very advanced work, naturally more so than Miss Nellie Henderson, a younger student, who was heard in the Corelli Sonata for Violin. In the Mozart "Trio No. 6" Miss M. Goldsmith helpfully dominated an ensemble completed by Miss Rita Sawyer (violin) and Mr. Adrian Verbrugghen ('cello). Miss Bronwen Fairhall, Miss Alvina Bagot, and Miss Peggy Chamberlain were the vocalists of the evening, the first-named doing especially well; and Miss Pauline Harford recited with animation. Misses M. Chalmers, M. Solomon, M. Reyburn, and A. M'Namara were the accompanists. Miss Mirrie Solomon's group of original songs were admired. Mr. Stanley Warwick is arranging the next of these concerts for about a fortnight hence.

WHICH WILL YOU HAVE? Power Transmission Troubles or "MANGROVITE" Belting. You cannot have both.

"MANGROVITE" Belting has proved itself to be the best obtainable at any price. "MANGROVITE" Raw Hide, different to all other so-called Raw-hide Belting, is giving satisfaction on a Compressor Drive in Sydney, where all other belts, including imported Leather and Textile Belting, have failed. Use only the best, which is "MANGROVITE." Expert advice offered on all transmission problems.

MANGROVITE BELTING, LTD., late Charles Ludowici, 49 Wynyard-square, near G.P.O., SYDNEY. Telephone, City 2898, 2899.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

AN AUSTRALIAN ASBESTOS-CEMENT "DURABESTOS."

"DURABESTOS" is a Durable Building Material of the Highest Quality, composed of Government-tested Cement, reinforced with true Asbestos Fibre.

"DURABESTOS" is the original Australian-made Asbestos Cement Product, and the only hydraulically compressed Sheet and Slate Manufactured in Australia.

"DURABESTOS" is non-combustible, and in finished appearance surpasses all others. A sample will prove this to practical builders.

"DURABESTOS" improves with age, and does not crack, split, or warp.

"DURABESTOS" is approved by the Fire Underwriters' Association, who grant the maximum discount where this material is used.

For Prices and Samples apply "DURABESTOS," LIMITED, Sales Branch, 14 Moore street, Sydney.

SECOND-HAND CASH REGISTERS. HINTS TO BUYERS.

Look for the number plate on the front of the register. Let us tell you if it is the correct one. If it has been removed or altered, the dealer has some reason for deceiving you, either about the age or ownership of the register.

FOR SALE, Second-hand "Nationals," from £5 up. Other kinds, "Americans," from £3 up; "Sune," £1; "Hamiltons," £2; "Gledhills," £2. Terms to suit the buyer.

"We guarantee to furnish a better Cash Register for less money than any other concern in the world."

Compare our values before committing yourself. Tell us the number of any second-hand "National" offered you, and we will tell you the truth about its age and value. We make and sell 95 per cent. of the world's Cash Registers. It is better to consult us FIRST than to seek our sympathy AFTER the dealer has finished with you.

It pays to deal direct with the Makers.

DENTISTRY THAT IS REALLY PAINLESS. MY SUCCESS in Dental Work is due, I believe, in great measure to my conscientious attempt to promise nothing that I cannot perform.
When I say that I can remove a tooth from your mouth or the nerve from a tooth with such absolute PAINLESSNESS that you will not realise that there is such a thing as a nerve in your whole body I mean exactly what I say; and the same is true of FILLINGS or CROWN and BRIDGE WORK, or any kind of Dental Work, from the simplest to the most complicated.
LET ME PROVE THIS TO YOU.
I GUARANTEE ALL MY WORK FOR FIVE YEARS. Examination, Advice, and Estimate FREE.
Remember,
MY ONLY ADDRESS IS OPPOSITE MARK FOY'S.

LEARN THE CANDY BUSINESS.
JUST BECAUSE—It needs no capital. It can be worked from your home. You are your own Boss. There is big profit in it. It's easy—FEARFULLY EASY. It can be learnt this week, and you can earn money next week. No other business can you learn so quickly. No other business shows such profits.
YOU CANNOT GET IMPORTED SWEETS.
NO OUTLAY IS NEEDED.
Everybody buys Candies, and note this, CHOCOLATES ARE ALWAYS IN FASHION.
THE HEAVY, MYSTERIOUS HAND OF FASHION constantly forces the products of the textile manufacturer to a losing market, and compels him to spend money in new machinery, always subject to the UNCERTAIN FAVOUR OF A CAPRICIOUS PUBLIC, but CROAKER'S PUPILS' CHOCOLATES SELL EVERYWHERE ON SIGHT, AND FLAVOUR BRINGS REPEAT ORDERS.
Did you ever see a lolly store with a bill on the window, SALE NOW ON! CLEARING OUT SEASON'S GOODS? etc. NO. Sugar is like a PORK PIG; good from the tip of its nose to the end of its rudder.
IT'S THE TRADE TO BE IN, and if you have not seen
CROAKER'S PUPILS' LOLLIES NOW ON SHOW you do NOT KNOW what candies are. Call and see if we mislead you. If we are, tell us so. IF YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY YOU'LL CALL.
A. CROAKER AND DAUGHTERS, Original World's Lolly Instructors, Station House, 390 George-st, or Rawson-place, Sydney. City 1077. Est. 1899.

LADIES, LEARN LOLLY MAKING BY POST. The Government has helped you by STOPPING THE IMPORTATION OF ALL SWEETS. WE WILL HELP YOU, TOO, by starting you with NECESSARIES AND MATERIAL, FREE CARRIAGE PAID. NO DEBT HUNG AROUND YOUR NECK TO WEIGH YOU DOWN, NO ANXIETY, NOTHING TO SIGN, NOTHING TO PROMISE. YOU'LL MAKE MONEY THE DAY YOU COMMENCE. WE'RE OUT TO HELP YOU.
A. CROAKER AND DAUGHTERS, Station Hse., Sydney.

LADIES.
As STRAWBERRIES are becoming plentiful, I am—for a SHORT TIME only—presenting ALL CALLERS with a formula for delicious "STRAWBERRY CREAM FUDGE." When you come to MY ROOMS you will find my display of pupils' SWEETS (not USELESS DECORATIONS made from sugar) more DAINTY and ATTRACTIVE than you had hitherto believed possible; and I am sure YOU will think, as others, that it would be QUITE IMPOSSIBLE to feel the loss of the IMPORTED LINES, when such FASCINATING CONFECTIONERY can be manufactured in Australia. Ask for one of my FREE booklets, which gives full particulars of my PERSONAL and POSTAL TUITION.

WANTED, TRAINED GIRLS.
"Money is a good soldier." Everywhere we read it and can readily realise it. But money is the product of the economic machine. Whether there be little or much depends on the machine's efficiency.
Many of the men who enlist leave behind work which can only be continued by a trained substitute. Can't you be one of these substitutes?
NEARLY ONE THOUSAND GIRLS ARE ANNUALLY TRAINED AND PLACED IN REMUNERATIVE POSITIONS BY STOTT AND HOARE'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.
Our course in Shorthand, Typewriting, Bookkeeping, Accountancy, Business Routine will fit you to carry on some absent man's work efficiently and at a good remuneration. Not only will you prove a valuable unit in the "money army," but you will have that satisfaction which comes of duty well performed. Be not only willing—be prepared.
Write or call to-day for further details. The Principal, Mr. Geo. H. Rose, B.A., will give you the benefit of his great experience in advising students as to the most suitable subjects.

"Remington House," Liverpool-street, Sydney (Facing Hyde Park).

WHAT ARE YOUR PROSPECTS OF INCREASED SALARY?
Does your "rise" depend on the goodwill of the "chief," or on your ability to DEMAND a good salary because of specialised knowledge?
There are many men in the first class who develop a permanent "grouch," because they never wake up to the fact that business is not altogether a matter of good-fellowship. Outside of business hours your chief may consider you a fine enough man, but in office hours there are probably several men ahead of you in his affections.
ENROL FOR A STOTT AND HOARE COURSE OF POSTAL INSTRUCTION.
This institution has equipped thousands of men and women with the training necessary for their advancement. Mere willingness to work well is of little avail without that knowledge which your new position may demand.
We have over 300 Courses, one of which will surely start you toward the larger salary goal. Earnest study in your spare time is all that is required.
Write to-day for FREE BOOKLET and Schedule of Fees, giving information regarding the various Courses of Instruction, which include:—

Shorthand,	Mechanical Engineering,
Typewriting,	Engine Driving and Boiler Management,
Bookkeeping,	Electrical Engineering,
Accountancy,	Surveying,
Penmanship,	Shire Engineering,
Correspondence,	Architecture and Building Construction,
Languages,	Conveyancers' Exams.,
Mathematics,	Draftsmanship,
